AMERICAN-MADE DIVE BOMBER, MANNED BY GERMANS, SHOT DOWN IN FIERCE BATTLE

Longest Heat Wave of Year Due To Continue, Weather Bureau Says

Previous High Temperature Records for 1940 Smashed; Farmers Fear Drought in Kansas

By The Associated Press

The longest and broadest heat wave of 1940 reached a new crest yesterday (Wednesday).

Previous high temperature records for the season were shattered at many points in the midwest and no general relief was in prospect.

The total of deaths attributed directly and indirectly to the sultry spell—now eight days old in some prairie states—was increased to 286. These included ninety-six heat fatalities and 184 drownings.

Among the new marks for the summer were: Chicago, 101; Milwaukee, 100; Detroit and Springfield, Ill., 98; Indianapolis, 95. On Ohio's record-breaking list were: Cincinnati, 97.2; Youngstown, 96; Dayton, 95; Columbus, 94.8; Toledo, 94.

Hot In Nebraska

Readings of 104 or more were registered across Nebraska.

The Mercury coulmn also moved toward the top of temperatures in these places: Athays, Kans., 110; Overton, Neb., 109; Lincoln, Neb., 108; Logan and Clarion, Iowa, 104; Joliet and Aurora, Ill., 102; Rockford, Ill., La Porte, Ind., Sandusky, O., and Des Moines, 100.

A half dozen deaths were reported in Chicago an the sixth consecutive day of temperatures of more than ninety degrees. Citizens there were using nine carloads of lemons and limes a day, the daily attendance at beaches averaged 1,000,000. The water workes pumped 1,366,950,000 gallons in a twenty-four hour period—an all-time peak.

Aridity Causes Alarm

Aridity provoked growing concern in some farm areas. Topeka, Kan., checked off its thirty-first day without measurable rainfall. The New Jersey Department of Agriculture reported that drought had caused serious damage to potato, truck, and hay crops and pastures. Reports that corn leaves were withering lifted prices of that commidity 1 1-4 to 2 5-8 cents on the Chicago board of trade. heat advanced, too.

Thunder showers were forecast for the Ohio valley region, the eastern parts of the Dakotas, Minnesota, upper Michigan and northern Wisconsin, but no widespread rain was in sight.

New York, New England and some other sections of the east enjoyed temperatures in the 70's and 80's.

British Eastern Fleet Leaves Singapore

BERLIN, July 24 (AP) by radio—The British far eastern fleet has left Singapore, either for the Mediterranean or the African coast, the German radio said today, quoting as its source a Domei (Japanese news agency) dispatch from Shanghai.

The German radio said one of the biggest units of the fleet, the aircraft carrier eable of 22,600 tons, and several other ships have been withdrawn from patrol service at Singapore.

An amendment to the Neutrality Law to permit U. S. ships to bring British refugee children to this country was introduced in the House by Rep. Thomas C. Hennings, of Missouri. The present law prevents American ships from going into the combat zone.

Burke Organizing Anti-Third Term Democrats of U. S.

Many Join Movement To Support Willkie for President

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP) — Senator Burke (D-Neb) said he was forming an organization to oppose a third term for President Roosevelt while Former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri announced in Kansas City that a "flood of applications for participation" in an anti-third term meeting scheduled for tomorrow in Chicago had led him to postpone the session. A larger one will be held later, he said.

The Republican National Committee made public a telegram from Mrs. Edwin T. Meredith of Des Moines, wife of the secretary of agriculture in the Wilson administration, endorsing Wendell Willkie, and a statement from Dr. F. L. Gullickson, Wisconsin Republican chairman, predicting a Republican "sweep" in his state.

In connection with President Roosevelt's press conference criticism yesterday of John W. Hanes, who has announced for Willkie, the Republican Committee distributed the letter Mr. Roosevelt wrote Hanes Dec. 22 when he resigned as undersecretary of the treasury.

Once Praised Hanes

It quoted the president as expressing to Hanes "my deep and sincere gratitude for the conscientious, loyal and able service you have rendered to the government and to this administration."

Candidate Very Proud of Class of Democrats Supporting Him

SALT LAKE CITY, July 24 (AP) — Wendell L. Willkie compared today's "troublous times" with those which led the Mormons to come to Utah ninety-three years ago and added "the American way of life is going to come through."

Attending a pioneer celebration at the Salt Lake rodeo grounds, he told the crowd:

"We are in troublous times as many have said. The Democratic way of life is on test throughout the world. Thoughtful people are disturbed. But, when we remember that, in a similar period ninety-three years ago your ancestors came to this area and made a civilization, I know we can believe that the American way of life is going to come through this time."

Before going to the rodeo Mr. and Mrs. Willkie visited Heber J. Grant, aged president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, who wished him success in his campaign.

Proud of Supporters

At a press conference in his hotel suite earlier in the day Willkie said he was "very proud of the type of Democrats" supporting him.

He added that President Roosevelt, in criticizing Democrats who have announced their support of the Republican candidate "is climbing down just slightly from his lofty pedestal."

Rep. Henry Dworshak, Idaho Republican, attended the press conference and said he had been "amazed at the widespread sentiment for Willkie not only among Republicans but among Democrats" in Idaho.

Willkie said that numerous additional Democrats would come out in his support.

Backed by Clubwomen

He made public a telegram from F. T. Becks of Birmingham, Ala., saying that "Mable Jones West, president Alabama Women's Democratic club, endorsed you and repudiated New Deal third termers."

The nominee and Mrs. Willkie were seated in the center of the reviewing stand as the parade passed.

A few seats away was Sen. King (D-Utah) who came over to greet the Willkies.

In response to questions, King told reporters it was a "stupid question" to ask whether he might support the Republican.

"Of course not," he added.

Roosevelt Leaves For Capitol To Talk with Farley

Will also Discuss His Campaign Plans with Secretary Wallace

HYDE PARK, N. Y., July 24 (AP)—President Roosevelt left for Washington by special train today to discuss campaign maneuvers with Henry A. Wallace tomorrow—their first conference since the Democratic convention.

Mr. Roosevelt already has outlined a routine calling for alternate weekends here and on Potomac river cruises so he can keep his hand on the controls of the defense program.

Secretary Wallace, therefore, may take over the job of stumping the country, perhaps concentrating on the agricultural areas.

The controversy over Wallace's intention to remain head of the agricultural department during the campaign brought no reaction from White House spokesmen.

Mr. Roosevelt said yesterday he presumed Wallace would keep his cabinet position and it was understood that he felt Herbert Hoover had set a precedent for that procedure by not resigning immediately as Secretary of Commerce

Men with Dependents Exempted From Compulsory Army Training

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP) — Men with dependents were assured today that they would not be drafted for military training in time of peace under the army's conscription program, while the Senate Military Committee virtually decided to exempt "conscientious objectors" from combat training.

The assurance to men with dependents was given by Brig. Gen. William E. Shedd, assistant chief of staff, while he was testifying before the House Military Committee in support of the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory training bill. This measure was approved with revisions by the Senate committee yesterday.

Gen. Shedd also said that provision had been made to place in a "deferred" classification all men "essential to industry."

Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex) of the Senate committee, in talking to reporters, defined a "conscientious objector" as one who could prove that he was opposed to war on religious grounds.

Sheppard explained, however, that while "conscientious objectors" would not be required to take combat training, they would be subject to other forms of defense service.

Selection of draftees, Sheppard said, would be made on the basis of those who could "best afford to go." When a reporter asked if this might not result in obtaining most o. the trainees from the ranks of the poor and jobless, Sheppard replied that some of the "well-to-do" also were unemployed.

Gen. Shedd's observation on men with dependents was in reply to a question on how the war depart-

34 Tobacco Companies Are Charged With Price Fixing and Conspiracy

Thirty-Three Individuals Also Accused by Federal Prosecutor

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 24 (AP)—The federal government today capped a two-year investigation of the nation's billion dollar tobacco industry with criminal charges of price fixing and monopoly against thirty-four tobacco companies and thirty-three individuals.

The department of justice complaint, filed in federal court here, named eight major tobacco manufacturing and handling firms, including the "big four"—American Tobacco Company, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company and P. Lorillard Company.

Conspiracy Charged

Practices "which have been deliberately designed to dominate and dictate terms" both to growers of tobacco and to wholesalers and retailers of tobacco products were among the department's accusations of conspiracy.

The defendant corporations withheld immediate comment.

They are charged with violation of the Sherman act on four counts, each of which carries a maximum penalty, upon conviction, of one year's imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

The complaint, filed by United States District Attorney John T. Metcalf as a criminal information which those accused must answer September 9, asserts that in some years the total combined income of the Reynolds, Liggett & Myers and American Companies "equalled or exceeded the entire farm value of the tobacco crop of the United States."

Control of Industry

Lexington is the largest burley tobacco market in the world.

The practices of the defendants, the complaint said, "had the effect of permitting a few companies to attain control of a bottle-neck in a great industry through which a major farm commodity, on which several millions are dependent, must pass."

Rumania Seizes Huge Oil Company To Help Germany

Pro-Nazi Government Takes Drastic Action at Bucharest

BUCHAREST, July 24 (AP)—Rumania's pro-Nazi government took over operation of the country's largest oil company tonight, thereby placing huge stocks of British-produced petroleum within reach of Germany's mechanized forces.

Orders placing the $15,000,000 Astra-Romana Corporation under a national oil commissioner with full powers over production and distribution came a few hours before the departure of Premier Gigurtu and Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop at Salzburg.

A communique announced that Gigurtu and Manoilescu would proceed directly to Rome for conversations with Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano after meeting Hitler and von Ribbentrop.

An officially inspired editorial in the government-controlled press tomorrow will say that the "basic idea" of these visits is the "preservation of peace in the Balkans and Danube basin x x x. Rumania's ties with Germany and Italy will become ever stronger."

Large quantities of oil in storage will become available to Germany under the new arrangement. Because of previous refusal of British and Dutch companies to ship oil to Germany and because of the closure of the Mediterranean export route by Italy's entrance into the war, vast oil stores have accumulated.

The Astra-Romana has the largest reserves of any company

Summary of War News

By The Associated Press

An American-made dive bombing plane captured by Germany from France was reported shot down yesterday (Wednesday) by British fighter planes in a massed air battle over the Thamese estuary as Britain's defenders smashed hard at the Nazi military might in the air and at sea.

For the first time since France fell the British air ministry said that American-made planes, described as "Chance Vought 156's" were met in German formations by British fighters.

The clash over the Thames involved at least sixty British and German warplanes and climaxed a day which saw aerial fights and anti-aircraft defense action in scattered parts of the island kingdom.

The British said at least twelve German bombers were shot down in various aerial engagements yesterday, six of them when a force of fighter planes pounced upon the German bombers over the Thames estuary and routed them after a terrific fight. Two British fighters were lost.

In the Near Sast, planes which flew in from the southeast bombed Haifa, port city in British-mandated Palestine, and dropped from eighty to 100 bombs. An official report said forty-six civilians were killed and eighty-eight wounded.

For weeks, speculation on Hitler's

Otto Strasser Accused of Organizing Munich Bomb Plot

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER

BERLIN, July 24 (AP)—Otto Strasser, archfoe of Naziism whom Heinri Himmler has accused of organizing the Munich bomb plot against Adolf Hitler's life, and Herschel Grynszpan, the young German-Polish Jew whose act of assasination precipitated the November, 1938, anti-Semetic riots in Germany, have fallen into Nazi hands in Paris, a well-informed German told me today.

Autorities declined comment, but my informant was in France at the time the Germans took over.

He said Grynszpan was found in La Sante prison, awaiting trial for killing Ernst Vom Rath, a German diplomat, in the latter's Paris office Nov. 7, 1938. He now is held for trial by German authorities on a murder charge. Another anti-Nazi of note, the author Hermann Rauschning, was said to have escaped to London.

Otto Strasser probably has attacked the Nazi cause more persistently than any other living man.

Broke with Hitler

A founder of the Nazi party, he broke with Hitler in 1930 and formed an opposition "black front." His brother, Gregor, stayed with Hitler and died in the 1934 blood purge.

Strasser fled to country after country, always waging his campaign. His black front newspaper, "Deutsche Revolution," was smuggled into Germany by the thousands of copies; his secret radio station dinned forbidden propaganda into German ears. He was expelled from Greece and Switzerland and jailed in Czecho-Slovakia, but he always got away. Finally he entered France, an unobtrusive figure in dingy black.

Accused Strasser

After Hitler had narowly escaped death in the Burgerbrauhaus explosion in Munich last Nov. 8 the chief of the Gestapo, Heinrich Himmler, declared that Strasser had organized the plot, helped with money from the British intelligence service.

Strasser charged that Himmler himself, had organized the bomb plot.

Violent anti-Jewish disorders swept Germany the day after Grynszpan shot vom Rath in Paris. Jewish stores were smashed and looted in many cities and synagogues were burned. German Jewry was assessed $400,000,000 in collective fines.

Grynszpan's trial was delayed, although his aunt and uncle received prison sentences for sheltering him. After the war started the youth tried without success to get out of prison to join the French army, to "kill some more Germans."

Britain May Get 3,000 American Planes a Month

Lord Beaverbrook Reveals Gigantic Production Plan

LONDON, July 24 (AP)—Lord Beaverbrook, minister for aviation production, declared in a broadcast tonight that the United States will approve a production plan to supply Great Britain with 3,000 planes a month.

He said, moveover, that since his ministry was formed May 14 Britain had purchased 12,115 airplane engines from the United States.

Lord Beaverbrook's announcement would indicate either a scheme for remarkable acceleration of American aircraft production, far beyond the pace suggested after President Roosevelt's call for 50,000 planes last May, or merely a long-range program looking ahead six to eight years.

Present U. S. airplane production is not more than 600 machines a month. One well-known engineering authority has estimated that American factories cannot produce 3,000 planes a month until the spring of 1944.

Lord Beaverbrook said Morris Willson, head of the British aircraft purchasing mission in the United States, just had informed

Nazis Strike Hard at British Seaports and Ships in the Channel

Planes Manufactured in This Country and Captured from French Seen Twice in Latest Raids

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 25, (Wednesday)—An American-made dive bomber seized by the Germans from the French was shot down yesterday and another was damaged by British spitfires in fierce bomb raid battles which cost the Nazis twelve planes.

At least two raiders were brought down by coastal anti-aircraft guns and the rest by fighting planes as the raiders struck hard at England ports and sea lanes all day long.

Counter-punching British air and sea forces smashed back at boats and take-off points the Germans are spreading hastily along the eastern North Sea in "pre-invasion" readiness.

The British air ministry, claiming success often against heavy odds for Britain's fast little Spitfires, said that American-made planes, identified as "Chance Vought 156's" were encountered at least twice in the German raiding formations.

The American planes were the first of the wartime deliveries to France reported seen in action against England.

The British claimed that at least three of the fighter escort were downed in the attacks to get at the bombing planes. The first American plane was described as swirling into a spin and plunging into the sea. The second's wing was damaged badly by gunfire.

Again and again throughout the day the "barrier line" of highflying British defense planes dived into dogfights to drive waves of German Heinkel, Dornier and Junkers bombers and Messerschmitt fighters from attacks on ship convoys.

Beat Off Nazi Attacks

"Since the small hours of the morning (Wednesday)," the air ministry said, "Spitfires and anti-aircraft guns have been beating off the attacks of German bombers, fighters and mine laying aircraft on ships and shipping. Up to the early evening they were still successfully destroying and beating off the enemy."

Flying and fighting conditions were poor. Planes dodged in and out of heavy clouds and struck through heavy wind and thunderstorms.

One Messershmitt attacked over the sea contained a rubber dignhy.

Escapes in Rubber Boat

Nazi Propaganda Stresses Coming Total Onslaught

Berlin Denounces British Leaders as a "Pack of Criminals"

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, July 24 — The voice of German propaganda rose tonight above the roar of bombers over England in intense, psychological preparation for what the Reich expects to be the total onslaught.

The air force, deadly striking arm of this prelude to the real battle for Britain, struck with new fury at Britain and her sea borne commerce.

Even as new German bombs fell, however, dispatches from German-occupied Holland said five persons were killed and many injured last night in a British air raid on Amersfort, heart of the invaded Dutch defense system, with two others killed at a town north of Amsterdam.

Of Germany's own air exploits, the high command reported 31,000 tons of British commercial shipping destroyed in the last forty-eight hours and a British submarine, mine sweeper and two patrol boats sunk.

Denounce Aristocracy

Vitriolic denunciation of the British ruling class poured into the ears of radio listeners. The official broadcaster excoriated England's leaders as "vermin equipped with umbrellas and top-hats," a "pack of criminals."

These "plutocrats", he said, were a voracious rabble who sent their children to Canada while millions of others suffered from malnutrition.

American Republics Plan Drive To Stamp Out "Fifth Columnists"

By J. C. STARK

HAVANA, July 24 (AP) — Firm measures to stamp out "fifth column" activities by foreign diplomatic agents or other persons and knit hemisphere defenses were urgently advanced tonight by foreign ministers of the American republics.

Proposals before the peace preservation committee headed by Secretary of State Cordell Hull included an investigation of diplomatic and consular agents and possible limitation of their immunity privileges.

Simultaneously Cuba went a step ahead of the United States proposal to establish a "collective trusteeship" over western colonies of Europeannations in the event they are threatened with acquisition by another non-American state.

Tighter immigration control and close surveillance of aliens within American nations along the lines taken recently in the United States also were believed under consideration.

Means of establishing unified action among the twenty-one American republics to resist any foreign efforts to influence American policies were studied.

An example cited was a recent German note to Central American republics described as seeking to influence them against Havana conference action which might be considered unfriendly toward Germany.

Secretary Hull and other members of a subcommittee were busy drafting proposals dealing with European possessions in this hemisphere into one document. Those proposals were said to conform

Otto Strasser Accused of Organizing Munich Bomb Plot

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER

BERLIN, July 24 (AP)—Otto Strasser, archfoe of Naziism whom Heinri Himmler has accused of organizing the Munich bomb plot against Adolf Hitler's life, and Herschel Grynszpan, the young German-Polish Jew whose act of assasination precipitated the November, 1938, anti-Semetic riots in Germany, have fallen into Nazi hands in Paris, a well-informed German told me today.

Autorities declined comment, but my informant was in France at the time the Germans took over.

He said Grynszpan was found in La Sante prison, awaiting trial for killing Ernst Vom Rath, a German diplomat, in the latter's Paris office Nov. 7, 1938. He now is held for trial by German authorities on a murder charge. Another anti-Nazi of note, the author Hermann Rauschning, was said to have escaped to London.

Otto Strasser probably has attacked the Nazi cause more persistently than any other living man.

Broke with Hitler

A founder of the Nazi party, he broke with Hitler in 1930 and formed an opposition "black front." His brother, Gregor, stayed with Hitler and died in the 1934 blood purge.

Strasser fled to country after country, always waging his campaign. His black front newspaper, "Deutsche Revolution," was smuggled into Germany by the thousands of copies; his secret radio station dinned forbidden propaganda into German ears. He was expelled from Greece and Switzerland and jailed in Czecho-Slovakia, but he always got away. Finally he entered France, an unobtrusive figure in dingy black.

Accused Strasser

After Hitler had narowly escaped death in the Burgerbrauhaus explosion in Munich last Nov. 8 the chief of the Gestapo, Heinrich Himmler, declared that Strasser had organized the plot, helped with money from the British intelligence service.

Strasser charged that Himmler, himself, had organized the bomb plot.

Violent anti-Jewish disorders swept Germany the day after Grynszpan shot vom Rath in Paris. Jewish stores were smashed and looted in many cities and synagogues were burned. German Jewry was assessed $400,000,000 in collective fines.

Grynszpan's trial was delayed, although his aunt and uncle received prison sentences for sheltering him. After the war started the youth tried without success to get out of prison to join the French army, to "kill some more Germans."

Britain May Get 3,000 American Planes a Month

Lord Beaverbrook Reveals Gigantic Production Plan

LONDON, July 24 (AP)—Lord Beaverbrook, minister for aviation production, declared in a broadcast tonight that the United States will approve a production plan to supply Great Britain with 3,000 planes a month.

He said, moveover, that since his ministry was formed May 14 Britain had purchased 12,115 airplane engines from the United States.

Lord Beaverbrook's announcement would indicate either a scheme for remarkable acceleration of American aircraft production, far beyond the pace suggested after President Roosevelt's call for 50,000 planes last May, or merely a long-range program looking ahead six to eight years.

Present U. S. airplane production is not more than 600 machines a month. One well-known engineering authority has estimated that American factories cannot produce 3,000 planes a month until the spring of 1944.

Lord Beaverbrook said Morris Willson, head of the British aircraft purchasing mission in the United States, just had informed

Planes Manufactured in This Country and Captured from French Seen Twice in Latest Raids

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 25, (Wednesday)—An American-made dive bomber seized by the Germans from the French was shot down yesterday and another was damaged by British spitfires in fierce bomb raid battles which cost the Nazis twelve planes.

At least two raiders were brought down by coastal anti-aircraft guns and the rest by fighting planes as the raiders struck hard at England ports and sea lanes all day long.

Counter-punching British air and sea forces smashed back at boats and take-off points the Germans are spreading hastily along the eastern North Sea in "pre-invasion" readiness.

The British air ministry, claiming success often against heavy odds for Britain's fast little Spitfires, said that American-made planes, identified as "Chance Vought 156's" were encountered at least twice in the German raiding formations.

The American planes were the first of the wartime deliveries to France reported seen in action against England.

The British claimed that at least three of the fighter escort were downed in the attacks to get at the bombing planes. The first American plane was described as swirling into a spin and plunging into the sea. The second's wing was damaged badly by gunfire.

Again and again throughout the day the "barrier line" of highflying British defense planes dived into dogfights to drive waves of German Heinkel, Dornier and Junkers bombers and Messerschmitt fighters from attacks on ship convoys.

Beat Off Nazi Attacks

"Since the small hours of the morning (Wednesday)," the air ministry said, "Spitfires and anti-aircraft guns have been beating off the attacks of German bombers, fighters and mine laying aircraft on ships and shipping. Up to the early evening they were still successfully destroying and beating off the enemy."

Flying and fighting conditions were poor. Planes dodged in and out of heavy clouds and struck through heavy wind and thunderstorms.

One Messershmitt attacked over the sea contained a rubber dignhy.

Nazi Propaganda Stresses Coming Total Onslaught

Berlin Denounces British Leaders as a "Pack of Criminals"

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, July 24 — The voice of German propaganda rose tonight above the roar of bombers over England in intense, psychological preparation for what the Reich expects to be the total onslaught.

The air force, deadly striking arm of this prelude to the real battle for Britain, struck with new fury at Britain and her sea borne commerce.

Even as new German bombs fell, however, dispatches from German-occupied Holland said five persons were killed and many injured last night in a British air raid on Amersfort, heart of the invaded Dutch defense system, with two others killed at a town north of Amsterdam.

Of Germany's own air exploits, the high command reported 31,000 tons of British commercial shipping destroyed in the last forty-eight hours and a British submarine, mine sweeper and two patrol boats sunk.

Denounce Aristocracy

Vitriolic denunciation of the British ruling class poured into the ears of radio listeners. The official broadcaster excoriated England's leaders as "vermin equipped with umbrellas and top-hats," a "pack of criminals."

These "plutocrats", he said, were a voracious rabble who sent their children to Canada while millions of others suffered from malnutrition.

The official broadcaster likened

Wearing a similar button was Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, wife of the former New York governor whose campaign as Democratic presidential nominee Raskob conducted in 1938.

Men with Dependents Exempted From Compulsory Army Training

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP) — Men with dependents were assured today that they would not be drafted for military training in time of peace under the army's conscription program, while the Senate Military Committee virtually decided to exempt "conscientious objectors" from combat training.

The assurance to men with dependents was given by Brig. Gen. William E. Shedd, assistant chief of staff, while he was testifying before the House Military Committee in support of the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory training bill. This measure was approved with revisions by the Senate committee yesterday.

Gen. Shedd also said that provision had been made to place in a "deferred" classification all men "essential to industry."

Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex) of the Senate committee, in talking to reporters, defined a "conscientious objector" as one who could prove that he was opposed to war on religious grounds.

Sheppard explained, however, that while "conscientious objectors" would not be required to take combat training, they would be subject to other forms of defense service.

Selection of draftees, Sheppard said, would be made on the basis of those who could "best afford to go." When a reporter asked if this might not result in obtaining most o. the trainees from the ranks of the poor and jobless, Sheppard replied that some of the "well-to-do" also were unemployed.

Gen. Shedd's observation on men with dependents was in reply to a question on how the war depart-

By J. C. STARK

HAVANA, July 24 (AP) — Firm measures to stamp out "fifth columnn" activities by foreign diplomatic agents or other persons and knit hemisphere defenses were urgently advanced tonight by foreign ministers of the American republics.

Proposals before the peace preservation committee headed by Secretary of State Cordell Hull included an investigation of diplomatic and consular agents and possible limitation of their immunity privileges.

Simultaneously Cuba went a step ahead of the United States proposal to establish a "collective trusteeship" over western colonies of Europeannations in the event they are threatened with acquisition by another non-American state.

Tighter immigration control and close surveillance of aliens within American nations along the lines taken recently in the United States also were believed under consideration.

Means of establishing unified action among the twenty-one American republics to resist any foreign efforts to influence American policies were studied.

An example cited was a recent German note to Central American republics described as seeking to influence them against Havana conference action which might be considered unfriendly toward Germany.

Secretary Hull and other members of a subcommittee were busy drafting proposals dealing with European possessions in this hemisphere into one document. Those proposals were said to conform

Wallis Warfield's First Husband Is Divorced by Wife

Mrs. Norma Reese Johnson Spencer Granted Decree in Calif.

SANTA MONICA, Calif., July 24 (AP)—Mrs. Norma Reese Johnson Spencer was awarded a divorce today from Commander Earl Winfield Spencer, U. S. navy, retired, after she testified the first husband of the Duchess of Windsor had been guilty of habitual intemperance and cruelty.

Mrs. Spencer, the widow of a Detroit manufacturer whom Spencer married three years ago, said the naval officer went on week-long drunks and that she was forced to lock him out of their home because she feared for her life.

Her daughters by a previous marriage, Mrs. Kethryn Wade and Mrs. Betty Legare, testified that when he became intoxicated, Spencer would speak Chinese.

Mrs. Wade declared that once when she was visiting the Spencer home and her mother was ill in bed, Spencer made improper advances to her. Asked previously about such an occurrence, Spencer had denied it.

Spencer, testifying earlier in support of his plea for a divorce, said that during one of their almost weekly arguments over money Mrs. Spencer lunged at him with a knife. He denied her charges of intemperance, asserting his weekly liquor bill was only $10 and that his wife "drank as much of it as I did."

Superior Judge Orlando H. Rhodes denied Mrs. Spencer's petition for $100 a month alimony but gave her title to the family automobile. She testified her income last year was "about $4,200."

Spencer married Wallis Warfield, now the wife of former King Edward VIII of England, twenty-three years ago. It was while they were living at Coronado, Calif., that she met the then Prince of Wales. They were divorced in 1927 and each remarried twice.

Claim French Line Is Out of Business

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP)—An official German radio announcement heard tonight by NBC said the French Line, operators of the great liner Normandie and others, "has ceased to exist."

"The announcement said the line was ceasing to operate, effective today, because it has no more ships to carry on business. Most of the line's ships were said to have been seized by the British.

The Normandie has been in the New York harbor since the start of war. Britain has announced she would seize any French merchant ships found at sea.

The French government announced yesterday at Vichy that the future French merchant marine would be modernized and that under the new policy large, elaborate liners would be "renounced."

Delegate Asks Probe Of Jones's Office

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 24 (AP)—Governor O'Conor said late today he had not received a formal request from Delegate John C. Luber for an investigation of the state employment commissioner's office.

Luber had announced earlier in Baltimore that he had written O'Conor asking an official inquiry into allegations of discrimination and arbitrary methods in the department, headed by Commissioner Harry C. Jones.

The governor declined to comment on Luber's statement and said he contemplated no action in the matter until it came before him officially.

Luber said he wished to learn if all applicants for state jobs are given an equal opportunity. He asserted he had found a number of circumstances indicating they did not.

"I think it is high thime for you to appoint an investigation committee or to designate the state auditor to check into the facts and let the people of Maryland know the truth," the legislator wrote O'Conor.

ment proposed to protect a married man, subject to a year of military training, if he were making payments on a home or life insurance.

Would Protect Jobs

After saying that "never in peacetime" would such persons be required to serve, Shedd proposed that the legislation contain a declaration that employes drafted for the service be given their jobs back at the expiration of training. This prompted Rep. Wadsworth (R-NY) to offer an amendment providing that draftees be issued certificates upon completion of service and declaring that men with such certificates "ought to be re-employed" unless the "employers' circumstances" had changed so that re-employment was impossible.

Secretary of the Navy Knox, in discussing defense preparations, told a press conference that a plan was under consideration to move skilled workers from the interior to shipbuilding centers.

Knox said that he and Sidney Hillman, a National Defense Commissioner, believed there would be a shortage of certain types of ship workers.

blitzkrieg against England has mentioned a large force of speedy, motor torpedo boats which would protect troops being ferried across the channel. Now, with the entire kingdom momentarily awaiting the attack, the British announced that one British motor torpedo boat put to flight six German torpedo boats in a pre-dawn engagement in the channel. The admiralty said it was thought casualties were inflicted.

Nazis Prepare To Strike

Also figuring in the blitzkrieg speculation have been reported fleets of auxiliary vessels—and yesterday, the British said, planes of the fleet air arm spotted a German naval concentration guarding an auxiliary vessel in the eastern North Sea. Aerial torpedoes were loosed and the admiralty said one escort ship was hit.

Britain moved to strengthen her stronghold at Gibraltar, disembarking Canadian and Australian troops at the rock along with foodstuffs and war supplies.

While Germany's propaganda was intensified to prepare the Reich for the coming assault on Britain, the Nazi air force told of destroying 31,000 tons of British commercial shipping in the last forty-eight hours, and of sinking a British submarine, mine sweeper and two patrol boats.

Britain's minister for aviation production, Lord Beaverbrook, told the empire help was coming from the United States. He said the United States would supply Great Britain with 3,000 planes a month and that since May 14 Britain had purchased 12,115 airplane engines from the U. S.

At a meeting of pan-American foreign ministers and their representatives in Havana, firm measures to stamp out "fifth column" activities by foreign diplomatic agents or other persons and to build up hemisphere defenses were urgently advocated.

Rumania Aids Germany

Rumania placed more oil near the reach of the German military machine by taking over operation of the $15,000,000 Astra-Romana corporation, Rumania's largest oil company. Orders giving the Rumanian oil commissioner full power over production and distribution of that British-owned corporation were issued shortly before Rumania's premier and foreign minister left for a conference with Adolf Hitler and the Reich's foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, Friday.

Hungarians are hopeful that their country might get a slice of Transylvania out of the Rumanian-German conference. Hungary has long demanded return of the province of Transylvania, which she lost in post-world war settlements.

Allegany To Receive $54,760 To Pay for Defense Training

Allegany county will receive a portion of the $54,760 which this week is being turned over to the State Department of Education by the Federal government to defray expenses incurred so far in connection with the training of workers to fill jobs in expanding defense industries, according to John J. Seidel, State director of vocational training.

Seidel told Dr. Albert S. Cook, state superintendent of schools, that 2,290 workers are receiving training and that the total cost of their instructors, to be completed by September 15, will be $85,000. By September plans for a second program will be under way, Mr. Seidel said, and it will be financed with the remainder of the $350,000 set aside for Maryland training throughout the year.

The check for $54,760 will be used to pay the first month's salaries of the 100 instructors and to defray the cost of tools and supplies.

The report shows that Allegany county has nine vocational training classes and 171 trainees.

generally with Secretary Hull's idea of a collective trusteeship over any imperilled colony, but there were minor divergencies.

Cuba proposed that any occupied colony should be given the ultimate choice of independenc or annexation to an American nation.

This apparently conflicted with Secretary Hull's declaration Monday that there was no thought of absorbing any of these territories or of permitting any nation to acquire a "special interest" in them.

Economic proposals to implement Secretary Hull's outlined methods of bolstering economy were studied closely by experts of various delegations.

Plan More Lending Power

Increased lending power and freedom of action on loans, recommended for the Import-Export Bank by President Roosevelt, was understood to figure largely in the United States plans for dealing with the export surpluses problem.

George S. Messersmith, U. S. Ambassador to Cuba, issued another warning before the International Lions convention today of the "insidious attack on the unity, security and peace of the American republics."

Already, he said, this attack had developed into direct efforts by European states "to interfere with the internal policy of American states."

Declaring the "security and peace which we have so long enjoyed is now definitely and imminently threatened," Messersmith warned Latin American nations against adopting an "egotistic attitude" which weakens the structure of defense and security of this hemisphere as a whole."

British Prepare To Defend Gibraltar

LA LINEA, Spain, July 24 (AP)—Persons returning from Gibraltar today said the British evidently were preparing to resist all attacks and were not overlooking the possibility of a siege by land and sea.

Transports landed Canadian and Australian reinforcements at the great fortress today, and also brought quantities of foodstuffs, anti-aircraft guns, planes, and light and heavy artillery.

In spite of pleas for civilians to leave the settlement to make way for soldiers, there were still about 9,000 left today.

A number of wealthy residents of Gibraltar are known to have gone to Madeira, others to South Africa and Canada.

Nazis Strike

In the day's biggest air battle a patroling squadron of spitfires, 7,000 feet up, gave a flight of raiders heading toward the thames estuary, water-gate to London.

Eighteen bombers in "V" formations of three with a large escort of fighters came into view through a heavy rain.

The spitfires dived on them from the rear and tangled in an engagement of at least sixty planes.

While night bombers of bomber and coastal commands roared home from more blanket night raids on the Hitler-held continent, British planes and ships struck these blows at the sea-borne forces which Nazi Germany is massing in the waters around England:

One Against Six

1. A lone British motor torpedo boat picked a fight with six German torpedo boats in the channel, put them to flight and, in the darkness before dawn, put one out of action. "It is thought," said the admiralty, "that casualties were inflicted on antother."

2. Swordfish "spotter" planes of the fleet air arm, flying far into the eastern North Sea, located a German naval concentration guarding an auxiliary vessel. In the dawn, the planes sent torpedoes screaming at the group. The admiralty said an escort vessel of the 600-ton Konigin Luise type, of which Germany has ten, was hit by one torpedo.

There were no British casualties in either engagement.

Sixty or more planes, German and British, tangled in a flaming battle high over the Thames estuary when Nazi raiders attempted to repeat an earlier attack in which they had dropped 100 or more bombs at a merchant convoy.

An observer said the planes were so thick he could not distinguish friend from foe, as German bombers began falling out of the air, and the rest streaked for home across the English channel.

The British said twelve Germans were shot down over England today, six in the Thames fight, and that the convoy apparently escaped damage. Two British fighters were lost.

Five British Ships Sunk

The German high command, in a communique relayed here, said, however, that five merchant ships in the convoy were sunk and another set afire.

This evening's cold and terse British account of last night's raids on Germany and the neighboring nations which she dominates listed the following as bombed:

Three airplane factories Gotha, Kassel, Wenzendorf).

Three oil depots (Hamburg, Gelsenkirchen and Flushing).

Twelve airdromes and numerous railways, anti-aircraft positions and freight yards.

Patrol boats in Dunkerque harbor.

Docks at Amsterdam.

A German flying boat was shot down off Scotland.

Only one British plane was acknowledged lost.

Stung by repeated Italian raids on Gibraltar, Malta and Alexandria, the British near eastern air command sent new raider waves out to destroy or cripple Italian sea and air power.

Submarines Attacked

Bombing planes were reported in a Cairo, Egypt, communique to have scored direct hits on a jetty at Tobruk, Libya, at which several submarines were tied up.

(The Italians announced that Rome's anti-aircraft batteries last night opened up precautionary barrages on two occasions as a result of "reports" from Gaeta, naval base near Naples, only 75 miles from the capital. The Italians said no bombs were dropped but that several persons were injured by flying fragments from their own shells.)

The Cairo command also reported progress against the beleaguered Italian fort of Capuzzo, near Tobruk.

For fifteen days the British, since they shut off the fort's water supply, have been cutting up relief columns attempting to reach the besieged fort. Today's communique said the Italians had suffered further losses of motor trucks and guns.

Flying boats on patrol of the Mediterranean also attacked an Italian convoy and apparently damaged two ships, it was reported.

Canadian and Australian reinforcements were landed to guard Gibraltar.

At home, several houses were shattered when a raider, pursued by fighters, dumped its bombs over a town on the southeast coast, but no serious casualties were reported.

Southwest Scotland also was hit by bombs and several buildings were damaged.

A woman in northeast England was wounded by machine-gun bullets fired from another plane.

O'Conor May Head Md. Roosevelt Forces

BALTIMORE, July 24 (AP) — The Sun said tonight that Governor O'Conor appeared as the "most likely" candidate for the job of handling the third-term campaign of President Roosevelt in Maryland.

The chief executive, through his friends, was understood to be in a "receptive" mood if Maryland Democratic leaders should choose him as head of the State Campaign Committee, the newspaper declared.

The following party leaders, The Sun observed, will meet within ten days or two weeks to name the campaign chairman:

Senator Tydings and Radcliffe; W. Preston Lane, state national committeeman; Howard Bruce, former national committeeman; Mayor Howard Jackson of Baltimore; E. Broke Lee, Montgomery county party leader; Philip B. Perlman, Baltimore attorney, and Governor O'Conor.

CHICAGO — Secretary Wallace said in a speech that agriculture was better prepared for war than any other section of American life. He disclosed to reporters that the speech he prepared for the Democratic convention but did not deliver contained a plea for party unity and a tribute to James A. Farley.

James Roosevelt, the president's eldest son, said in an interview that he probably would do some campaigning for his father "but with my investments running into a good many dollars I will have to stick pretty close to business."

SPARTANBURG, S. C.—Senator Byrnes (D-SC) said he had asked party leaders to eliminate him from consideration for the post of Democratic National chairman, from which Farley is to resign next month.

Lewis Silent on President

WASHINGTON — John L. Lewis, chairman of labor's Non-Partisan League and CIO chief, directed league officials to concentrate on the Congressional campaigns in a letter which gave no indication of his stand on the presidential nominees.

"Under the guise of spurious ideals, the great gains made by labor are today threatened as never before," Lewis wrote. "Regardless of who may be the next president of the United States, we are confronted with this fact: if the men and women who are elected to the halls of Congress cannot be depended upon to support the welfare of the people through legislation, no man in however high an office can or will give labor what it needs."

Former French Leaders Facing Punishment by Petain Regime

VICHY, France, July 24 (AP)—The authoratarian regime of conquered France, in a dramatic statement declaring "on the day of their trial our dead will be present among the accusers," solemnly pledged punishment tonight for the men who "plunged our country into war."

Speaking in the name of the government of Marshal Philippe Petain, Minister of Interior Adrien Marquet denounced in a nationwide broadcast the men he termed responsible for declaring war against Germany and assured his hearers the guilty soon would be tried.

His address came shortly after it was revealed that former premier Daladier and sixteen other former government leaders or members of Parliament were confined to Marseille.

Dramatically the minister exclaimed:

Promises Punishment

"In the name of justice those responsible for so much political ineptness and military ignorance will be punished."

He described the men who must be punished as "those who plunged our country into war at a time when it was not prepared to fight."

When the German army attacked, he said, "a spent political, economic and social organization collapsed over your heads.

"You have lived on lies. The hour of truth now has sounded."

Marquet frankly admitted there is more order now in the occupied zone than in the unoccupied. This will be rectified, he promised, when the throngs of refugees have been returned to their homes.

He estimated the refugees in the unoccupied area at 1,500,000 Belgians and 4,000,000 French.

Urges Cooperation

Pointing out that cooperation is "indispensable" in repatriation, he said Germany's decisions are based on requirements of her war with England and that the French and German points of view must be reconciled.

Daladier and the others facing trial were confined to Marseille "pending investigation" when they arrived yesterday from French Morocco where they had gone June 20, two days before the signing of the armistice.

"Mass Migration" of British Children Soon

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP) — The United States committee for the care of European children announced today that London developments had cleared the way for an immediate "mass migration" of English children — rich and poor alike — to this country.

Cablegrams said that space for 1,000 children had been allotted in ships bound for North American ports within the next few weeks.

Committee Chairman Marshall Field ordered committee representatives in London to make sure that the group would be "a representative cross-section of children, including those of poorer families."

The committee also cleared 1,000 visas in Washington for "unspecified" children and announced they should be issued in London tomorrow.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Five weeks have now elapsed since Prime Minister Winston Churchill proclaimed to parliament the end of the lost battle of France and the beginning of the battle of Britain.

On the latter struggle, he said, depended "the survival of Christian civilization," adding that "Hitler knows he will have to break us in this island (England) or lose the war."

At that moment, five weeks ago, England's peril was obviously more deadly than it is today, yet her heavy-shouldered, sharp-tongued war leader, "contemplating our dangers with a disillusioned eye," saw no reason "for panic or despair."

Battle Odds Changed

Should Churchill recapitulate today the known factors on which his hopes rest he could state Britain's case even more strongly. Five weeks is long enough to have greatly altered the battle odds in vitally important respects.

For one thing, the passage of five weeks without the launching of a total attack on England seems proof positive that the Hitler high command was as much caught napping by the swift disintegration of French resistance as was England. Every military consideration dictated quick attack across the channel to take advantage of the confusion and alarm created in Britain by the lost battles of Flanders and France.

Within two weeks after the German victory in Flanders had culminated in the miraculous escape by sea of more than 350,000 Allied troops, the battle of France had been fought and lost. Hitler's armies did not pause to take breath before they crashed against the Weygand defense line to repeat the break-through tactics that had shattered the Maginot - Meuse defense system.

Germany Loses Chance

The most propitious time for an all-out Nazi attack on England would have been at the moment when France bowed to her conqueror and signed the armistice. If Germany had been ready at that moment to turn on England as she turned on France after Dunkerque, Britain's fate might already have been sealed.

It well may turn out that the very speed with which France was crushed operated to give England time to make the necessary readjustments in her defense system.

Whatever the reason, the fact of the five-week delay is there and with it the fact that Britain is that much better prepared materially and in spirit for what lies ahead of her.

CAPTURES 'CHUTIST

Wife of an English coastal defense officer, Mrs. Daisy Cardwell captured a German parachutist who landed near her house. "I put on my fiercest frown," she says, "pointed to his gun and demanded it." She got it and the invader is now in a prison camp.

French Civilians Must Give Up Arms Or Forfeit Lives

GENEVA, July 24 (AP)—Worried by the disappearance of large quantities of arms during the chaotic days of the armistice, the Petain government at Vichy was reported tonight to have ordered a drive to liquidate a "phantom arsenal" now in the hands of civilians and demobilized soldiers.

Travelers from France reported the Vichy government had ordered all citizens and demobilized soldiers to deliver any arms in their possession to the police or army before July 30. After this date, any civilian found with arms will be subject to the death penalty.

These sources said army leaders fear opposition to the Petain government may arise if Germany's peace terms are hard or food becomes scarce early in the winter months.

Convict Abandons Spree Atop Tower

ATLANTA, July 24 (AP)—A nineteen-hour semi-comical spree atop a federal penitentiary water tower by a convict attempting to avoid return to a Georgia prison camp brought temporarily today the desired result.

Shortly after guard pleas combined with hunger to bring voluntarily to earth twenty-year-old Andrew Jackson Wynne of Savannah, Ga., a board of inquiry was called to decide whether to revoke ninety-four days of "good behavior" time the prisoner had coming from a two-year auto theft sentence.

Meanwhile, the convict was placed in the prison hospital for observation. Warden J. W. Sanford said he suffered no ill effects.

Wynn's release was scheduled today. Warrants were ready to return him to a Georgia work camp from which he escaped in 1937 while serving a four-to-five-year burglary sentence.

Mounting the tower yesterday afternoon, the prisoner waved his shirt and yelled often to a crowd outside prison walls. At times he saw down and beat upon the steel roof with a machinist's hammer he took aloft with him.

Ex-Senator Reed Scores Roosevelt

Former Senator, Now for Willkie Finds President's Memory Poor

KANSAS CITY, July 24 (AP) — James A. Reed, former Democratic senator from Missouri said tonight that if President Roosevelt "has forgotten all my efforts for in in 1932 then his recollections must be as poor as his judgment."

Reed, who has offered to organize independent Democrats to support Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, issued a statement in reply to remarks made by President Roosevelt at a press conference yesterday. The president told reporters Reed was well qualified from experience to lead Democrats opposed to the party's presidential candidate because he had done much the same thing in 1932 and 1936 and perhaps in 1928.

Reed asserted he aided in the campaign of Alfred E. Smith in 1928 and that "I separated from Mr. Roosevelt when he repudiated the principles of the platform of 1932 upon which he was elected."

Of the president's remark that we all remember that sweatshop matter, Reed denied that he had ever been connected with such an enterprise.

"It is true that Mrs. Reed is in business just as Mrs. Roosevelt is in business but any statement to the effect that Mrs. Reed has ever run a sweatshop is infamously false and has been found to be false by four United States judges.

"This Mr. Roosevelt could have discovered before he went out of the record for the purpose of making an assault upon a woman who has committed no other offense than to be married to me."

46 Killed in Air Attack upon Haifa

JERUSALEM, July 24 (AP)—Forty-six civilians were officially reported killed and eighty-eight wounded today when ten enemy planes dropped eighty to 100 bombs into the harbor and on the streets of Haifa, port city of the British-mandated Holy Lands.

The planes roaring over the eastern section of the city from the southeast were driven off finally by anti-aircraft fire.

One of the bombs struck a fishing boat and killed two Arabs.

The first air raid on Haifa was July 15.

Two Youths Held On Extortion Charge

KIMBALL, W. Va., July 24 (AP)—Police Chief L. K. Cruise announced the arrest of two Big Four youths on charges of attempting to extort $7,000 from former Mayor George Turner under threat of harming him and his wife.

Cruise said the youths were Ed Cochran and Robert Jarrels, Jr., and that a third person was being sought.

Turner said he found tacked to his front gate a crudely written note demanding that he leave $7,000 at a certain place before July twenty or he and his wife would be killed and their home destroyed.

Wallis Warfield's First Husband Is Divorced by Wife

Mrs. Norma Reese Johnson Spencer Granted Decree in Calif.

SANTA MONICA, Calif., July 24 (AP)—Mrs. Norma Reese Johnson Spencer was awarded a divorce today from Commander Earl Winfield Spencer, U. S. navy, retired, after she testified the first husband of the Duchess of Windsor had been guilty of habitual intemperance and cruelty.

Mrs. Spencer, the widow of a Detroit manufacturer whom Spencer married three years ago, said the naval officer went on week-long drunks and that she was forced to lock him out of their home because she feared for her life.

Her daughters by a previous marriage, Mrs. Kethryn Wade and Mrs. Betty Legare, testified that when he became intoxicated, Spencer would speak Chinese.

Mrs. Wade declared that once when she was visiting the Spencer home and her mother was ill in bed, Spencer made improper advances to her. Asked previously about such an occurrence, Spencer had denied it.

Spencer, testifying earlier in support of his plea for a divorce, said that during one of their almost weekly arguments over money Mrs. Spencer lunged at him with a knife. He denied her charges of intemperance, asserting his weekly liquor bill was only $10 and that his wife "drank as much of it as I did."

Superior Judge Orlando H. Rhodes denied Mrs. Spencer's petition for $100 a month alimony but gave her title to the family automobile. She testified her income last year was "about $4,200."

Spencer married Wallis Warfield, now the wife of former King Edward VIII of England, twenty-three years ago. It was while they were living at Coronado, Calif., that she met the then Prince of Wales. They were divorced in 1927 and each remarried twice.

Claim French Line Is Out of Business

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP)—An official German radio announcement heard tonight by NBC said the French Line, operators of the great liner Normandie and others, "has ceased to exist."

The announcement said the line was ceasing to operate, effective today, because it has no more ships to carry on business. Most of the line's ships were said to have been seized by the British.

The Normandie has been in the New York harbor since the start of war. Britain has announced she would seize any French merchant ships found at sea.

The French government announced yesterday at Vichy that the future French merchant marine would be modernized and that under the new policy large, elaborate liners would be "renounced."

Delegate Asks Probe Of Jones's Office

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 24. (AP)—Governor O'Conor said late today he had not received a formal request from Delegate John C. Luber for an investigation of the state employment commissioner's office.

Luber had announced earlier in Baltimore that he had written O'Conor asking an official inquiry into allegations of discrimination and arbitrary methods in the department, headed by Commissioner Harry C. Jones.

The governor declined to comment on Luber's statement and said he contemplated no action in the matter until it came before him officially.

Luber said he wished to learn if all applicants for state jobs are given an equal opportunity. He asserted he had found a number of circumstances indicating they did not.

"I think it is high thime for you to appoint an investigation committee or to designate the state auditor to check into the facts and let the people of Maryland know the truth," the legislator wrote O'Conor.

Would Protect Jobs

After saying that "never in peacetime" would such persons be required to serve, Shedd proposed that the legislation contain a declaration that employes drafted for the service be given their jobs back at the expiration of training. This prompted Rep. Wadsworth (R-NY) to offer an amendment providing that draftees be issued certificates upon completion of service and declaring that men with such certificates "ought to be re-employed" unless the "employers' circumstances" had changed so that re-employment was impossible.

Secretary of the Navy Knox, in discussing defense preparations, told a press conference that a plan was under consideration to move skilled workers from the interior to shipbuilding centers.

Knox said that he and Sidney Hillman, a National Defense Commissioner, believed there would be a shortage of certain types of ship workers.

blitzkrieg against England has mentioned a large force of speedy, motor torpedo boats which would protect troops being ferried across the channel. Now, with the entire kingdom momentarily awaiting the attack, the British announced that one British motor torpedo boat put to flight six German torpedo boats in a pre-dawn engagement in the channel. The admiralty said it was thought casualties were inflicted.

Nazis Prepare To Strike

Also figuring in the blitzkrieg speculation have been reported fleets of auxiliary vessels—and yesterday, the British said, planes of the fleet air arm spotted a German naval concentration guarding an auxiliary vessel in the eastern North Sea. Aerial torpedoes were loosed and the admiralty said one escort ship was hit.

Britain moved to strengthen her stronghold at Gibraltar, disembarking Canadian and Australian troops at the rock along with foodstuffs and war supplies.

While Germany's propaganda was intensified to prepare the Reich for the coming assault on Britain, the Nazi air force told of destroying 31,000 tons of British commercial shipping in the last forty-eight hours, and of sinking a British submarine, mine sweeper and two patrol boats.

Britain's minister for aviation production, Lord Beaverbrook, told the empire help was coming from the United States. He said the United States would supply Great Britain with 3,000 planes a month and that since May 14 Britain had purchased 12,115 airplane engines from the U. S.

At a meeting of pan-American foreign ministers and their representatives in Havana, firm measures to stamp out "fifth column" activities by foreign diplomatic agents or other persons and to build up hemisphere defenses were urgently advocated.

Rumania Aids Germany

Rumania placed more oil near the reach of the German military machine by taking over operation of the $15,000,000 Astra-Romana corporation, Rumania's largest oil company. Orders giving the Rumanian oil commissioner full power over production and distribution of that British-owned corporation were issued shortly before Rumania's premier and foreign minister left for a conference with Adolf Hitler and the Reich's foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, Friday.

Hungarians are hopeful that their country might get a slice of Transylvania out of the Rumanian-German conference. Hungary has long demanded return of the province of Transylvania, which she lost in post-world war settlements.

Allegany To Receive $54,760 To Pay for Defense Training

Allegany county will receive a portion of the $54,760 which this week is being turned over to the State Department of Education by the Federal government to defray expenses incurred so far in connection with the training of workers to fill jobs in expanding defense industries, according to John J. Seidel, State director of vocational training.

Seidel told Dr. Albert S. Cook, state superintendent of schools, that 2,290 workers are receiving training and that the total cost of their instructors, to be completed by September 15, will be $85,000. By September plans for a second program will be under way, Mr. Seidel said, and it will be financed with the remainder of the $350,000 set aside for Maryland training throughout the year.

The check for $54,760 will be used to pay the first month's salaries of the 100 instructors and to defray the cost of tools and supplies.

The report shows that Allegany county has nine vocational training classes and 171 trainees.

generally with Secretary Hull's idea of a collective trusteeship over any imperilled colony, but there were minor divergencies.

Cuba proposed that any occupied colony should be given the ultimate choice of independenc or annexation to an American nation.

This apparently conflicted with Secretary Hull's declaration Monday that there was no thought of absorbing any of these territories or of permitting any nation to acquire a "special interest" in them.

Economic proposals to implement Secretary Hull's outlined methods of bolstering economy were studied closely by experts of various delegations.

Plan More Lending Power

Increased lending power and freedom of action on loans, recommended for the Import-Export Bank by President Roosevelt, was understood to figure largely in the United States plans for dealing with the export surpluses problem.

George S. Messersmith, U. S. Ambassador to Cuba, issued another warning before the International Lions convention today of the "insidious attack on the unity, security and peace of the American republics."

Already, he said, this attack had developed into direct efforts by European states "to interfere with the internal policy of American states."

Declaring the "security and peace which we have so long enjoyed is now definitely and imminently threatened," Messersmith warned Latin American nations against adopting an "egotistic attitude" which weakens the structure of defense and security of this hemisphere as a whole."

British Prepare To Defend Gibraltar

LA LINEA, Spain, July 24 (AP)—Persons returning from Gibraltar today said the British evidently were preparing to resist all attacks and were not overlooking the possibility of a siege by land and sea.

Transports landed Canadian and Australian reinforcements at the great fortress today, and also brought quantities of foodstuffs, anti-aircraft guns, planes, and light and heavy artillery.

In spite of pleas for civilians to leave the settlement to make way for soldiers, there were still about 9,000 left today.

A number of wealthy residents of Gibraltar are known to have gone to Madeira, others to South Africa and Canada.

Nazis Strike

In the day's biggest air battle a patroling squadron of spitfires, 7,000 feet up, gave a flight of raiders heading toward the thames estuary, water-gate to London.

Eighteen bombers in "V" formations of three with a large escort of fighters came into view through a heavy rain.

The spitfires dived on them from the rear and tangled in an engagement of at least sixty planes.

While night bombers of bomber and coastal commands roared home from more blanket night raids on the Hitler-held continent, British planes and ships struck these blows at the sea-borne forces which Nazi Germany is massing in the waters around England:

One Against Six

1. A lone British motor torpedo boat picked a fight with six German torpedo boats in the channel, put them to flight and, in the darkness before dawn, put one out of action. "It is thought," said the admiralty, "that casualties were inflicted on antother."

2. Swordfish "spotter" planes of the fleet air arm, flying far into the eastern North Sea, located a German naval concentration guarding an auxiliary vessel. In the dawn, the planes sent torpedoes screaming at the group. The admiralty said an escort vessel of the 600-ton Konigin Luise type, of which Germany has ten, was hit by one torpedo.

There were no British casualties in either engagement.

Sixty or more planes, German and British, tangled in a flaming battle high over the Thames estuary when Nazi raiders attempted to repeat an earlier attack in which they had dropped 100 or more bombs at a merchant convoy.

An observer said the planes were so thick he could not distinguish friend from foe, as German bombers began falling out of the air, and the rest streaked for home across the English channel.

The British said twelve Germans were shot down over England today, six in the Thames fight, and that the convoy apparently escaped damage. Two British fighters were lost.

Five British Ships Sunk

The German high command, in a communique relayed here, said, however, that five merchant ships in the convoy were sunk and another set afire.

This evening's cold and terse British account of last night's raids on Germany and the neighboring nations which she dominates listed the following as bombed:

Three airplane factories Gotha, Kassel, Wenzendorf).

Three oil depots (Hamburg, Gelsenkirchen and Flushing).

Twelve airdromes and numerous railways, anti-aircraft positions and freight yards.

Patrol boats in Dunkerque harbor.

Docks at Amsterdam.

A German flying boat was shot down off Scotland.

Only one British plane was acknowledged lost.

Stung by repeated Italian raids on Gibraltar, Malta and Alexandria, the British near eastern air command sent new raider waves out to destroy or cripple Italian sea and air power.

Submarines Attacked

Bombing planes were reported in a Cairo, Egypt, communique to have scored direct hits on a jetty at Tobruk, Libya, at which several submarines were tied up.

(The Italians announced that Rome's anti-aircraft batteries last night opened up precautionary barrages on two occasions as a result of "reports" from Gaeta, naval base near Naples, only 75 miles from the capital. The Italians said no bombs were dropped but that several persons were injured by flying fragments from their own shells.)

The Cairo command also reported progress against the beleaguered Italian fort of Capuzzo, near Tobruk.

For fifteen days the British, since they shut off the fort's water supply, have been cutting up relief columns attempting to reach the besieged fort. Today's communique said the Italians had suffered further losses of motor trucks and guns.

Flying boats on patrol of the Mediterranean also attacked an Italian convoy and apparently damaged two ships, it was reported.

Canadian and Australian reinforcements were landed to guard Gibraltar.

At home, several houses were shattered when a raider, pursued by fighters, dumped its bombs over a town on the southeast coast, but no serious casualties were reported.

Southwest Scotland also was hit by bombs and several buildings were damaged.

A woman in northeast England was wounded by machine-gun bullets fired from another plane.

O'Conor May Head Md. Roosevelt Forces

BALTIMORE, July 24 (AP) — The Sun said tonight that Governor O'Conor appeared as the "most likely' candidate for the job of handling the third-term campaign of President Roosevelt in Maryland.

The chief executive, through his friends, was understood to be in a "receptive" mood if Maryland Democratic leaders should choose him as head of the State Campaign Committee, the newspaper declared.

The following party leaders, The Sun observed, will meet within ten days or two weeks to name the campaign chairman:

Senator Tydings and Radcliffe; W. Preston Lane, state national committeeman; Howard Bruce, former national committeeman; Mayor Howard Jackson of Baltimore; E. Broke Lee, Montgomery county party leader, Philip B. Perlman, Baltimore attorney, and Governor O'Conor.

CHICAGO — Secretary Wallace said in a speech that agriculture was better prepared for war than any other section of American life. He disclosed to reporters that the speech he prepared for the Democratic convention but did not deliver contained a plea for party unity and a tribute to James A. Farley.

James Roosevelt, the president's eldest son, said in an interview that he probably would do some campaigning for his father "but with my investments running into a good many dollars I will have to stick pretty close to business."

SPARTANBURG, S. C.—Senator Byrnes (D-SC) said he had asked party leaders to eliminate him from consideration for the post of Democratic National chairman, from which Farley is to resign next month.

Lewis Silent on President

WASHINGTON — John L. Lewis, chairman of labor's Non-Partisan League and CIO chief, directed league officials to concentrate on the Congressional campaigns in a letter which gave no indication of his stand on the presidential nominees.

"Under the guise of spurious ideals, the great gains made by labor are today threatened as never before," Lewis wrote. "Regardless of who may be the next president of the United States, we are confronted with this fact: if the men and women who are elected to the halls of Congress cannot be depended upon to support the welfare of the people through legislation, no man in however high an office can or will give labor what it needs."

Former French Leaders Facing Punishment by Petain Regime

VICHY, France, July 24 (AP)—The authoratarian regime of conquered France, in a dramatic statement declaring "on the day of their trial our dead will be present among the accusers," solemnly pledged punishment tonight for the men who "plunged our country into war."

Speaking in the name of the government of Marshal Philippe Petain, Minister of Interior Adrien Marquet denounced in a nationwide broadcast the men he termed responsible for declaring war against Germany and assured his hearers the guilty soon would be tried.

His address came shortly after it was revealed that former premier Daladier and sixteen other former government leaders or members of Parliament were confined to Marseille.

Dramatically the minister exclaimed:

Promises Punishment

"In the name of justice those responsible for so much political ineptness and military ignorance will be punished."

He described the men who must be punished as "those who plunged our country into war at a time when it was not prepared to fight."

When the German army attacked, he said, "a spent political, economic and social organization collapsed over your heads.

"You have lived on lies. The hour of truth now has sounded."

Marquet frankly admitted there is more order now in the occupied zone than in the unoccupied. This will be rectified, he promised, when the throngs of refugees have been returned to their homes.

He estimated the refugees in the unoccupied area at 1,500,000 Belgians and 4,000,000 French.

Urges Cooperation

Pointing out that cooperation is "indispensable" in repatriation, he said Germany's decisions are based on requirements of her war with England and that the French and German points of view must be reconciled.

Daladier and the others facing trial were confined to Marseille "pending investigation" when they arrived yesterday from French Morocco where they had gone June 20, two days before the signing of the armistice.

"Mass Migration" of British Children Soon

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP) — The United States committee for the care of European children announced today that London developments had cleared the way for an immediate "mass migration" of English children — rich and poor alike — to this country.

Cablegrams said that space for 1,000 children had been allotted in ships bound for North American ports within the next few weeks.

Committee Chairman Marshall Field ordered committee representatives in London to make sure that the group would be "a representative cross-section of children, including those of poorer families."

The committee also cleared 1,000 visas in Washington for "unspecified" children and announced they should be issued in London tomorrow.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Five weeks have now elapsed since Prime Minister Winston Churchill proclaimed to parliament the end of the lost battle of France and the beginning of the battle of Britain.

On the latter struggle, he said, depended "the survival of Christian civilization," adding that "Hitler knows he will have to break us in this island (England) or lose the war."

At that moment, five weeks ago, England's peril was obviously more deadly than it is today, yet her heavy-shouldered, sharp-tongued war leader, "contemplating our dangers with a disillusioned eye," saw no reason "for panic or despair."

Battle Odds Changed

Should Churchill recapitulate today the known factors on which his hopes rest he could state Britain's case even more strongly. Five weeks is long enough to have greatly altered the battle odds in vitally important respects.

For one thing, the passage of five weeks without the launching of a total attack on England seems proof positive that the Hitler high command was as much caught napping by the swift disintegration of French resistance as was England. Every military consideration dictated quick attack across the channel to take advantage of the confusion and alarm created in Britain by the lost battles of Flanders and France.

Within two weeks after the German victory in Flanders had culminated in the miraculous escape by sea of more than 350,000 Allied troops, the battle of France had been fought and lost. Hitler's armies did not pause to take breath before they crashed against the Weygand defense line to repeat the break-through tactics that had shattered the Maginot - Meuse defense system.

Germany Loses Chance

The most propitious time for an all-out Nazi attack on England would have been at the moment when France bowed to her conqueror and signed the armistice. If Germany had been ready at that moment to turn on England as she turned on France after Dunkerque, Britain's fate might already have been sealed.

It well may turn out that the very speed with which France was crushed operated to give England time to make the necessary readjustments in her defense system.

Whatever the reason, the fact of the five-week delay is there and with it the fact that Britain is that much better prepared materially and in spirit for what lies ahead of her.

CAPTURES 'CHUTIST

Wife of an English coastal defense officer, Mrs. Daisy Cardwell captured a German parachutist who landed near her house. "I put on my fiercest frown," she says, "pointed to his gun and demanded it." She got it and the invader is now in a prison camp.

French Civilians Must Give Up Arms Or Forfeit Lives

GENEVA, July 24 (AP)—Worried by the disappearance of large quantities of arms during the chaotic days of the armistice, the Petain government at Vichy was reported tonight to have ordered a drive to liquidate a "phantom arsenal" now in the hands of civilians and demobilized soldiers.

Travelers from France reported the Vichy government had ordered all citizens and demobilized soldiers to deliver any arms in their possession to the police or army before July 30. After this date, any civilian found with arms will be subject to the death penalty.

These sources said army leaders fear opposition to the Petain government may arise if Germany's peace terms are hard or food becomes scarce early in the winter months.

Convict Abandons Spree Atop Tower

ATLANTA, July 24 (AP)—A nineteen-hour semi-comical spree atop a federal penitentiary water tower by a convict attempting to avoid return to a Georgia prison camp brought temporarily today the desired result.

Shortly after guard pleas combined with hunger to bring voluntarily to earth twenty-year-old Andrew Jackson Wynne of Savannah, Ga., a board of inquiry was called to decide whether to revoke ninety-four days of "good behavior" time the prisoner had coming from a two-year auto theft sentence.

Meanwhile, the convict was placed in the prison hospital for observation. Warden J. W. Sanford said he suffered no ill effects.

Wynn's release was scheduled today. Warrants were ready to return him to a Georgia work camp from which he escaped in 1937 while serving a four-to-five-year burglary sentence.

Mounting the tower yesterday afternoon, the prisoner waved his shirt and yelled often to a crowd outside prison walls. At times he saw down and beat upon the steel roof with a machinist's hammer he took aloft with him.

Ex-Senator Reed Scores Roosevelt

Former Senator, Now for Willkie Finds President's Memory Poor

KANSAS CITY, July 24 (AP) — James A. Reed, former Democratic senator from Missouri said tonight that if President Roosevelt "has forgotten all my efforts for in in 1932 then his recollections must be as poor as his judgment."

Reed, who has offered to organize independent Democrats to support Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, issued a statement in reply to remarks made by President Roosevelt at a press conference yesterday. The president told reporters Reed was well qualified from experience to lead Democrats opposed to the party's presidential candidate because he had done much the same thing in 1932 and 1936 and perhaps in 1928.

Reed asserted he aided in the campaign of Alfred E. Smith in 1928 and that "I separated from Mr. Roosevelt when he repudiated the principles of the platform of 1932 upon which he was elected."

Of the president's remark that we all remember that sweatshop matter, Reed denied that he had ever been connected with such an enterprise.

"It is true that Mrs. Reed is in business just as Mrs. Roosevelt is in business but any statement to the effect that Mrs. Reed has ever run a sweatshop is infamously false and has been found to be false by four United States judges.

"This Mr. Roosevelt could have discovered before he went out of the record for the purpose of making an assault upon a woman who has committed no other offense than to be married to me."

JERUSALEM, July 24 (AP)—Forty-six civilians were officially reported killed and eighty-eight wounded today when ten enemy planes dropped eighty to 100 bombs into the harbor and on the streets of Haifa, port city of the British-mandated Holy Lands.

The planes roaring over the eastern section of the city from the southeast were driven off finally by anti-aircraft fire.

One of the bombs struck a fishing boat and killed two Arabs.

The first air raid on Haifa was July 15.

SLEEP—OR WEEP

By HELEN FOLLETT

FIGHT OFF the sand man, get in bed at all hours, and it won't be long before you'll have plenty of beauty troubles. You can curl your nose at exercise. Live the life of Reilly, nibble between meals, forget to cream your complexion, but go without sleep and the reflection in the mirror will give you chills along your spine.

Thorough Rest

Life nowadays is a sort of delirium of emotion. We need lots of sleep to carry on. During slumber the heart catches intervals of rest. The pulse is slower, breathing is lighter, the pupils of the eyes are contracted, intestinal peristaltic movements are lessened.

Loss of sleep is often responsible for wrinkles, sallow skin, lack luster eyes, and grouches. Tear off nine hours of sleep by the clock. The cost is nothing, the rewards are many.

Foulois Criticizes U. S. War Machine

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 24. (AP)—Major General Benjamin D. Foulois, former chief of the United States Army Air Corps who now lives in retirement here, told the local Rotary club that "we have a hell of a military machine."

He said the United States would have to adopt "totalitarian" methods in order to develop a military machine as good as Germany's.

"Dead End" Boy Meets Kindness, Mends Manners

Teacher Tells Of Interesting Experiences with Problem Child

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

While conducting forums with teachers, parents and religious leaders, for a week, in Birmingham, Alabama, I met Mr. F. L. Kelly, an elementary school principal of that city. He is also President of the Teachers Association of Birmingham.

Among the interesting things Mr. Kelly told me was that of Herbert a first grade boy who landed in the office ten times for fighting during the first term. At promotion this boy, Herbert, was listed as one of the failures. Tests showed that he had average ability.

"The new term began with new altercations and repeated attacks on the second term beginners who were also in his section. He improved in his fighting ability but in little else. Finally in early February, in utter desperation, I applied corporal punishment to the culprit in the hope that this might help. The boy was no sooner gone than my conscience began to hurt me and I immediately called my superior and checked out to Herbert's home.

Unhappy Background

"On arrival I found the father drunk and the mother trying to do for the other three children who were all younger than Herbert. After a careful interview with the mother I found that the father's job was gone and that the family was dependent for its very existence on the relief check of $15.00 which they got monthly.

"On returning to the school I called the Social Service Chairman of the P. T. A., and needless to say the boy went home that afternoon with some clothes that could be changed. Herbert was given a bottle of milk at ten o'clock and a hot lunch at noon. In a few days the results began to show. He suddenly seemed to turn over a new leaf in his book of behavior. He was always anxious to speak to me or to pat me as he passed. I had been transformed from the big bad wolf to the head man in Herbert's estimation.

"February came and went. March arrived and with it the earliest of flowers, the dandelions, began to pop out of their sleeping places. One morning Herbert showed up in the office and when the Registrar asked him what she could do for him he replied, 'I want to see Mr. Kelly.' Herbert was ushered in and I turned and looked at him carefully. When I asked, 'What can I do for you, Herbert?' He replied, 'I brung you something,' with which he thrust out his little hand and offered a half-crushed dandelion wrapped in a piece of brown paper. I accepted it and before I could open my mouth the boy was gone on the dead run. I sat amazed and held the dandelion—the more I considered it, the more valuable it became. It was worth more than all the hot house roses ever grown.

"Herbert is now my boy. He was regularly promoted in June and again this January. I shall watch his progress with much interest."

Without cost, teachers and parents may receive a selected list of books and pamphlets on understanding and guiding babies, children and youth, by writing me at 235 E. Forty-fifth St., New York City, N. Y., enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

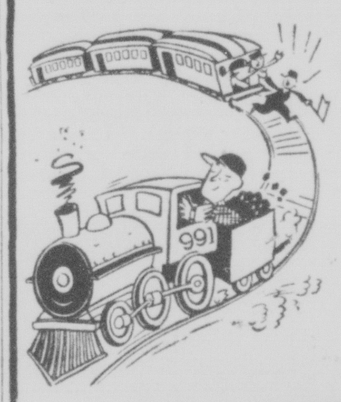

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Please suggest a good plan for keeping children off the street at night.

A. As soon as your child can toddle, see that he comes directly into the house when the street lights go on. Hold rigidly to this rule till he is in his 'teens or past.

The piano industry is experiencing what is expected to be its best year since 1927.

A New Leader Essential To National Defense

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT drew up an indictment of his New Deal administration when he told Congress that "if the United States is to have any defense, it must have total defense."

The failure of the New Deal to conduct the government capably in peace time is a warning that total defense against war is not to be expected from such management.

Total defense requires, first of all, efficiency in the White House. When there is incompetence, caprice, vacillation, extravagance, unneutrality, political trickery and hysteria at the top, no departmental organization, however devoted, will make steady progress in arming the nation.

Appropriation of billions of borrowed dollars does not spell total defense. The work must be done with intelligent direction, and the sweat of millions of men.

The nation is united in its desire for total defense. It is helpless in moving toward that objective because of incompetent leadership. The White House weathervane is in a constant tailspin.

Congress has no intelligible program before it. Industry waits, and gets no information. The competent men called in to advise on defense matters are tangled in red tape and obstructed by petty bureaucrats who run in and out of the back door of the White House.

Army and Navy establishments are doing good work — when their efforts are not overruled from higher up. The arsenals, navy yards, and the naval gun factory are busy. A respectable increase in material from these quarters is anticipated by the end of the Roosevelt term next January, in spite of all.

Little progress is visible in harnessing industry to government for defense teamwork. Contracts of a minor character are being let, but none of the giant expansion necessary for total defense has been developed, and can hardly be looked for under the present regime. What the New Deal attempts with one hand it blocks with the other. Great industrial concerns are disgusted with the oscillations and alternating-current changes in Washington, which halt operations before they can begin.

It is the will of the American people that they shall be armed. They have taken the first great important step by nominating in Wendell L. Willkie a capable leader to replace the present executive. His election in November is foreordained by the popular will.

Until Willkie enters the White House on January 20 next, the country must expect disappointment and delay in obtaining national defense. But fortunately the New Deal's time is short, and some progress will be made despite executive bungling.

The ardent hope of the country is that the New Deal will somehow be prevented by Providence from plunging this nation into war before the government can be placed in steady and strong hands.

Excuse of Wallace Is Not Sustained by the Record

THE PRESENT CAMPAIGN is apparently going to be one of considerable misrepresentation, wherefore it behooves citizens to look carefully into all charges and seek the truth or falsity of them.

Several attempts at falsification, or of mere ignorance resulting from hasty utterance, have already been run to book. Another has just been run down by Representative J. William Ditter, of Pennsylvania. This is the excuse that was offered by Secretary Wallace for deciding to cling to his cabinet post as secretary of agriculture while campaigning for the vice presidency on the New Deal ticket.

Wallace asserted that he might as well stay on the job in view of the precedent established by Herbert Hoover, who did not give up the post of secretary of commerce while campaigning for the presidency.

Representative Ritter points to the records and shows that Mr. Hoover promptly submitted his resignation as secretary of commerce, the date thereof being July 7, 1928. President Coolidge on August 21, that year, announced that he had accepted Mr. Hoover's resignation and that he had named William F. Whiting, of Massachusetts, to be secretary of commerce.

But, this breakdown of the Wallace excuse will probably not deter that gentleman from sticking to the government pay roll. That is a habit the New Dealers have acquired.

How To Determine Counterfeit Bills

NOT MANY PERSONS can detect a counterfeit money bill, and Maurice R. Allen, a United States Secret Service agent, stationed at Huntington, W. Va., is telling how. He is out on a four-state tour with a film showing the methods for quick detection of even the best counterfeits and the work, he says, is producing good results.

For example, the four-state area over which Allen is spreading the information is yielding a constantly diminishing amount of counterfeit money. The area includes Maryland, with the District of Columbia; Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina. In 1938 the area yielded $32,190 in counterfeit money, but this dropped to $18,350 in 1939 and in the fiscal year ended June 30 last this was decreased further to $11,191.

Allen urges his audiences to compare all suspected bills with a genuine bill of the same type and denomination and to observe the principle features of each.

On the genuine bill, Allen says, the portrait is life-like, standing out from the oval background, which is a fine screen of regular lines. Particularly should the eyes of the portrait be noted. The counterfeit bill is dull, smudgy or unnaturally white, while the background is dark with irregular lines. The opposite is true on the genuine bill.

On the latter, the sawtooth points around the rim of the seal are identical and sharp, while on the bogus bill, the sawtooth points are generally broken and irregular.

Furthermore, Allen says, the serial numbers on a genuine bill should be distinct, firmly and evenly printed, while on the counterfeit the numbers are often poorly printed, badly spaced and uneven.

But don't rub the suspected bill to determine whether the ink will smudge, as that is not dependable, according to Allen, because the ink will rub off good and bad bills under some conditions.

Allen will probably get around to Cumberland some of these days with his message of information, which will be received here with interest, although local people haven't been bothered much with spurious money. But, you never can tell as it is in just such places that the counterfeiters ply their game.

High Time for This GOP Unification

NEWS DISPATCHERS from Baltimore have reported that the various Willkie-for-President organizations there are getting together.

That is as it should be. What Maryland Republicans have been needing for some time is more of the get-together spirit as there has been neither sense nor poetry in maintaining so-called anti-Nice factions and Nice factions or any other separate or personal factions. The party is big and responsible enough to take in all members and it is foolish for one group to segregate itself from another group and to carry on with their respective personal grouches.

It appears that the Willkie candidacy has furnished the common ground for this amalgamation. There should by all means be one unified organization for carrying on the presidential, senatorial and congressional campaigns in the state. Republicans must remember that former Governor Nice is the senatorial nominee as well as the titular head of the party, and that it is necessary for everybody to get behind him and wage a vigorous battle for his election.

Let it be remembered, too, that, as the Democrats are badly divided in the state both as the result of their long-maintained split and the departure of so many of them from the New Deal outfit, and as all the other signs read, Nice will be victorious in November along with Willkie and McNary and perhaps several Republican representatives, one sure bet on this being the popular Walter Johnson in the Sixth.

Those Nazi bombers know their business. Hitting a ship with a bomb while flying hundreds of miles an hour is no mean feat, but being able to tell the ship's tonnage, that must require a keen eye and lots of practice.

If, as an eminent physician says, only intellectual persons suffer from hay fever, it looks as though the victims should get together some week-end and think up something to do about it.

Whenever the New Deal can't answer domestic criticism of blundering it throws out another interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine.

In 500 years, says a noted biologist, native Americans will look like Indians. They do now—after every summer week-end.

Still this mechanization business has its limits. Look what happened to the Huey Long and Pendergast machines.

Sending a Man to Market

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I met him on the train going home and his arms were full of packages. He explained what they were.

Marshall Maslin

He had a big chunk of smoked fish and a couple of cheeses. . . . A string of sausages...a loaf of Italian bread... some cold sliced meat . . . a few pounds of apricots . . . some doughnuts . . . and that wasn't all . . . and he wasn't at all sure his wife would welcome these additions to her larder. Because he hadn't told her he was bringing any food home and the evening meal was all planned by this time.

She had asked him to get a loaf of bread but he'd happened to pass a market and he saw the fish and it looked appetizing to him and then he saw the cheese and it seemed like a good idea to buy some cheese, and he bought the other things without thinking. . . . And he thought he did this sort of thing because his father used to do it regularly—come home all loaded down with food for the family.

Well, perhaps that WAS why he was bringing that food home. . . . But on the other hand it may have been because of that dim and impossible-to-prove element in his nature that is called "racial memory."

I know I never pass a seafood market without wanting to take home a crab. And if I'm sent to the fruit market to get a couple of pounds of tomatoes, I'm likely to come back with a bag of grapes, a basket of figs, some nectarines and a Persian melon. And I'm a spendthrift in an Italian grocery . . . for pigs feet, because I remember how I craved them when I was seasick in an army transport, for soft jack cheese, for thinly sliced Italian ham because it goes so well with black figs. And though I wouldn't think of buying a pound of dried fish, I'll always mooch a bit while I'm waiting for my packages.

So my friend with the packages in his arms isn't alone in his weakness for picking up food and taking it home. . . . I do it, too, and so do millions of other husbands.

I think we do it because it is traditionally man's desire to bring home the bacon. . . . His great-grandfather went out with a gun and brought home a deer or a wild turkey. His distant ancestors brought home all the food, and something deep inside of him isn't quite satisfied with bringing home just a paycheck. He isn't content unless he occasionally brings in something substantial—like a family puppy lugging in a big bone and expecting to be praised. . . . And the wise wife accepts this habit.

Price-Pegging Can Not Work, Johnson Holds

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

WASHINGTON.—Poor Mr. Hoover once set out to help our foreign trade to dispose of our surplus products by loans to "backward and crippled countries." Loans to bankrupts have a way of turning sour. These did, and what a panning Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 gave the Great Engineer for that suggestion.

Mr. Hoover was only proposing a policy of private loans—the money of risk-takers for profit. His project was relatively piker's chickenfeed. Mr. Roosevelt now wants to take $500,000,000 out of the treasury to lend to Latin-American countries to enable their governments to buy up and hold their own surplus of agricultural products. This is a price pegging plan such as Mr. Wallace has practiced in American farm products. It has never worked in the history of the world although it has frequently been tried—notably in Brazilian coffee, East Indian rubber, Canadian grain and American wheat, corn and cotton.

Its Existence Controls

It doesn't work because it is the presence (rather than the mere ownership) of unmanageable surplus and the certainty of oncoming crops that overhangs the market and depresses price. That was the basic fault with Mr. Wallace's "Joseph" or "ever-normal granary" day dream. Joseph could successfully buy and store the surplus of Egypt for seven fat years and then sell it at hold-up prices during seven lean years until he owned all of Egypt. He could do it because he had a dream-book and a direct wire to the Pearly Gates. Henry apparently has a dream-book but no direct wire, although the President says we are to underwrite the South American surplus only for one year. How does he know?

In the romantic days, when spices were the only practical food preservative and therefore invaluable, the Dutch controlled much of the East Indian trade. They had a regular remedy for market gluts. If too much anise, cinamon, pepper, nutmeg, cloves or what-not was congesting on the wharves, they simply sank the surplus in the sea.

Variations Tried

Mr. Wallace has tried variations of that also. That is why he killed the little pigs and cattle, plowed under the cotton, paid formers for not producing and recently and more intelligently, through the food-stamp plan, sold farm sudplus to the poor at a great discount in price and all the rest of us footed the grocery bill.

O. K. for our own people. This column is for a direct federal subsidy to a "parity price" to our farmers for all their products that can be assumed at home and also for the food-stamp or any similar plan to subsidize consumption of our food products to all low-income groups—not merely to help consume our farm surplus but to relieve us of the insufferable charge of permitting Americans to starve or be undernourished in the midst of rotting overabundance. But it is absolutely opposed to pouring five hundred or any other number of millions of public money down any Latin-American rat holes to subsidize our own competition and possibly to find their way into Hitler's coffers or certainly, in no small degree, into the pockets of various satellites of the assorted dictatorships of the banana Republics.

Can't Be Bought

Sure, we need Pan-American solidarity and friendship, but we can't buy it. The only thing that will make it or any worthwhile basis, s cold-blooded community of interest. If that isn't there, any amount of billions is just money thrown away. Mr. Roosevelt has neither right nor reason in calling this a "loan," intimating that one year's operation will do the trick, of limiting his request to half a billion. It is well known in Washington that this first step is part of a two-million dollar program to make Uncle Sam the international broker for all the products of the Western World.

That too, is grotesque fantasy. Its cost would eventually take us out of the multiplication tables and into the field of logarithms. The essence of all New Deal planning, statesmanship, diplomacy and solution of all public problems can be expressed in a single phrase "give us millions of dollars. As statesmanship, that is about as realistic as Santa Claus and Aladdin's lamp. —Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

THE INVENTOR OF W. P. A. TELLS KNUDSEN HOW TO SET UP THE MACHINERY

Hitler, with Too Big a Job on Hand, Is Believed To Be Heading for Disaster

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Hints are reaching Washington that Herr Hitler is experiencing considerable difficulty in consolidating the Nazis' dominance in all the countries they've been conquering so rapidly of late.

Adolf Hitler

These stories are vague, of course, on account of the censorship, but they come from so many different sources, are so increasingly numerous and are in such general agreement that, by state departmetal and army and navy officials, all of whom are receiving them, they're beginning to be quite widely credited.

The blitzkrieg is almost incredibly and quickly effective, to be sure, but it has to be followed by a civil set-up to keep the vanquished populations in order, and working to the Germans' advantage.

Now, naturally these poupulations, although beaten, are in no pro-German frame of mind. They still have to be policed and coerced and everlastingly spied on, or it's a foregone conclusion that they'll turn outright rebellious at the first opportunity.

A country having been militarily defeated, Herr Hitler's system is to establish for it a government of its own citizens—but honest-to-goodness totalitarians, such as can be found in small numbers almost anywhere. It goes virtually without saying, however, that their own countrymen hate these functionaries, probably more than they hate even Germans. Moreover, Adolf himself is suspicious of them; they require constant watching.

Himmler on the Job

So, as fast as a beaten country capitulates, Herr Himmler, chief of the German Gestapo, appears in its capital, and proceeds to organize a Nazi secret service.

This might be all right if Herr Himmler had only one or two countries to worry about.

But he has on his hands now Austria, Poland, Czechoslavakia, Denmark, Norway, Holland, Belgium little Luxemburg and France.

This must spread the Gestapo pretty thin.

In short, it appears, Adolf has done his conquering so fast that he hasn't got his conquerees thoroughly conquered.

The Fuehrer is threatened with a problem somewhat like Japan's. The Japs can lick the Chinese at any given spot, but all of China won't STAY licked. The Nazis have a lot of eastern Europe, Scandinavia, the Low Countries and France temporarily DOWN, but will they stay OUT?

The question critics ask is:

"Although Adolf has taken off a tremendously big bite and is industriously and, up to date, quite successfully chewing it, can he finally swallow and assimilate it?"

There are skeptics.

More, Too

And even if he gets away with this bite the meal won't be finished.

Sweden, to be sure, wouldn't be much of an additional mouthful.

But Britain isn't disposed of yet.

Russia also shows signs of turning ugly.

Nor is Italy dependable. The Italians are capable of flopping out of a bargain with Germany. They did in the last World war. They were pledged then to help the kaiser. First they didn't do it. Then they actually went in on the other side. Wilhelm referred to them outright as "traitors."

Adolf obviously is gambling on Spain, but there Dictator Franco's tie-up with Il Duce Mussolini is a good deal closer than his relations with the Feuhrer. If Benito reneges on Hitler, Franco's likely to renege with him.

To Sum Up

Summing it all up there are plenty of competent observers who say that:

Adolf appears to be winning today.

They think he may WIN—for the time being.

But they don't believe his triumph, if he scores one, will last long.

They compare him with Napoleon—and everybody knows how HE ended.

Nevertheless, it'lll be quite a record for that one-time house painter if he goes down in history as a second Napoleon—their respective finishes notwithstanding.

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

The principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Maryland State Poultry Council, to be held at Elkton on Wednesday, July 31, will be the Honorable Willard H. Allen, secretary of agriculture for the state of New Jersey. Mr. Allen is an outstanding poultryman in his own right, having been extension poultry specialist for several years, and he was also head of the poultry department at the University of New Jersey. He is a good speaker and every poultryman in Maryland who can do so should hear him.

The condition of apples in Maryland on July 1 was above that of a year ago and above the average. An excellent peach crop is in prospect.

The acreage of barley in Maryland continues in increase, being estimated at 76,000 acres this year compared with 72,000 acres last year and an average of 31,000 acres from 1929-38.

Active enforcement of the Maryland Fresh Egg law is expected to give Maryland producers a special interest in the third annual Poultry Products Marketing School, which will be held at the University of Maryland, September 13 to 15, according to James M. Gwin, associate professor of poultry marketing.

Interest in the first annual cooperative institute, which will be held at the University of Maryland on August 13 to 15, has been greatly increased by the changing economic conditions and the new problems confronting all lines of business, including co-operative marketing organizations, according to Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the extension service.

Factographs

The so-called bloodhounds of the early south and Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," were really not bloodhounds, but ferocious beasts introduced into Cuba and South America by the Spaniards. They were a cross between a ferocious war-dog of the ancients and the large Spanish pointer.

Gross income of Missouri farmers in 1939 was $21,162,000 greater than the $300,692,000 total reported for 1938, the state agricultural department estimated.

Morning Motto

Life is hardly respectable if it has no generous task, no duties or affections that constitute a necessity of existing—Every man's task is his life preserver.—G. B. EMERSON.

Dependence Our Chief Menace

From the Industrial News Review

Today this country stands unified, devoted to the proposition that here, if nowhere else in the world, democracy shall be preserved and made secure.

And the people are coming to realize that the preservation of the democratic system involves more than merely spending billions for military weapons, important as that is. The preservation of democracy means that we must again analyze the meaning of democracy—and again return to those principles on which the nation was founded.

Those principles are simple and basic. Certain powers were given to government—the power over currency, over national defense, over foreign policy, and so on. The balance of powers were reserved to the people. The founders realized that government is a non-producer—that all production and creation must come from the individual. And they realized that strict limitation of the activities of government was necessary if freedom was to live.

In recent years we have been drifting away from true democratic government. We have put government into business. We have all but destroyed the rights of the states. We have gone a long way toward the ruinous theory that government owes everyone a living. We have destroyed local independence, local pride, local self-sufficiency. We have become a nation of beggars, feeding at the public trough.

This has cost us tens of billions in taxes and increased federal debt. Yet, serious as that problem is, it is the least important phase of the trend. Vitally important has been the change for the worse in the American character—the loss of those traditional characteristics of independence and self-reliance. Dependence always breeds dictatorship. Dependence always menaces liberty, and the democratic way of life.

If democracy is to live, the democratic virtues of self-reliance and independence must come back into their own. Government must again be confined to those duties given it by the Constitution. Industry and individuals must realize again that they can no longer expect manna from Washington for sustenance. Then that democracy of which we talk so much in idle phrases will really survive. Then we shall be strong and secure.

Hymie Augen Says Tank Knowledge Is Essential Now

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

Hymie Augen dropped in today with a crumpled newspaper clipping which he had been hoarding since the date of its publication — June 16, 1937. A story carrying a Berlin date-line, it gave an account of a military review in Berlin. What interested Mr. Augen was the following:

Foreign military experts accorded high praise to the smartness and precision of maneuvers and to the carriage of the men and general effect of fitness and discipline, but there was less enthusiasm about the probable effectiveness of the motorized equipment. Several foreign intelligence services have been keenly interested in the extensive use of ersatz materials by the Germans in their rearmament effort, and so far as this correspondent has been able to learn, they were not profoundly impressed by the result. There were several hints that this was a jerry-built war machinery, and even more direct criticisms of what certain foreign experts consider excessive use of hasty and untried mechanization."

There was much more in this vein. Mr. Augen commented:

"They had me wondering if these German tanks was made out of old pieces of rubber hose and beer bottle caps and things like that and maybe if a rabbit would kick one of them it would fall to pieces."

A Cow, Not Tanks

Mr. Augen had a short work-out as a light heavy, in his youth, before he became a stuss-dealer, which may account for the fact that his opening is always a feint, and then he lands somewhere else. So help me, what was burning him up was not the German tanks, but Elsie, the World's fair cow. "Don't get me wrong," he said. "I haven't anything against cows. I was glad to see you editors give this Elsie a nice tumble. My cousin's brother-in-law had a cow, once, over in Union City. I went over and saw it. I used to know quite a lot of people that maybe had a cow somewhere in their family. But you guys have got me dizzy.

"For instance, I get up in the morning feeling pretty good and figure I'll take a run out to Empire, and I grab the paper, thinking that Orcus might be pretty good at around twenty-five, but before I can find the racing chart, here's a big dead-pan picture of Elsie, the cow. I don't mind people not paying much attention to me, but, I ask you, wouldn't I have to shoot Adolf Hitler to get my picture in the paper like this cow does? You know I would. And maybe even then they'd just print it once or twice.

"Now if his cow would just do a double back-flip, or play the piano or something you might have some excuse to be always writing her up and putting her picture in the paper, but she didn't even win a running broad jump. And she gets wrote up more than if she was a panda."

Back on Main Line

I interrupted Mr. Augen to ask him what Elsie, the cow, had to do with German tanks. If you watch for the switch you can usually get him back on the main line.

"It was this cow that made me remember I had squirreled that piece about the tanks," he said. "Looking at her picture made me too late to get a bet down on a handicap horse I had a sweet tip on that that made me mad and I said to myself the first time I saw you I was going to squawk about a lot of expensive guys writing up this cow when they ought to of been finding out what them German tanks was made of, and if we should get some tanks of our own that wasn't made out of old rubber boots, etc.

"Listen, I get around a lot and I know what the public likes. They want more good murders and fires, etc., and pieces where some guy really pulled something instead of just tried to figure something out like the reporters used to put in the papers before everything went screwey and you had to stumble over a cow to find the racing chart.

Tank Knowledge Needed

Another thing, you didn't use to write up saloons the way you do now. You seem to think everybody in town is a bar-fly. Instead of bothering about saloons and cows, etc., you ought to get up more good race dope and you ought to find out what kind of tanks we are going to get for that ten million dollars they are dealing at Washington. It would serve you right if the Germans would start dropping cows from parachutes, and maybe they will."

We tried to explain everything to Mr. Augen, but felt we were only partially successful. He was pretty sore.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Quotable Quotes

The trouble with a lot of us is not that we are not clever or well enough informed or experienced, but that we are too easily satisfied. Sometimes this is a kind of fear. We have had a certain degree of success and we fear that if we go on much further we may fall down.

A New Leader Essential To National Defense

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT drew up an indictment of his New Deal administration when he told Congress that "if the United States is to have any defense, it must have total defense."

The failure of the New Deal to conduct the government capably in peace time is a warning that total defense against war is not to be expected from such management.

Total defense requires, first of all, efficiency in the White House. When there is incompetence, caprice, vacillation, extravagance, unneutrality, political trickery and hysteria at the top, no departmental organization, however devoted, will make steady progress in arming the nation.

Appropriation of billions of borrowed dollars does not spell total defense. The work must be done with intelligent direction, and the sweat of millions of men.

The nation is united in its desire for total defense. It is helpless in moving toward that objective because of incompetent leadership. The White House weathervane is in a constant tailspin.

Congress has no intelligible program before it. Industry waits, and gets no information. The competent men called in to advise on defense matters are tangled in red tape and obstructed by petty bureaucrats who run in and out of the back door of the White House.

Army and Navy establishments are doing good work — when their efforts are not overruled from higher up. The arsenals, navy yards, and the naval gun factory are busy. A respectable increase in material from these quarters is anticipated by the end of the Roosevelt term next January, in spite of all.

Little progress is visible in harnessing industry to government for defense teamwork. Contracts of a minor character are being let, but none of the giant expansion necessary for total defense has been developed, and can hardly be looked for under the present regime. What the New Deal attempts with one hand it blocks with the other. Great industrial concerns are disgusted with the oscillations and alternating-current changes in Washington, which halt operations before they can begin.

It is the will of the American people that they shall be armed. They have taken the first great important step by nominating in Wendell L. Willkie a capable leader to replace the present executive. His election in November is foreordained by the popular will.

Until Willkie enters the White House on January 20 next, the country must expect disappointment and delay in obtaining national defense. But fortunately the New Deal's time is short, and some progress will be made despite executive bungling.

The ardent hope of the country is that the New Deal will somehow be prevented by Providence from plunging this nation into war before the government can be placed in steady and strong hands.

Excuse of Wallace Is Not Sustained by the Record

THE PRESENT CAMPAIGN is apparently going to be one of considerable misrepresentation, wherefore it behooves citizens to look carefully into all charges and seek the truth or falsity of them.

Several attempts at falsification, or of mere ignorance resulting from hasty utterance, have already been run to book. Another has just been run down by Representative J. William Ditter, of Pennsylvania. This is the excuse that was offered by Secretary Wallace for deciding to cling to his cabinet post as secretary of agriculture while campaigning for the vice presidency on the New Deal ticket.

Wallace asserted that he might as well stay on the job in view of the precedent established by Herbert Hoover, who did not give up the post of secretary of commerce while campaigning for the presidency.

Representative Ritter points to the records and shows that Mr. Hoover promptly submitted his resignation as secretary of commerce, the date thereof being July 7, 1928. President Coolidge on August 21, that year, announced that he had accepted Mr. Hoover's resignation and that he had named William F. Whiting, of Massachusetts, to be secretary of commerce.

But, this breakdown of the Wallace excuse will probably not deter that gentleman from sticking to the government pay roll. That is a habit the New Dealers have acquired.

How To Determine Counterfeit Bills

NOT MANY PERSONS can detect a counterfeit money bill, and Maurice R. Allen, a United States Secret Service agent, stationed at Huntington, W. Va., is telling how. He is out on a four-state tour with a film showing the methods for quick detection of even the best counterfeits and the work, he says, is producing good results.

For example, the four-state area over which Allen is spreading the information is yielding a constantly diminishing amount of counterfeit money. The area includes Maryland, with the District of Columbia; Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina. In 1938 the area yielded $32,190 in counterfeit money, but this dropped to $18,350 in 1939 and in the fiscal year ended June 30 last this was decreased further to $11,191.

Allen urges his audiences to compare all suspected bills with a genuine bill of the same type and denomination and to observe the principle features of each.

On the genuine bill, Allen says, the portrait is life-like, standing out from the oval background, which is a fine screen of regular lines. Particularly should the eyes of the portrait be noted. The counterfeit bill is dull, smudgy or unnaturally white, while the background is dark with irregular lines. The opposite is true on the genuine bill.

On the latter, the sawtooth points around the rim of the seal are identical and sharp, while on the bogus bill, the sawtooth points are generally broken and irregular.

Furthermore, Allen says, the serial numbers on a genuine bill should be distinct, firmly and evenly printed, while on the counterfeit the numbers are often poorly printed, badly spaced and uneven.

But don't rub the suspected bill to determine whether the ink will smudge, as that is not dependable, according to Allen, because the ink will rub off good and bad bills under some conditions.

Allen will probably get around to Cumberland some of these days with his message of information, which will be received here with interest, although local people haven't been bothered much with spurious money. But, you never can tell as it is in just such places that the counterfeiters ply their game.

High Time for This GOP Unification

NEWS DISPATCHERS from Baltimore have reported that the various Willkie-for-President organizations there are getting together.

That is as it should be. What Maryland Republicans have been needing for some time is more of the get-together spirit as there has been neither sense nor poetry in maintaining so-called anti-Nice factions and Nice factions or any other separate or personal factions. The party is big and responsible enough to take in all members and it is foolish for one group to segregate itself from another group and to carry on with their respective personal grouches.

It appears that the Willkie candidacy has furnished the common ground for this amalgamation. There should by all means be one unified organization for carrying on the presidential, senatorial and congressional campaigns in the state. Republicans must remember that former Governor Nice is the senatorial nominee as well as the titular head of the party, and that it is necessary for everybody to get behind him and wage a vigorous battle for his election.

Let it be remembered, too, that, as the Democrats are badly divided in the state both as the result of their long-maintained split and the departure of so many of them from the New Deal outfit, and as all the other signs read, Nice will be victorious in November along with Willkie and McNary and perhaps several Republican representatives, one sure bet on this being the popular Walter Johnson in the Sixth.

Those Nazi bombers know their business. Hitting a ship with a bomb while flying hundreds of miles an hour is no mean feat, but being able to tell the ship's tonnage, that must require a keen eye and lots of practice.

If, as an eminent physician says, only intellectual persons suffer from hay fever, it looks as though the victims should get together some week-end and think up something to do about it.

Whenever the New Deal can't answer domestic criticism of blundering it throws out another interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine.

In 500 years, says a noted biologist, native Americans will look like Indians. They do now—after every summer week-end.

Still this mechanization business has its limits. Look what happened to the Huey Long and Pendergast machines.

Sending a Man to Market

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I met him on the train going home and his arms were full of packages. He explained what they were.

Marshall Maslin

He had a big chunk of smoked fish and a couple of cheeses. . . . A string of sausages...a loaf of Italian bread... some cold sliced meat . . . a few pounds of apricots . . . some doughnuts . . . and that wasn't all . . . and he wasn't at all sure his wife would welcome these additions to her larder. Because he hadn't told her he was bringing any food home and the evening meal was all planned by this time.

She had asked him to get a loaf of bread but he'd happened to pass a market and he saw the fish and it looked appetizing to him and then he saw the cheese and it seemed like a good idea to buy some cheese, and he bought the other things without thinking. . . . And he thought he did this sort of thing because his father used to do it regularly—come home all loaded down with food for the family.

Well, perhaps that WAS why he was bringing that food home. . . . But on the other hand it may have been because of that dim and impossible-to-prove element in his nature that is called "racial memory."

I know I never pass a seafood market without wanting to take home a crab. And if I'm sent to the fruit market to get a couple of pounds of tomatoes, I'm likely to come back with a bag of grapes, a basket of figs, some nectarines and a Persian melon. And I'm a spendthrift in an Italian grocery . . . for pigs feet, because I remember how I craved them when I was seasick in an army transport, for soft jack cheese, for thinly sliced Italian ham because it goes so well with black figs. And though I wouldn't think of buying a pound of dried fish, I'll always mooch a bit while I'm waiting for my packages.

So my friend with the packages in his arms isn't alone in his weakness for picking up food and taking it home. . . . I do it, too, and so do millions of other husbands.

I think we do it because it is traditionally man's desire to bring home the bacon. . . . His great-grandfather went out with a gun and brought home a deer or a wild turkey. His distant ancestors brought home all the food, and something deep inside of him isn't quite satisfied with bringing home just a paycheck. He isn't content unless he occasionally brings in something substantial—like a family puppy lugging in a big bone and expecting to be praised. . . . And the wise wife accepts this habit.

Price-Pegging Can Not Work, Johnson Holds

Hugh Johnson

WASHINGTON,—Poor Mr. Hoover once set out to help our foreign trade to dispose of our surplus products by loans to "backward and crippled countries." Loans to bankrupts have a way of turning sour. These did, and what a panning Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 gave the Great Engineer for that suggestion.

Mr. Hoover was only proposing a policy of private loans—the money of risk-takers for profit. His project was relatively piker's chickenfeed. Mr. Roosevelt now wants to take $500,000,000 out of the treasury to lend to Latin-American countries to enable their governments to buy up and hold their own surplus of agricultural products. This is a price pegging plan such as Mr. Wallace has practiced in American farm products. It has never worked in the history of the world although it has frequently been tried—notably in Brazilian coffee, East Indian rubber, Canadian grain and American wheat, corn and cotton.

Its Existence Controls

It doesn't work because it is the presence (rather than the mere ownership) of unmanageable surplus and the certainty of oncoming crops that overhangs the market and depresses price. That was the basic fault with Mr. Wallace's "Joseph" or "ever-normal granary" day dream. Joseph could successfully buy and store the surplus of Egypt for seven fat years and then sell it at hold-up prices during seven lean years until he owned all of Egypt. He could do it because he had a dream-book and a direct wire to the Pearly Gates. Henry apparently has a dream-book but no direct wire, although the President says we are to underwrite the South American surplus only for one year. How does he know?

In the romantic days, when spices were the only practical food preservative and therefore invaluable, the Dutch controlled much of the East Indian trade. They had a regular remedy for market gluts. If too much anise, cinamon, pepper, nutmeg, cloves or what-not was congesting on the wharves, they simply sank the surplus in the sea.

Variations Tried

Mr. Wallace has tried variations of that also. That is why he killed the little pigs and cattle, plowed under the cotton, paid formers for not producing and recently and more intelligently, through the food-stamp plan, sold farm sudplus to the poor at a great discount in price and all the rest of us footed the grocery bill.

O. K. for our own people. This column is for a direct federal subsidy to a "parity price" to our farmers for all their products that can be assumed at home and also for the food-stamp or any similar plan to subsidize consumption of our food products to all low-income groups—not merely to help consume our farm surplus but to relieve us of the insufferable charge of permitting Americans to starve or be undernourished in the midst of rotting overabundance. But it is absolutely opposed to pouring five hundred or any other number of millions of public money down any Latin-American rat holes to subsidize our own competition and possibly to find their way into Hitler's coffers or certainly, in no small degree, into the pockets of various satellites of the assorted dictatorships of the banana Republics.

Can't Be Bought

Sure, we need Pan-American solidarity and friendship, but we can't buy it. The only thing that will make it or any worthwhile basis, s cold-blooded community of interest. If that isn't there, any amount of billions is just money thrown away. Mr. Roosevelt has neither right nor reason in calling this a "loan," intimating that one year's operation will do the trick, of limiting his request to half a billion. It is well known in Washington that this first step is part of a two-million dollar program to make Uncle Sam the international broker for all the products of the Western World.

That too, is grotesque fantasy. Its cost would eventually take us out of the multiplication tables and into the field of logarithms. The essence of all New Deal planning, statesmanship, diplomacy and solution of all public problems can be expressed in a single phrase "give us millions of dollars. As statesmanship, that is about as realistic as Santa Claus and Aladdin's lamp. —Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

THE INVENTOR OF W. P. A. TELLS KNUDSEN HOW TO SET UP THE MACHINERY

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Hints are reaching Washington that Herr Hitler is experiencing considerable difficulty in consolidating the Nazis' dominance in all the countries they've been conquering so rapidly of late.

Adolf Hitler

These stories are vague, of course, on account of the censorship, but they come from so many different sources, are so increasingly numerous and are in such general agreement that, by state departmetal and army and navy officials, all of whom are receiving them, they're beginning to be quite widely credited.

The blitzkrieg is almost incredibly and quickly effective, to be sure, but it has to be followed by a civil set-up to keep the vanquished populations in order, and working to the Germans' advantage.

Now, naturally these poupulations, although beaten, are in no pro-German frame of mind. They still have to be policed and coereed and everlastingly spied on, or it's a foregone conclusion that they'll turn outright rebellious at the first opportunity.

A country having been militarily defeated, Herr Hitler's system is to establish for it a government of its own citizens—but honest-to-goodness totalitarians, such as can be found in small numbers almost anywhere. It goes virtually without saying, however, that their own countrymen hate these functionaries, probably more than they hate even Germans. Moreover, Adolf himself is suspicious of them; they require constant watching.

Himmler on the Job

So, as fast as a beaten country capitulates, Herr Himmler, chief of the German Gestapo, appears in its capital, and proceeds to organize a Nazi secret service.

This might be all right if Herr Himmler had only one or two countries to worry about.

But he has on his hands now Austria, Poland, Czechoslavakia, Denmark, Norway, Holland, Belgium little Luxemburg and France.

This must spread the Gestapo pretty thin.

In short, it appears, Adolf has done his conquering so fast that he hasn't got his conquerees thoroughly conquered.

The Fuehrer is threatened with a problem somewhat like Japan's. The Japs can lick the Chinese at any given spot, but all of China won't STAY licked. The Nazis have a lot of eastern Europe, Scandinavia, the Low Countries and France temporarily DOWN, but will they stay OUT?

The question critics ask is:

"Although Adolf has taken off a tremendously big bite and is industriously and, up to date, quite successfully chewing it, can he finally swallow and assimilate it?"

There are skeptics.

More, Too

And even if he gets away with this bite the meal won't be finished.

Sweden, to be sure, wouldn't be much of an additional mouthful.

But Britain isn't disposed of yet.

Russia also shows signs of turning ugly.

Nor is Italy dependable. The Italians are capable of flopping out of a bargain with Germany. They did in the last World war. They were pledged then to help the kaiser. First they didn't do it. Then they actually went in on the other side. Wilhelm referred to them outright as "traitors."

Adolf obviously is gambling on Spain, but there Dictator Franco's tie-up with Il Duce Mussolini is a good deal closer than his relations with the Feuhrer. If Benito reneges on Hitler, Franco's likely to renege with him.

To Sum Up

Summing it all up there are plenty of competent observers who say that:

Adolf appears to be winning today.

They think he may WIN—for the time being.

But they don't believe his triumph, if he scores one, will last long.

They compare him with Napoleon—and everybody knows how HE ended.

Nevertheless, it'll be quite a record for that one-time house painter if he goes down in history as a second Napoleon—their respective finishes notwithstanding.

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

The principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Maryland State Poultry Council, to be held at Elkton on Wednesday, July 31, will be the Honorable Willard H. Allen, secretary of agriculture for the state of New Jersey. Mr. Allen is an outstanding poultryman in his own right, having been extension poultry specialist for several years, and he was also head of the poultry department at the University of New Jersey. He is a good speaker and every poultryman in Maryland who can do so should hear him.

The acreage of barley in Maryland continues in increase, being estimated at 76,000 acres this year compared with 72,000 acres last year and an average of 31,000 acres from 1929-38.

Active enforcement of the Maryland Fresh Egg law is expected to give Maryland producers a special interest in the third annual Poultry Products Marketing School, which will be held at the University of Maryland, September 13 to 15, according to James M. Gwin, associate professor of poultry marketing.

Interest in the first annual cooperative institute, which will be held at the University of Maryland on August 13 to 15, has been greatly increased by the changing economic conditions and the new problems confronting all lines of business, including co-operative marketing organizations, according to Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the extension service.

Factographs

The so-called bloodhounds of the early south and Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," were really not bloodhounds, but ferocious beasts introduced into Cuba and South America by the Spaniards. They were a cross between a ferocious war-dog of the ancients and the large Spanish pointer.

Gross income of Missouri farmers in 1939 was $21,162,000 greater than the $300,692,000 total reported for 1938, the state agricultural department estimated.

Dependence Our Chief Menace

From the Industrial News Review

Today this country stands unified, devoted to the proposition that here, if nowhere else in the world, democracy shall be preserved and made secure.

And the people are coming to realize that the preservation of the democratic system involves more than merely spending billions for military weapons, important as that is. The preservation of democracy means that we must again analyze the meaning of democracy—and again return to those principles on which the nation was founded.

Those principles are simple and basic. Certain powers were given to government—the power over currency, over national defense, over foreign policy, and so on. The balance of powers were reserved to the people. The founders realized that government is a non-producer—that all production and creation must come from the individual. And they realized that strict limitation of the activities of government was necessary if freedom was to live.

In recent years we have been drifting away from true democratic government. We have put government into business. We have all but destroyed the rights of the states. We have gone a long way toward the ruinous theory that government owes everyone a living. We have destroyed local independence, local pride, local self-sufficiency. We have become a nation of beggars, feeding at the public trough.

This has cost us tens of billions in taxes and increased federal debt. Yet, serious as that problem is, it is the least important phase of the trend. Vitally important has been the change for the worse in the American character—the loss of those traditional characteristics of independence and self-reliance. Dependence always breeds dictatorship. Dependence always menaces liberty, and the democratic way of life.

If democracy is to live, the democratic virtues of self-reliance and independence must come back into their own. Government must again be confined to those duties given it by the Constitution. Industry and individuals must realize again that they can no longer expect manna from Washington for sustenance. Then that democracy of which we talk so much in idle phrases will really survive. Then we shall be strong and secure.

Hymie Augen Says Tank Knowledge Is Essential Now

Edwin C. Hill

Hymie Augen dropped in today with a crumpled newspaper clipping which he had been hoarding since the date of its publication — June 16, 1937. A story carrying a Berlin date-line, it gave an account of a military review in Berlin. What interested Mr. Augen was the following:

Foreign military experts accorded high praise to the smartness and precision of maneuvers and to the carriage of the men and general effect of fitness and discipline, but there was less enthusiasm about the probable effectiveness of the motorized equipment. Several foreign intelligence services have been keenly interested in the extensive use of ersatz materials by the Germans in their rearmament effort, and so far as this correspondent has been able to learn, they were not profoundly impressed by the result. There were several hints that this was a jerry-built war machinery, and even more direct criticisms of what certain foreign experts consider excessive use of hasty and untried mechanization."

There was much more in this vein. Mr. Augen commented:

"They had me wondering if these German tanks was made out of old pieces of rubber hose and beer bottle caps and things like that and maybe if a rabbit would kick one of them it would fall to pieces."

A Cow, Not Tanks

Mr. Augen had a short work-out as a light heavy, in his youth, before he bacame a stuss-dealer, which may account for the fact that his opening is always a feint, and then he lands somewhere else. So help me, what was burning him up was not the German tanks, but Elsie, the World's fair cow. "Don't get me wrong," he said. "I haven't anything against cows. I was glad to see you editors give this Elsie a nice tumble. My cousin's brother-in-law had a cow, once, over in Union City. I went over and saw it. I used to know quite a lot of people that maybe had a cow somewhere in their family. But you guys have got me dizzy.

"For instance, I get up in the morning feeling pretty good and figure I'll take a run out to Empire, and I grab the paper, thinking that Orcus might be pretty good at around twenty-five, but before I can find the racing chart, here's a big dead-pan picture of Elsie, the cow. I don't mind people not paying much attention to me, but, I ask you, wouldn't I have to shoot Adolf Hitler to get my picture in the paper like this cow does? You know I would. And maybe even then they'd just print it once or twice.

"Now if his cow would just do a double back-flip, or play the piano or something you might have some excuse to be always writing her up and putting her picture in the paper, but she didn't even win a running broad jump. And she gets wrote up more than if she was a panda."

Back on Main Line

I interrupted Mr. Augen to ask him what Elsie, the cow, had to do with German tanks. If you watch for the switch you can usually get him back on the main line.

"It was this cow that made me remember I had squirreled that piece about the tanks," he said. "Looking at her picture made me too late to get a bet down on a handicap horse I had a sweet tip on that that made me mad and I said to myself the first time I saw you I was going to squawk about a lot of expensive guys writing up this cow when they ought to of been finding out what them German tanks was made of, and if we should get some tanks of our own that wasn't made out of old rubber boots, etc.

"Listen, I get around a lot and I know what the public likes. They want more good murders and fires, etc., and pieces where some guy really pulled something instead of just tried to figure something out like the reporters used to put in the papers before everything went screwey and you had to stumble over a cow to find the racing chart.

Tank Knowledge Needed

Another thing, you didn't use to write up saloons the way you do now. You seem to think everybody in town is a bar-fly. Instead of bothering about saloons and cows, etc., you ought to get up more good race dope and you ought to find out what kind of tanks we are going to get for that ten million dollars they are dealing at Washington. It would serve you right if the Germans would start dropping cows from parachutes, and maybe they will."

We tried to explain everything to Mr. Augen, but felt we were only partially successful. He was pretty sore.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Quotable Quotes

Travel Is Urged As Fine Way To Take Vacation

Call of Open Road Rivals Treatment at Mineral Springs

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Is there any advantage in a vacation at a resort for mineral springs or can't you do as much good taking to the great open spaces?

Spa treatment seems to have more or less gone out of fashion and undeservedly so. It used to be the regular thing for the family to vacation at the springs—now the regular thing is to get in the automobile and ride, ride, ride.

It certainly can be said, in general, that the ride-ride-ride vacation is best suited to young and vigorous members of the family. It's likely to make the older ones need a little time to rest to recover from their vacation. They can have a good, restful, healthy spell at the springs though.

Beneficial Routine

When you get down to analyze the good that mineral springs do, you must acknowledge that the routine life imposed on you at a spa is of more value than the waters. All good spas now have arrangements for baths, dietary regulation, exercise and massage, and competent medical consultation is available to outline a proper daily routine.

This treatment is of value in chronic disabling conditions including those affecting the heart and circulation, rheumatism, digestive-chronic stomach, intestinal and gallbladder conditions, nervous and, occasionally, skin troubles.

Different mineral waters are of value because of their alkaline properties, salts and calcium or phosphate, mild laxative properties, iron content or natural heat. Whether the minute amounts of radium some of them contain do any good is doubtful.

Water as a Cathartic

In thinking of natural cathartics we stress the value of roughage foods and give no attention to the claims of plain, good old-fashioned water.

Water—six to eight glasses a day, more in summer time—is necessary for the maintenance of the equilibrium of the body. As a cathartic it initiates the peristaltic movements of the intestine gently and naturally. Water immediately leaves the stomach and as soon as it reaches the intestine it stimulates the intestinal muscle to movement.

This is the reason for the good effect of a glass or two of hot water drunk in the early morning before breakfast. They should be taken slowly while dressing.

Questions and Answers

A. E., Toronto, Ont.—"Is there any treatment for loss of taste and smell? I had an extremely bad cold three months ago, and though I have enough taste back to distinguish bitter from sweet, my smell is still completely lost."

Answer—Taste and smell will both return in time. There is nothing to do to hasten it except to keep the mouth clean with tooth brushing and gargles and douching the nose with salt water.

De Gaule Broadcast Says French Struggle Will Be Resumed Shortly

LONDON, July 24 (AP) — General Charles De Gaulle, leader of French forces continuing the war, declared in a broadcast to all Frenchmen that the French struggle against Germany and Italy" will be resumed shortly on sea and on land."

French airmen already have rejoined the battle in the air above German territory in a raid Sunday night, he said.

De Gaulle told Frenchmen in German-occupied territory:

"It is your duty, if compelled to work for the enemy, to offer passive resistance by all the means in your power. It must never happen that Frenchmen, either directly or indirectly, should help to forge weapons which may kill other sons of France."

Windsors Will Visit American on Way To the Bahamas

LISBON, July 24. (AP)—The Duke of Windsor and his American-born Duchess probably will leave early in August for America en route to his new post as governor and commander-in-chief of the Bahamas, it was reported here.

One reason for the delay of the Windsors to take up the post assigned the Duke by his brother, King George VI, was said to have been the delay of their luggage and silver coming from France.

It was not made clear just how the Duke would travel.

Mother Tries To Enlist In Army with Her Son

PHILADELPHIA, July 24. (AP)—Mrs. Bessie Solomon accompanied her 18-year-old son to an army recruiting station, watched him enlist, then told the commanding officer:

"I should like to sign up, too—as an ambulance driver or to serve in any other unit that I could."

Lieut-Col. Frederick Schoenfield informed her that the army, for the present at least, couldn't accept women as fighters. But he added: "You are a fine American mother. We shall make a record of this case. The time may come when we can avail ourselves of such patriotism."

The Canadian Indian village of Oka, near Montreal, is inhabited by tribes of Indians who speak two independent dialects, Mohawk and Algonquin.

2 TYPICAL EXPERIENCES
WITH THE FREE MILE-DIAL

CAREFUL SHOPPER type tells you:

"I'm driving the car all day while my husband's at work, so I really buy most of the family gasoline out of my own budget. If I can get even 2 or 3 miles more to a gallon I want to know it. That's why I went to a Conoco station for my Mile-Dial—not just because it's free, but because it really lets you know your true mileage, exactly as a woman wants to really know about anything she pays for. I like buying tested things—the same as any up-to-date consumer—and this certified Mile-Dial is like giving us consumers our own easy way of testing Conoco Bronz-z-z for mileage.

"Anyway, it's almost like a game, dialing your correct mileage on the Mile-Dial—awfully clever. My husband says so, too. By the way, my driving is just as economical as his, the way it proves out on our Mile-Dial. Isn't that interesting? And we're keeping on dialing to make sure of our average in all different driving. Right now, after 61 gallons of Bronz-z-z in all, we're a good 200 miles ahead of what we used to expect from that much gasoline."

"DIDN'T CARE" type of driver says:

"I didn't much care what gasoline I bought as I went along. But this Mile-Dial being free, and really daring you to keep your own close tabs on Conoco Bronz-z-z gasoline, I went for it. And now I know why they've got the gimp to let the Mile-Dial tell all. For you can see by my Mile-Dial right on the dash that I've gone 633 miles on 37 gallons of Conoco Bronz-z-z.

"Now if you'll watch this smart Mile-Dial work—next to automatic—you'll see it giving the answer: . . . above 17 miles to the gallon of Bronz-z-z in this big eight, around town here. But I'm leaving for about a 700-mile trip—mostly open country. So don't be surprised if I even get better mileage. And don't say that's a brag, because you can't help believing the Mile-Dial. Besides settling the economy of Conoco Bronz-z-z it's sort of swell fun dialing your honest mileage. The Conoco boys must know what their gasoline's got, to give you a Mile-Dial free. I'll bet you would like one yourself and they're free as air, around a Conoco station. You ought to go quick and get yours."

Travel Is Urged As Fine Way To Take Vacation

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Is there any advantage in a vacation at a resort for mineral springs or can't you do as much good taking to the great open spaces?

Spa treatment seems to have more or less gone out of fashion and undeservedly so. It used to be the regular thing for the family to vacation at the springs—now the regular thing is to get in the automobile and ride, ride, ride.

It certainly can be said, in general, that the ride-ride-ride vacation is best suited to young and vigorous members of the family. It's likely to make the older ones need a little time to rest to recover from their vacation. They can have a good, restful, healthy spell at the springs though.

Beneficial Routine

When you get down to analyze the good that mineral springs do, you must acknowledge that the routine life imposed on you at a spa is of more value than the waters. All good spas now have arrangements for baths, dietary regulation, exercise and massage, and competent medical consultation is available to outline a proper daily routine.

This treatment is of value in chronic disabling conditions including those affecting the heart and circulation, rheumatism, digestive-chronic stomach, intestinal and gall-bladder conditions, nervous and, occasionally, skin troubles.

Different mineral waters are of value because of their alkaline properties, salts and calcium or phosphate, mild laxative properties, iron content or natural heat. Whether the minute amounts of radium some of them contain do any good is doubtful.

Water as a Cathartic

In thinking of natural cathartics we stress the value of roughage foods and give no attention to the claims of plain, good old-fashioned water.

Water—six to eight glasses a day, more in summer time—is necessary for the maintenance of the equilibrium of the body. As a cathartic it initiates the peristaltic movements of the intestine gently and naturally. Water immediately leaves the stomach and as soon as it reaches the intestine it stimulates the intestinal muscle to movement.

This is the reason for the good effect of a glass or two of hot water drunk in the early morning before breakfast. They should be taken slowly while dressing.

Diet for Underweight

Breakfast: Orange juice—6 ounces; cereal—1 ounce; cream—3½ ounces; glass milk—8 ounces; 1 egg; bacon 1 ounce; toast—3 slices; butter 1 ounce; coffee with cream and sugar.

10 A. M.: Cocoa with cream.

Lunch: Meat — fish — chicken — 3 ounces; potatoes—rice—spaghetti 3½ ounces; salad with mayonnaise; 15 % fruit; bread — 2 slices butter—1 ounce; pie, pudding or ice cream—3½ ounces.

Dinner: Meat — 2 ounces; cooked vegetable; bread — 2 slices; butter—1 ounce; pie, pudding or ice cream—3½ ounces.

Bedtime: Chocolate bar.

Everyone who is on a diet kicks: There is no use saying you can't eat that but that you would do anything to gain weight back.

Questions and Answers

A. E., Toronto, Ont.—"Is there any treatment for loss of taste and smell? I had an extremely bad cold three months ago, and though I have enough taste back to distinguish bitter from sweet, my smell is still completely lost."

Answer—Taste and smell will both return in time. There is nothing to do to hasten it except to keep the mouth clean with tooth brush- and gargles and douching the nose with salt water.

Fishing Trawlers Stand Off German Bomber

LONDON, July 24 (AP)—Three fishing trawlers armed with machine guns stood off a German bomber until British chaser planes drove the Nazi plane away.

"He missed us with eight bombs," one fisherman said. "We kept at him with machine guns and we hit him. That's certain."

De Gaule Broadcast Says French Struggle Will Be Resumed Shortly

LONDON, July 24 (AP) — General Charles De Gaulle, leader of French forces continuing the war, declared in a broadcast to all Frenchmen that the French struggle against Germany and Italy" will be resumed shortly on sea and on land."

French airmen already have rejoined the battle in the air above German territory in a raid Sunday night, he said.

De Gaulle told Frenchmen in German-occupied territory:

"It is your duty, if compelled to work for the enemy, to offer passive resistance by all the means in your power. It must never happen that Frenchmen, either directly or indirectly, should help to forge weapons which may kill other sons of France."

Why Good Grooming requires keeping DARK ARCS DRY

If you still are tolerating perspiration under the arms, just listen to facts about hygiene in these dark arcs that any doctor can give you:

It's uncleanly! That repellant underarm odor signals decay! That perspiration which damages gowns is decomposed!

Perspiration, carrying cast off body wastes, pours out on the skin, mingling with dead skin scales, and microorganisms. Decay begins. Acids form. Fungus may grow and bacteria multiply. Rancid odors appear.

They prevent it, by using Arrid to safely check perspiration. Arrid keeps underarms dry, odorless, 1 to 3 days. No perspiration, no decay, no odor.

Arrid, which safely checks perspiration, is a pure, white, greaseless cream. Harmless to skin and fabrics. Use it any time, after shaving, as you dress . . . 10¢, 39¢, 59¢—at stores which sell toilet goods.

Why Good Grooming requires keeping
DARK ARCS DRY

If you still are tolerating perspiration under the arms, just listen to facts about hygiene in these dark arcs that any doctor can give you:

It's uncleanly! That repellant underarm odor signals decay! That perspiration which damages gowns is decomposed!

Perspiration, carrying cast off body wastes, pours out on the skin, mingling with dead skin scales, and microorganisms. Decay begins. Acids form. Fungus may grow and bacteria multiply. Rancid odors appear.

"It's shocking," say lovely women of today!

They prevent it, by using Arrid to safely check perspiration. Arrid keeps underarms dry, odorless, 1 to 3 days. No perspiration, no decay, no odor.

Arrid, which safely checks perspiration, is a pure, white, greaseless cream. Harmless to skin and fabrics. Use it any time, after shaving, as you dress . . . 10¢, 39¢, 59¢—at stores which sell toilet goods.

More than 25 MILLION jars of Arrid have been sold.

Stocks Drift Lower in Smallest Turnover for Full Day in Years

Only 195,000 Shares Change Hands During a Full Session

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP) — A hot weather run-up in corn and wheat took the speculative spotlight today while the stock market struggled lazily.

A downdrift lowered most shares fractions to around a point but transactions shrank to the smallest for a full session since 1918. The turnover was only 195,200 shares.

Steel shares sagged despite news of a further gain in operations in the Pittsburgh area and estimates national defense projects involved large steel tonnage.

At the close, United States Steel, Bethlehem, Republic and Youngstown were off fractions. Also fractions to a point or so down were American Can, du Pont, Union Carbide, Montgomery Ward, Pennsylvania, Loft, J. C. Penney, United Aircraft, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Kennecott.

In the curb, small declines ruled in American Cyanamid "B", American Gas & Electric, Bath Iron Works, Electric Bond & Share and United Gas. Humble oil and Glen Alden Coal were up a shade. Transactions were 64,000.

Maryland Picture Is Feature at Strand

The picture fuses the color and beauty of the South with the heart story of two spirited young people torn between love and a fierce family pride. The thrilling Maryland Hunt Cup Race, with flaming silks flashing against blue sky and green turf, as stout-hearted thoroughbreds compete in America's most spectacular steeplechase, provides a climax for the film.

The picture's cast includes three leading members—Walter Brennan, Fay Bainter and Hattie McDaniel—who have been awarded "Oscars." In addition, five members of the production staff have been honored. Brennan, that cantankerous, fire-eatin' old codger of "Kentucky," gives another of his characterizations, as do Bainter and McDaniel. Also featured are: Brenda Joyce, John Payne, Charlie Ruggles and Marjorie Weaver.

The Strand will bring to Cumberland's music lovers George King and his orchestra direct from an engagement at the New York World's fair Saturday. On the screen another Paramount picture "Queen of the Mob," starring Ralph Bellamy, Blanche Yurka and J. Carroll Naish, will be offered. The story is based on J. Edgar Hoover's Book "Persons in Hiding."

Sunday another technicolor production will visit the Strand—"Untamed," starring Ray Milland, Patricia Morrison and Akim Tamiroff.

Picturization of Novel Is Maryland Feature

Margaret Sullivan, James Stewart, Robert Young and Frank Morgan head the cast of "The Mortal Storm," film adaptation of the Phyllis Bottome bestseller story of a family caught in the upheaval of a political storm, which is the headline attraction at the Maryland theater.

"The Mortal Storm" unfolds the narrative of a family "somewhere in Europe," happy, contented tolerant, then suddenly awakening to find itself in the throes of a new order of things resulting from political oppression.

The family divides against itself. The sons become involved in the hatreds and passions of the political movement. The daughter breaks her engagement to the man who has loved her for years. The father is taken to a concentration camp. Dramatic moment after dramatic moment punctuate the story which rises to a powerful climax in the loce of the daughter for a man of her own ideals, and their attempt to escape the prison walls of hatred and intolerance around them.

Miss Sullavan, James Stewart and Frank Morgan leave comedy behind to portray roles of stark dramatic intersity in "The Mortal Storm," with Miss Sullavan playing the daughter, Stewart the man with whom she ultimately attempts an escape, and Morgan the father of the tragic family.

Have a Tight Squeeze In Comedy Sequences

Wendy Barrie and Gene Raymond have first-hand information on how a sardine feels.

For two days they played scenes in one end of a small trailer with studio lights, sound apparatus and two cameras crowded on top of them for sequences in RKO Radio's "Cross Country Romance," now showing at the New Liberty theater. If either player shifted his weight to another foot, he would have been out of camera line.

Restricted in this manner, Miss Barrie and Raymond each had to partially disrobe.

Because of the "tightness" of the set, the sound men had to hold microphones under the trailer windows to catch the dialogue, instead of mounting them on the regular sound booms.

Incidentally, Miss Barrie is seen in alluring "scanties" for several sequences in the hilarious romantic comedy.

New Double Feature Bill Is Booked by Embassy

Two features and the first chapter of a new serial are billed for tomorrow at the Embassy theater.

"Covered Wagon Days", with the Three Mesquiteers, will be one feature and the other will be a comedy, "Blondie on a Budget," featuring the Bumsteads.

The new chapter offering will be the first installment of "Terry and the Pirates", based on the Milton Caniff carton strip with Terry played by William Trach, Pat by Granville Owen, Connie by Allen Jung and Big Stop by Victor De Camp.

Two Features Are Offered at Garden

Tables fifteen feet high, a chair large enough to accommodate an elephant in comfort, a pair of scissors four feet long, an inkwell in which a man could take a bath—these are only a few of the massive props to be seen in "Dr. Cyclops," Paramount's fantasy, now showing at the Garden theater.

These strange objects were required by a story, that tells of a scientist who invents a radium ray machine to "shrink" human beings to capsule creatures one-fifth their normal size! Filmed in Technicolor, "Dr. Cyclops" recounts the terrible experiences of the humanettes in a world suddenly grown gigantic in proportion. Its cast is headed by Albert Dekker (in the title role), Janice Logan and Thomas Coley.

After fifteen years of motion picture character roles, Richard Carle, a musical comedy player for more than two decades, has his first chance to sing on the screen in Universal's "Ma! He's Making Eyes at Me," musical production now at the Garden.

The song, "I Found a Lemon in the Garden of Love," was featured in a musical comedy by Carle in 1906.

THEIR LOVE TORN ASUNDER

Stocks Drift Lower in Smallest Turnover for Full Day in Years

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP) — A hot weather run-up in corn and wheat took the speculative spotlight today while the stock market struggled lazily.

A downdrift lowered most shares fractions to around a point but transactions shrank to the smallest for a full session since 1918. The turnover was only 195,200 shares.

Steel shares sagged despite news of a further gain in operations in the Pittsburgh area and estimates national defense projects involved large steel tonnage.

At the close, United States Steel, Bethlehem, Republic and Youngstown were off fractions. Also fractions to a point or so down were American Can, du Pont, Union Carbide, Montgomery Ward, Pennsylvania, Loft, J. C. Penney, United Aircraft, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Kennecott.

In the curb, small declines ruled in American Cyanamid "B", American Gas & Electric, Bath Iron Works, Electric Bond & Share and United Gas. Humble oil and Glen Alden Coal were up a shade. Transactions were 64,000.

The picture fuses the color and beauty of the South with the heart story of two spirited young people torn between love and a fierce family pride. The thrilling Maryland Hunt Cup Race, with flaming silks flashing against blue sky and green turf, as stout-hearted thoroughbreds compete in America's most spectacular steeplechase, provides a climax for the film.

The picture's cast includes three leading members—Walter Brennan, Fay Bainter and Hattie McDaniel—who have been awarded "Oscars." In addition, five members of the production staff have been honored. Brennan, that cantankerous, fire-eatin' old codger of "Kentucky," gives another of his characterizations, as do Bainter and McDaniel. Also featured are: Brenda Joyce, John Payne, Charlie Ruggles and Marjorie Weaver.

The Strand will bring to Cumberland's music lovers George King and his orchestra direct from an engagement at the New York World's fair Saturday. On the screen another Paramount picture "Queen of the Mob," starring Ralph Bellamy, Blanche Yurka and J. Carroll Naish, will be offered. The story is based on J. Edgar Hoover's Book "Persons in Hiding."

Sunday another technicolor production will visit the Strand—"Untamed," starring Ray Milland, Patricia Morrison and Akim Tamiroff.

Picturization of Novel Is Maryland Feature

Margaret Sullivan, James Stewart, Robert Young and Frank Morgan head the cast of "The Mortal Storm," film adaptation of the Phyllis Bottome bestseller story of a family caught in the upheaval of a political storm, which is the headline attraction at the Maryland theater.

"The Mortal Storm" unfolds the narrative of a family "somewhere in Europe," happy, contented tolerant, then suddenly awakening to find itself in the throes of a new order of things resulting from political oppression.

The family divides against itself. The sons become involved in the hatreds and passions of the political movement. The daughter breaks her engagement to the man who has loved her for years. The father is taken to a concentration camp. Dramatic moment after dramatic moment punctuate the story which rises to a powerful climax in the loce of the daughter for a man of her own ideals, and their attempt to escape the prison walls of hatred and intolerance around them.

Miss Sullavan, James Stewart and Frank Morgan leave comedy behind to portray roles of stark dramatic intersity in "The Mortal Storm," with Miss Sullavan playing the daughter, Stewart the man with whom she ultimately attempts an escape, and Morgan the father of the tragic family.

Have a Tight Squeeze In Comedy Sequences

Wendy Barrie and Gene Raymond have first-hand information on how a sardine feels.

For two days they played scenes in one end of a small trailer with studio lights, sound apparatus and two cameras crowded on top of them for sequences in RKO Radio's "Cross Country Romance," now showing at the New Liberty theater. If either player shifted his weight to another foot, he would have been out of camera line.

Restricted in this manner, Miss Barrie and Raymond each had to partially disrobe.

Because of the "tightness" of the set, the sound men had to hold microphones under the trailer windows to catch the dialogue, instead of mounting them on the regular sound booms.

Incidentally, Miss Barrie is seen in alluring "scanties" for several sequences in the hilarious romantic comedy.

New Double Feature Bill Is Booked by Embassy

Two features and the first chapter of a new serial are billed for tomorrow at the Embassy theater.

"Covered Wagon Days", with the Three Mesquiteers, will be one feature and the other will be a comedy, "Blondie on a Budget," featuring the Bumsteads.

The new chapter offering will be the first installment of "Terry and the Pirates", based on the Milton Caniff carton strip with Terry played by William Trach, Pat by Granville Owen, Connie by Allen Jung and Big Stop by Victor De Camp.

Two Features Are Offered at Garden

Tables fifteen feet high, a chair large enough to accommodate an elephant in comfort, a pair of scissors four feet long, an inkwell in which a man could take a bath—these are only a few of the massive props to be seen in "Dr. Cyclops," Paramount's fantasy, now showing at the Garden theater.

These strange objects were required by a story, that tells of a scientist who invents a radium ray machine to "shrink" human beings to capsule creatures one-fifth their normal size! Filmed in Technicolor, "Dr. Cyclops" recounts the terrible experiences of the humanettes in a world suddenly grown gigantic in proportion. Its cast is headed by Albert Dekker (in the title role), Janice Logan and Thomas Coley.

After fifteen years of motion picture character roles, Richard Carle, a musical comedy player for more than two decades, has his first chance to sing on the screen in Universal's "Ma! He's Making Eyes at Me," musical production now at the Garden.

The song, "I Found a Lemon in the Garden of Love," was featured in a musical comedy by Carle in 1906.

THEIR LOVE TORN ASUNDER

THE DAILY STORY

TEST FLIGHT

A Young Man with Advanced Ideas and an Old Man with a Beautiful Daughter Confront an Ancient Problem

By GLENN REILLY

"I could make Ramsey's the best store on Main street if I had half a chance," young Ted Barnett confided with a disconsolate edge to his tone. Ellen Ramsey listened thoughtfully as he continued. "What chance have I, working in the promotion department under the world's prize fuddy-duddy, Clint Nichols? He takes his Victorian ideas straight from your dad!"

"You've worked for dad for nearly two years, Ted." Ellen considered. "Couldn't you have sort of—well, swung Clint around to using some modern ideas, in that time? It seems to me that we have just about the same sort of merchandise as Drake's across the street, and Drake's stores have given Dad gray hair. Couldn't we do something about it?"

"Sure, wait around until Clint passes out from old age, but Ramsey's will be out of the picture by that time!" Ted declared pessimistically. "I can't wait that long anyway. I'd thought of asking your dad a certain question about you now, but how can I when he thinks I'm a flop?"

"You can prove to Dad that you aren't darling." Ellen decided with inspiration. "Get yourself a job with Drake's Stores and show Dad what your ideas really can do. Take a chance!"

"You mean that I should quit working for your dad and go over to his competitor? He'd never forgive me, especially if I did get a chance to put my ideas to work. And that would put me farther than ever away from asking him that question!"

"You've got a partner now, Ted". Ellen enlightened him. "You go to work on Peter Drake for a position in his promotion department, and I'll take care of the home propaganda department!".

Bart Ramsey accepted Ted's resignation with admirable equanimity and with a fortitude which indicated that he brooked no great feeling of loss. But he was curious.

"I hope that it isn't because the job was too hard that you're leaving us, Ted," he declared, laying a paternal hand on the young man's shoulder. "I've liked having you around, and I know that Ellen has too." He coughed discreetly. "In fact, that's why I was a little surprised when she suggested that you were wasting your time working at Ramsey's. Got any ideas about it?"

"I've got a million ideas about it, Mr. Ramsey, but if I told them to you, it would be just a waste of valuable time!" Ted told him sincerely. "Personally, I have faith that the Ramsey stores would be ace high if they came out of the 1890 fog they've been wandering in for years. I'm starting in with Peter Drake tomorrow morning and see if he can use my ideas!"

"Come here, Ellen!"

"I like to see a boy with spirit, Ted," old man Ramsey approved, unruffled. "I hope you make good . . . but I doubt it. I think that two years service here has shown that promotion is not your game. Good luck, my boy!"

For nearly a month Ellen heard little from Ted. Twice he snatched fragmentary moments away from his new work to take her to luncheon, but on even those occasions he was both vague and seemingly distracted by considerations other than the beautiful, blue-eyed daughter of his ex-boss.

Then the results of all his preoccupation began to make themselves felt. Drake & Company burgeoned forth one morning in a protective covering of painted boards which ran straight across the display windows. Workmen bustled in and out for days carrying materials of building, and from his office directly across the street Bart Ramsey watched them with mystified concern.

"Come here, Ellen!" he commanded, his color rising as the import of the transformation across the street began to make itself clear. "Look at what that young whippersnapper Barnett's doing. He's talked Pete Drake into one of his crazy notions about modern display, just like a big city store!"

Ellen gazed at the sight with a smile. "It's your own fault, father dear," she reminded him mercilessly. "Ted gave Clint the same idea six months ago and you and he turned up your noses at it. Pete Drake is a pretty shrewd operator. He'll have all the business in this end of town once the people know what he's doing."

Ellen showed him a full-page display ad. Her father spouted in consternation. "Modernizing his entire store; It'll cost him so much he'll never pull out of the red. If I had Ted here I'd fire him!"

"You didn't appreciate him when he was here, father, so I guess you'll have to take the consequences. Pete Drake will make back in a hurry all the money the modernizing is costing. Maybe I'd better see about getting a job with him too."

"Hmmph!" her father snorted, never taking his eyes from the spectacle at Drake's store. His daughter waited for the space it would take a boiling teakettle to stop bubbling and then coughed discreetly.

"You know, father, this one he's springing for Pete Drake isn't really his best promotion plan at all, he told me. It's a sort of second-best plan he's using for a test. The other one, the good one, is a honey."

Bart Ramsey grunted and frowned terribly. "Get that young renegade on the phone and have him come up here pronto!" he barked. "I don't care what he's doing or what he has to do. What does he think he can do—desert the outfit that gave him a start? We'll see about that!"

Ellen took up the telephone.

"What? Your dad wants me to come back to work?" Ted's voice came with a new edge of sureness over the wires. "I'm sorry, Ellen, but I've just nailed down a three-year contract with Drake!"

"Oh, Ted," Ellen cried, "you didn't, really?"

"You bet I did, honey," the young man's crisp voice asserted confidently. "This is my day for contracts. Or did you know? You and I are getting married just as soon as you can calm your father down enough to get him into a cutaway to give a bride away!"—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

How To Foil Thefts From Monuments

CHICAGO (AP) — The city monument committee, believing that vandals who chip bronze letters off plaques on public monuments and statues can't afford to be seen carrying ladders around, has made these suggestions:

(1) If you put a bronze plaque on a monument, put it as high as possible. (2) Construct the pedestal so that it does not form a natural step, permitting vandals to the plaques.

Last Name Is First, And First Is Safety

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Safety First is not a slogan with a 20-year-old medican student at the University of Oklahoma—it's his name. And Safety firmly believes there is something in a name.

Although he likes black cats and doesn't bother to walk around a stepladder, he never has been injured or seriously ill. He flies an airplane and drives an automobile, too.

Safety, son of Dr. and Mrs. F. R. First of Crescent, Okla., says his name has made life interesting. The problem of introducing himself obviously leads him into all kinds of situations.

Commonest is this one:

"How do you do? I'm Safety First."

"Safety First, eh? Ha, ha! I'm Be Prepared."

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE FORCING PASS

WHENEVER it is certain your partner knows you have enough strength to bid again, your pass of an opponent's bid is an absolute force upon him to take some action when it is his turn. It commands him either to double the opponents or bid again. It gives him an option, telling him, in effect, that you don't know whether the side can score a profitable set or not, and that you are putting the decision up to him. If he passes, instead of doubling or bidding, your only recourse is to look for a new partner.

	♠ 6 3 2 ♥ K 4 ♦ A 10 7 4 2 ♣ 10 5 4
♠ 9 7 5 4 ♥ J 6 3 ♦ K ♣ 9 7 6 3 2	N. W. E. S.	♠ J 10 ♥ A 10 9 8 7 2 ♦ Q J 9 8 5 ♣ None
	♠ A K Q 8 ♥ Q 5 ♦ 6 3 ♣ A K Q J 8

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦	1 ♥
2 ♠	3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥
Pass	Pass	Pass

What a terrible pass was that last one by North! His pass on the preceding round was really good bridge, because there was no very clear-cut good bid he could make himself and he knew from South's game-guarantee jump that South was prepared to do something. In fact, that pass was a good one, to give South a chance to double if he wished.

But when South had passed East's 4-Hearts, he put the problem up to North, to see if North would rather double than bid. When North felt he could not double the bid profitably, his duty was to call 5-Clubs. This could have been made easily, with the loss of only one trick each in the two red suits. North had enough cards to support the suit, which had been bid first by South and therefore was probably of at least five cards, the spades being probably only four.

The basic difference between North's first pass and his second one was that the first time he was passing a bid by West, so that South would surely get another chance, whereas the second time he was passing a bid by East, and South would get no more chance at it.

The 4-Hearts got set only one trick not doubled, small consolation for loss of a game.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ K Q 10 ♥ Q J ♦ Q J 9 7 3 ♣ A K J

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

If South bids 1-Diamond, North 1-Heart, South 2-No Trumps, North 3-Hearts and South 3-No Trumps. West leading the spade 9, how much does that card tell East about what declarer holds in the suit?

Ride 'Em Cowboy!

LUSK, Wyo., (AP) — A car failed to turn when the road did. Harry Miller, highway patrolman, said by actual measurement the wheels didn't touch the ground for seventy-two feet after it left the road.

The car rolled over several times and landed right side up 390 feet away. The driver still could grin and had no serious injuries.

After bananas are picked, the plant is cut down to make way for young suckers sprouting from its root. West Indian natives chop it up, while still green, and feed it to their cows and pigs. When the sap has dried, the fibrous bark yields a strong thread which is made by the natives into door mats, sleeping mats, sun hats and ropes.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

A Young Man with Advanced Ideas and an Old Man with a Beautiful Daughter Confront an Ancient Problem

By GLENN REILLY

"I could make Ramsey's the best store on Main street if I had half a chance," young Ted Barnett confided with a disconsolate edge to his tone. Ellen Ramsey listened thoughtfully as he continued. "What chance have I, working in the promotion department under the world's prize fuddy-duddy, Clint Nichols? He takes his Victorian ideas straight from your dad!"

"You've worked for dad for nearly two years, Ted," Ellen considered. "Couldn't you have sort of—well, swung Clint around to using some modern ideas, in that time? It seems to me that we have just about the same sort of merchandise as Drake's across the street, and Drake's stores have given Dad gray hair. Couldn't we do something about it?"

"Sure, wait around until Clint passes out from old age, but Ramsey's will be out of the picture by that time!" Ted declared pessimistically. "I can't wait that long anyway. I'd thought of asking your dad a certain question about you now, but how can I when he thinks I'm a flop?"

"Come here, Ellen!"

"You can prove to Dad that you aren't darling," Ellen decided with inspiration. "Get yourself a job with Drake's Stores and show Dad what your ideas really can do. Take a chance!"

"You mean that I should quit working for your dad and go over to his competitor? He'd never forgive me, especially if I did get a chance to put my ideas to work. And that would put me farther than ever away from asking him that question!"

"You've got a partner now, Ted", Ellen enlightened him. "You go to work on Peter Drake for a position in his promotion department, and I'll take care of the home propaganda department!".

Bart Ramsey accepted Ted's resignation with admirable equanimity and with a fortitude which indicated that he brooked no great feeling of loss. But he was curious.

"I hope that it isn't because the job was too hard that you're leaving us, Ted," he declared, laying a paternal hand on the young man's shoulder. "I've liked having you around, and I know that Ellen has too." He coughed discreetly. Water Trouble Reported Again Near Frostburg

Eckhart, Welsh Hill and Eckhart Flat Report Another Shortage

FROSTBURG, July 24 — Residents of Eckhart Flat, Welsh Hill and Eckhart who are water consumers of the Frostburg Water Company have been appealing to the city for water for several days.

The Frostburg Water Company, which had been supplying Welsh Hill with city water, requested the council to cut off the city supply last Wednesday, stating that they would buy city water for their Welsh Hill customers only when they were not able to supply water from their own reservoir.

Since city water was shut off, the supply for Welsh Hill gradually disappeared and the Frostburg Water Company was again forced to request the city to turn city water in their lines, which was done today.

Residents of Eckhart and Eckhart Flat reported a shortage of water today, some consumers stating that they have been out of water all this week. Water Commissioner William Lemmert said he was informed by Samuel Walker, manager of the Frostburg Water Company, that a leak was discovered near Barn Hill yesterday. This leak, Walker told Lemmert, has been repaired, and Eckhart will probably have sufficient water.

According to information secured from Eckhart Flat consumers, Mr. Walker, who could not be reached at his office today, blames the shortage of water on an open spigot somewhere on the line. Harvey, the florist, whose green houses are connected with the Frostburg Water Company system, said he was assured by Mr. Walker that his company was making every effort to discover the leaking spigot.

Harvey said the water, when turned on again today, was muddy.

Water Commissioner Lemmert stated today that the city would be glad to sell water to Eckhart Flat consumers. He said the mains have already been laid for servicing this section of the town, but many of the consumers prefer to stay on the Frostburg Water Company line.

Scott Is Bidder

According to information received today from Finance Commissioner Conrad Kroll, who was instructed by the mayor and city commissioners to secure bids on auditing the city's books, one bid from William Scott, Cumberland, former county auditor, has already been received.

Mr. Kroll stated that he has secured the names of other auditing firms and expects to have bids from some of them by August 5, the date the matter of awarding a contract is to be considered by the city council.

Compulsory Military Training Bill 'Objectionable,' W. Va. CIO Told

Debate on Resolution Favoring Measure Cut Short by Officials

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., July 24. (AP)—A floor battle over a resolution advocating compulsory military service was cut short today without action when officials of the West Virginia State Industrial Union Council (CIO) told delegates some phases of the present bill are unsatisfactory to labor.

Several World war veterans spoke on behalf of the resolution after it was introduced, asserting that lack of proper military training caused higher numbers of casualties than nevessary during that conflict.

Cite 'Objectionable' Features

Other delegates opposed the resolution, but Vice-President Fremont Davis of Fairmont and President John B. Easton of Charleston ended the argument when they said a blanket endorsement might contribute toward passage of the bill now before Congress and that it has several "objectionable" features.

They did not explain what the "objectionable" phases were.

The convention finally decided to refer the resolution to the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Resolutions Adopted

Among the resolutions adopted were those favoring:

A state labor relations act patterned after the federal law.

A weekly payday for miners instead of the semi-monthly payday.

Repeal of the poll tax law.

Taxation of gas and oil to bring production costs of these fuels on a par with coal.

Bonding of employers to assure payment of wages.

Oppose 'Short Ballot'

The convention opposed ratification of the "short ballot" constitutional amendment, which would reduce the number of elective officials to three, and after lengthy debate, went on record against abolition of "scrip"—tokens used for payment for goods in coal company stores.

Representative Jennings Randolph of Elkins told the delegates that a return of the Republican party to power would mean rapid destruction of "all the vital labor legislation of the last seven and a half years."

Randolph, a Democrat, said he was a supporter of the Neely-Keller bill for federal inspection of coal mines. He said, in reference to the argument that the measure would encroach on state authority:

"That argument has been used against every piece of progressive legislation put on the statute books in the last seven and a half years."

Judge Withdraws

HARRISVILLE, W. Va., July 24. (AP)—Circuit Judge S. O. Prunty announced today he had disqualified himself in the case of Lulu Blair, pretty 36-year-old doctor's daughter accused of fatally shooting her mother. No reason was given.

The judge who will hear the case has not been selected. Defense counsel announced an application for Miss Blair's release on bail would be made shortly.

Delegates at Convention Cheer and Endorse Roosevelt

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., July 24 (AP) — The West Virginia State Industrial Council (CIO) endorsed tonight the nomination of President Roosevelt for a third term because "he has proved himself to be a friend of labor and of the common people.

The action, predicted for many days by union officials who had tested the sentiment of delegates attending the annual convention, was taken upon recommendation of Fremont Davis, president of District 31 of the United Mine Workers and chairman of the resolutions committee.

Similar action was taken on the Democratic candidacies of Senator M. M. Neely, nominee for governor, and Judge Harley M. Kilgore, nominee for the U. S. Senate.

Assured yesterday that John L. Lewis, bushy-browed CIO leader who several times had predicted Roosevelt's third term defeat, would follow the wishes of his union, delegates cheered when Davis' resolution was introduced.

The resolution pointed out that "we do not deem it advisable under present world difficulties to change the administration x x x."

President John B. Easton, announcing that many matters remain to be considered, ordered the convention held over for another day and said additional committee reports probably would be heard tomorrow morning.

Special Grand Jury Called To Consider Blair Murder Case

HARRISVILLE, W. Va., July 24 (AP)—Ritchie County Prosecutor Max DeBerry said a special term of Circuit court will be called Monday for grand jury consideration of the case of Lulu Blair, physician's daughter charged with the slaying of her mother.

The attractive, brown-haired woman, about 36, was held without bond by Magistrate A. P. Hatfield, July 17, "to answer to an indictment returned by the grand jury.

Miss Blair pleaded innocent to the charge.

Her mother, Mrs. Vernie Curtis Blair, about 65, was found shot to death on July 12. Dr. C. A. Blair testified at the magistrate's hearing that his wife and daughter were the only persons in his home when he left and that the shooting occurred there shortly afterward.

DeBerry said no motive had been established. He reported the special term was called after the defense had requested it.

Midland Firemen To Hold Carnival

Volunteers Complete Plans for Big Street Bazaar Next Week

MIDLAND, July 24.—Monday marks the day that most of this section, particularly the children, have been awaiting since the close of the fire department's street bazaar last July. This year's renewal of the bazaar promises to be bigger and better than any previous company activity.

The Bright Way Exposition will be occupying the three vacant lots adjoining Firemen's hall by Monday night and will have its three rides ready for the children to enjoy themselves. The rides consist of a ferris wheel, chairplane and little cars. There will also be a number of tent shows for the grown-ups including a horse show and a picture tent, among other things.

Thursday night the climax will be reached with a large street parade. The line of parade will form in back of Firemen's hall, then march up to Main street and up the new highway to Paradise street intersection, over Paradise street to Big Lane and then back to the point of origin. Many answers have been received from various fire companies and organizations in this area promising that they will participate in this parade.

A hook-up contest, originally planned, has been postponed because of lack of interest shown by all fire companies except Westernport.

The volunteer women's committee is sponsoring a cold plate supper to be held Thursday evening in the hall for anyone who wishes to avoid cooking during the hot weather.

Friday evening will feature a band concert by the Arion band of Frostburg under the leadership of R. Hilary Lancaster.

Saturday evening will again be parade night with the drum and bugle corps of the CCC organization from Oakland being featured. This night is also being designated as Scout Night with the Boy Scout troops of Frostburg, Vale Summit and Midland and the Girl Scout troop of Midland being in the line of parade.

Games Party

Myrtle Temple, Pythian Sisters, will sponsor a games party in the Red Men's hall Thursday evening. Refreshments will be served.

Deport Aliens Who Won't Become Citizens, Rep. Randolph Urges

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., July 24—"Aliens living in this country for more than one year, holding American jobs, accepting the freedom and privileges of American citizens, should take out citizenship papers or else be deported to the country from which they came," declared Representative Jennings Randolph before a large crowd at Pine Grove Methodist church at Needmore Saturday afternoon.

"Your government does not employ aliens in any capacity, and private industry should adopt the same qualifications for those in their employ," the congressman continued.

Randolph told of an investigation in Pennsylvania which disclosed that there were over 130,000 aliens in that state, having lived there an average of fourteen years. Of that total, only twenty-one out of each 100 had even signified their intention of becoming citizens. The research also showed a total of 3,800,000 persons in the United States who are not citizens.

"We cannot permit such a condition to exist in our country with the record of 'fifth columnists' and their activities in eight European countries as an example," said Randolph.

"The Communist party receives its orders and instructions from a foreign government and is in no sense an American political party" he went on. "In West Virginia alone, more than five thousand Communists signed a petition requesting that the Communist ticket be placed on the West Virginia ballot for this November's election. I am happy to say there were no means from this South Branch Valley section or the eastern Panhandle counties on that document, but there is definite evidence of boring from within by foreign agents in our state."

The congressman conducted an open forum and answered questions for nearly on hour. He explained the difference between the Communist and the Socialist parties told of the methods of administering the government in the dictator-ruled countries and spoke briefly

Communist Candidate for Governor Escapes Trial Again in Vote Fraud

LEWISBURG, W. Va., July 24 (AP)—The case of Oscar O. Wheeler, Communist candidate for governor under indictment for fraud, again was handed back to Raleigh county today on jurisdictional grounds.

It was the second time a trial had been sought outside of Raleigh county after the 53-year-old goat farmer was granted a change of venue.

Heeding a defense plea, Judge Mark L. Jarrett ruled the Greenbrier Circuit court here had no jurisdiction in the case as it now stands.

Previously the Kanawha Intermediate court ruled it lacked jurisdiction in all cases arising outside that county.

Wheeler was indicted at Beckley on charges that he fraudulently obtained signers to a petition for placing the Communist ticket on the November ballot.

Before any witnesses were sworn today, Frank Burdette, one of the defense attorneys, told the court that Wheeler had not entered any plea, either guilty or not guilty, nor had he filed any motions before Criminal Court Judge Harley M. Kilgore at Beckley.

Because there had been no arraignment, Burdette argued, the case could not come under jurisdiction of the Greenbrier court.

Judge Jarrett delayed a ruling while prosecution counsel conferred, then remanded the case to its original court.

Future procedure remained in doubt. The next regular term of Raleigh Criminal court is in October. Wheeler, who unsuccessfully tried to obtain his release on bond, was returned to Beckley.

Civil Liberties Union To Fight Effort To Bar Communists from Ballot

LEWISBURG, W. Va., July 24. (AP)—An attorney for the Civil Liberties Union promised today that impending court action to bar the Communist party from the November ballot would be fought to the U. S. Supreme Court if necessary.

Harold W. Houston of Charleston, one of the attorneys here to defend Oscar O. Wheeler, Communist candidate for governor, said he had been informed action would be taken soon in an effort to prevent the ticket from getting on the West Virginia ballot.

The American Legion, which launched an attack shortly after the Communist nominating petition was filed May 13, has said that it would go into court to demand that the party's candidates be barred. Court action has been taken against several signers of the petition on the ground they also voted in the May 14 primary.

Water Trouble Reported Again Near Frostburg

Eckhart, Welsh Hill and Eckhart Flat Report Another Shortage

FROSTBURG, July 24 — Residents of Eckhart Flat, Welsh Hill and Eckhart who are water consumers of the Frostburg Water Company have been appealing to the city for water for several days.

The Frostburg Water Company, which had been supplying Welsh Hill with city water, requested the council to cut off the city supply last Wednesday, stating that they would buy city water for their Welsh Hill customers only when they were not able to supply water from their own reservoir.

Since city water was shut off, the supply for Welsh Hill gradually disappeared and the Frostburg Water Company was again forced to request the city to turn city water in their lines, which was done today.

Residents of Eckhart and Eckhart Flat reported a shortage of water today, some consumers stating that they have been out of water all this week. Water Commissioner William Lemmert said he was informed by Samuel Walker, manager of the Frostburg Water Company, that a leak was discovered near Barn Hill yesterday. This leak, Walker told Lemmert, has been repaired, and Eckhart will probably have sufficient water.

According to information secured from Eckhart Flat consumers, Mr. Walker, who could not be reached at his office today, blames the shortage of water on an open spigot somewhere on the line. Harvey, the florist, whose green houses are connected with the Frostburg Water Company system, said he was assured by Mr. Walker that his company was making every effort to discover the leaking spigot.

Harvey said the water, when turned on again today, was muddy.

Water Commissioner Lemmert stated today that the city would be glad to sell water to Eckhart Flat consumers. He said the mains have already been laid for servicing this section of the town, but many of the consumers prefer to stay on the Frostburg Water Company line.

Scott Is Bidder

According to information received today from Finance Commissioner Conrad Kroll, who was instructed by the mayor and city commissioners to secure bids on auditing the city's books, one bid from William Scott, Cumberland, former county auditor, has already been received.

Mr. Kroll stated that he has secured the names of other auditing firms and expects to have bids from some of them by August 5, the date the matter of awarding a contract is to be considered by the city council.

Compulsory Military Training Bill 'Objectionable,' W. Va. CIO Told

Debate on Resolution Favoring Measure Cut Short by Officials

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., July 24. (AP)—A floor battle over a resolution advocating compulsory military service was cut short today without action when officials of the West Virginia State Industrial Union Council (CIO) told delegates some phases of the present bill are unsatisfactory to labor.

Several World war veterans spoke on behalf of the resolution after it was introduced, asserting that lack of proper military training caused higher numbers of casualties than nevessary during that conflict.

Cite 'Objectionable' Features

Other delegates opposed the resolution, but Vice-President Fremont Davis of Fairmont and President John B. Easton of Charleston ended the argument when they said a blanket endorsement might contribute toward passage of the bill now before Congress and that it has several "objectionable" features.

They did not explain what the "objectionable" phases were.

The convention finally decided to refer the resolution to the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Resolutions Adopted

Among the resolutions adopted were those favoring:

A state labor relations act patterned after the federal law.

A state wage-hour law and extension of the federal wage-hour law to cover intrastate business.

A weekly payday for miners instead of the semi-monthly payday.

Free school textbooks.

Repeal of the poll tax law.

Taxation of gas and oil to bring production costs of these fuels on a par with coal.

Bonding of employers to assure payment of wages.

Oppose 'Short Ballot'

The convention opposed ratification of the "short ballot" constitutional amendment, which would reduce the number of elective officials to three, and after lengthy debate, went on record against abolition of "scrip"—tokens used for payment for goods in coal company stores.

Representative Jennings Randolph of Elkins told the delegates that a return of the Republican party to power would mean rapid destruction of "all the vital labor legislation of the last seven and a half years."

Randolph, a Democrat, said he was a supporter of the Neely-Keller bill for federal inspection of coal mines. He said, in reference to the argument that the measure would encroach on state authority:

"That argument has been used against every piece of progressive legislation put on the statute books in the last seven and a half years."

Delegates at Convention Cheer and Endorse Roosevelt

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., July 24 (AP) — The West Virginia State Industrial Council (CIO) endorsed tonight the nomination of President Roosevelt for a third term because "he has proved himself to be a friend of labor and of the common people.

The action, predicted for many days by union officials who had tested the sentiment of delegates attending the annual convention, was taken upon recommendation of Fremont Davis, president of District 31 of the United Mine Workers and chairman of the resolutions committee.

Similar action was taken on the Democratic candidacies of Senator M. M. Neely, nominee for governor, and Judge Harley M. Kilgore, nominee for the U. S. Senate.

Assured yesterday that John L. Lewis, bushy-browed CIO leader who several times had predicted Roosevelt's third term defeat, would follow the wishes of his union, delegates cheered when Davis' resolution was introduced.

The resolution pointed out that "we do not deem it advisable under present world difficulties to change the administration x x x."

President John B. Easton, announcing that many matters remain to be considered, ordered the convention held over for another day and said additional committee reports probably would be heard tomorrow morning.

Miss Blair pleaded innocent to the charge.

Her mother, Mrs. Vernie Curtis Blair, about 65, was found shot to death on July 12. Dr. C. A. Blair testified at the magistrate's hearing that his wife and daughter were the only persons in his home when he left and that the shooting occurred there shortly afterward.

Midland Firemen To Hold Carnival

Volunteers Complete Plans for Big Street Bazaar Next Week

MIDLAND, July 24.—Monday marks the day that most of this section, particularly the children, have been awaiting since the close of the fire department's street bazaar last July. This year's renewal of the bazaar promises to be bigger and better than any previous company activity.

The Bright Way Exposition will be occupying the three vacant lots adjoining Firemen's hall by Monday night and will have its three rides ready for the children to enjoy themselves. The rides consist of a ferris wheel, chairplane and little cars. There will also be a number of tent shows for the grown-ups including a horse show and a picture tent among other things.

Thursday night the climax will be reached with a large street parade. The line of parade will form in back of Firemen's hall, then march up to Main street and up the new highway to Paradise street intersection, over Paradise street to Big Lane and then back to the point of origin. Many answers have been received from various fire companies and organizations in this area promising that they will participate in this parade.

A hook-up contest, originally planned, has been postponed because of lack of interest shown by all fire companies except Westernport.

The volunteer women's committee is sponsoring a cold plate supper to be held Thursday evening in the hall for anyone who wishes to avoid cooking during the hot weather.

Friday evening will feature a band concert by the Arion band of Frostburg under the leadership of R. Hilary Lancaster.

Saturday evening will again be parade night with the drum and bugle corps of the CCC organization from Oakland being featured. This night is also being designated as Scout Night with the Boy Scout troops of Frostburg, Vale Summit and Midland and the Girl Scout troop of Midland being in the line of parade.

Games Party

Deport Aliens Who Won't Become Citizens, Rep. Randolph Urges

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., July 24—"Aliens living in this country for more than one year, holding American jobs, accepting the freedom and privileges of American citizens, should take out citizenship papers or else be deported to the country from which they came," declared Representative Jennings Randolph before a large crowd at Pine Grove Methodist church at Needmore Saturday afternoon.

"Your government does not employ aliens in any capacity, and private industry should adopt the same qualifications for those in their employ," the congressman continued.

Randolph told of an investigation in Pennsylvania which disclosed that there were over 130,000 aliens in that state, having lived there an average of fourteen years. Of that total, only twenty-one out of each 100 had even signified their intention of becoming citizens. The research also showed a total of 3,800,000 persons in the United States who are not citizens.

"We cannot permit such a condition to exist in our country with the record of 'fifth columnists' and their activities in eight European countries as an example," said Randolph.

"The Communist party receives its orders and instructions from a foreign government and is in no sense an American political party" he went on. "In West Virginia alone, more than five thousand Communists signed a petition requesting that the Communist ticket be placed on the West Virginia ballot for this November's election. I am happy to say there were no means from this South Branch Valley section or the eastern Panhandle counties on that document, but there is definite evidence of boring from within by foreign agents in our state."

The congressman conducted an open forum and answered questions for nearly on hour. He explained the difference between the Communist and the Socialist parties told of the methods of administering the government in the dictator-ruled countries and spoke briefly

LEWISBURG, W. Va., July 24 (AP)—The case of Oscar O. Wheeler, Communist candidate for governor under indictment for fraud, again was handed back to Raleigh county today on jurisdictional grounds.

It was the second time a trial had been sought outside of Raleigh county after the 53-year-old goat farmer was granted a change of venue.

Heeding a defense plea, Judge Mark L. Jarrett ruled the Greenbrier Circuit court here had no jurisdiction in the case as it now stands.

Previously the Kanawha Intermediate court ruled it lacked jurisdiction in all cases arising outside that county.

Wheeler was indicted at Beckley on charges that he fraudulently obtained signers to a petition for placing the Communist ticket on the November ballot.

Before any witnesses were sworn today, Frank Burdette, one of the defense attorneys, told the court that Wheeler had not entered any plea, either guilty or not guilty, nor had he filed any motions before Criminal Court Judge Harley M. Kilgore at Beckley.

Because there had been no arraignment, Burdette argued, the case could not come under jurisdiction of the Greenbrier court.

Judge Jarrett delayed a ruling while prosecution counsel conferred, then remanded the case to its original court.

Future procedure remained in doubt. The next regular term of Raleigh Criminal court is in October. Wheeler, who unsuccessfully tried to obtain his release on bond, was returned to Beckley.

Civil Liberties Union To Fight Effort To Bar Communists from Ballot

LEWISBURG, W. Va., July 24. (AP)—An attorney for the Civil Liberties Union promised today that impending court action to bar the Communist party from the November ballot would be fought to the U. S. Supreme Court if necessary.

Harold W. Houston of Charleston, one of the attorneys here to defend Oscar O. Wheeler, Communist candidate for governor, said he had been informed action would be taken soon in an effort to prevent the ticket from getting on the West Virginia ballot.

The American Legion, which launched an attack shortly after the Communist nominating petition was filed May 13, has said that it would go into court to demand that the party's candidates be barred. Court action has been taken against several signers of the petition on the ground they also voted in the May 14 primary.

Garrett Treasurer Cleared of Fraud Charge by Magistrate

Jesse Ashby Jr. Ordered Freed After Hearing

Magistrate Finds Evidence Is Insufficient; Audits Conflict

OAKLAND, July 24 — At a hearing before Magistrate Charles F. White this afternoon, it was decreed that there was not sufficient evidence to hold Jesse J. Ashby Jr., treasurer of Garrett county, who was charged on June 6 by Garrett county commissioners with having fraudently obtained from the county commissioners the sum of $8,099.11 in public funds.

The automatically released Ashby from a bond of $2,500 under which he had been held.

The charge against the treasurer followed auditing of the accounts of the county by Wooden and Benson, certified public accountants of Baltimore.

The item in the report leading to the charge was that of double credit for a discount on taxes collected, 1934 levy, $3,120.22 and 1935 levy, $2,968.89 for a total of $6,099.11.

The defense introduced at the hearing an audit made by Daniel H. Carroll, Baltimore accountant, and H. P. Stuck, of Oakland, which showed figures different from those of the audit by Wooden and Benson. While the final audit of Wooden and Benson showed items needing explanation by the treasurer around $9,000.00, the audit of Mr. Carroll showed that the deficiency from the actual cash on hand March 31 when the audits were completed, was only $200.42. The defense asserted that there were credits in the treasurer's office amounting to $216.24, which would show that the county actually owed Mr. Ashby $15.82.

The $6,099.11 item was never allowed in Carroll's report on the faces that it was not cash item and should have been considered.

With the two audits before Magistrate White, both made by former state auditors, he found insufficient evidence to support the charge.

Garrett Treasurer Cleared of Fraud Charge by Magistrate

Magistrate Finds Evidence Is Insufficient; Audits Conflict

OAKLAND, July 24 — At a hearing before Magistrate Charles F. White this afternoon, it was decreed that there was not sufficient evidence to hold Jesse J. Ashby Jr., treasurer of Garrett county, who was charged on June 6 by Garrett county commissioners with having fraudently obtained from the county commissioners the sum of $6,099.11 in public funds.

The automatically released Ashby from a bond of $2,500 under which he had been held.

The charge against the treasurer followed auditing of the accounts of the county by Wooden and Benson, certified public accountants of Baltimore.

The item in the report leading to the charge was that of double credit for a discount on taxes collected, 1934 levy, $3,120.22 and 1935 levy, $2,968.89 for a total of $6,099.11.

The defense introduced at the hearing an audit made by Daniel H. Carroll, Baltimore accountant, and H. P. Stuck, of Oakland, which showed figures different from those of the audit by Wooden and Benson. While the final audit of Wooden and Benson showed items needing explanation by the treasurer around $9,000.00, the audit of Mr. Carroll showed that the deficiency from the actual cash on hand March 31 when the audits were completed, was only $200.42. The defense asserted that there were credits in the treasurer's office amounting to $218.24, which would show that the county actually owed Mr. Ashby $15.82.

The $6,099.11 item was never allowed in Carroll's report on the faces that it was not cash item and should have been considered.

With the two audits before Magistrate White, both made by former state auditors, he found insufficient evidence to support the charge.

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:

LINDA AVERY, receptionist at a New York models' agency, starts to rebuild her romance with

RONALD STAFFORD, her childhood sweetheart, who has "swung his way to fame on a trumpet," but

SARAH MARKLEY, wealthy glamor girl, is trying to capture Ronald for herself. Meanwhile

ROBERT BARTON, young engineer, strikes up a friendship with Linda. He introduces her to

TERRY ADAMS, publicity man, and Terry's sweetheart,

CAROLINE PICKARD, who has been unable to find work. Life is complicated by

MINA NEVINS, a famous actress, who is determined to marry Robert. She believes Linda is romancing with the young engineer.

YESTERDAY: Billie Anne, in love with Robert, lands in an airplane on the beach where the yacht party is picnicking, and hurries Rob away with her. While Linda is watching the plane disappearing in the distance, Sarah says, "Are you ill, Linda? After all, ships do reach the airports, you know. I'm sure this one will!"

"Your engagement to Ronnie Stafford is out, and seems to be news."

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

THERE WAS a silence, a waiting, expectant hush, as Sarah's words died away on the warm, sun-scented air. Linda knew that she was expected to answer. But she did not want to.

Instead, she kept her eyes on the silver speck going northward in the far sky.

What did people want from life? How did they know what they wanted? Life was so simple when the world was a wilderness and a man chose the girl he wanted, went forth to hew trees, raise crops, shoot game, while she stayed behind to plant a garden and keep something simmering in a kettle on a fire when he came at dusk.

But now Ronald had a horn, a silver-noted, magic trumpet, and the feet of the world stepped to gayer music when he played and the hearts of the world — no, that wasn't true—just one heart, Sarah's, swung out of the world with him.

And Robert, who had been a fortress,, a Rock of Gibraltar, had gone away with somebody else in an airplane.

"Airplanes never have accidents any more," Linda said at last. "I hear they are much safer—than boats."

Her green eyes met the blue eyes of the ex-deb and held them.

"For you, probably," Sarah answered, forgetting that she was the hostess. Then, swiftly, "I'm being an utter cad! Forgive me, or anyway, try to, won't you? You know what's wrong, and you won, so you're ahead."

Utter candor. Or maybe that was the new way, Linda reflected.

"I did look as though I'd never seen an airplane before," she said, trying to laugh lightly. "Ronnie, let's take a walk."

He arose at once and started with her down the beach. When he tried to speak, she shook her head.

"Don't say it. Then it will be easier for us to forget it. Sarah is upset and it's too bad. Maybe she got caught in her own web. Anyway, I'm sorry for her."

"You're pretty swell," the man answered. "I've been doing some thinking, too. The show is closing soon and I'll be free. Linda, let's announce our engagement soon—tomorrow, when we get back."

This was what she had wanted. For this she had waited as the March weeks drifted into April and June followed May. But the old glory was dead. As suddenly as though a cold wind had blown out a red fire. Yet, life without Ronald—oh, no, no, no!"

It was because she was so tired, because she had borne so much that she had reached this stage of emotional fatigue, she told herself.

"Tomorrow—as soon as we can," she promised, but she felt no better. Maybe you wanted something, someone, tried to obtain it and make the pattern of a dream come true for so many years, that when you received the completion, the joy was gone. But it would come back. Always it would come back! For life was not fixed in an unchanging mold. It was liquid, flowing and love and dreams came back, just as the tides or the moon or spring.

But when she reached her own apartment the next morning the old elation had not returned, though Ronald was devoted and attentive. She slipped into a crushed rose linen frock, placed a cart wheel on her bright curls, picked up white gloves and bag, and went to her office. She was early, for the boat had docked at six and she had left it as soon as she could. Ronald had come with her, though most of the house party were sleeping until much later.

It was around noon when her telephone rang. She sat up, alert, at the question that a drawling, strange masculine voice sent across the wires.

"Miss Avery? Any truth to the story that you and that trumpet player—the swingman—are stepping off soon?"

"Stepping off?" She was hunting for an escape.

"Huh-huh. Going to a justice of peace, getting married, you know."

"And who are you?"

"Oh, just a member of the inquiring profession. Well, what about it? Want to verify or deny it?"

"Have you talked to—"

"The swing prize?" Just hung up on him. He said to call you."

"I've nothing to say." She replaced the telephone.

This wasn't the way to make an announcement—to tell it to a careless, inquisitive voice that laughed at you. Down home she would have taken the story to Miss Mattie, the society editor, and there would have been a whole column about it in the local paper, with her picture. There would have been an announcement party, too, in the old white brick house under tall trees and her friends would have gathered.

But that story had ended. Ended as surely as though life had closed the covers of a green and gold story book. Growing up wasn't the smooth proposition she had believed.

No more reporters called Linda, but about two o'clock Mr. Bagley came to her desk, his keen eyes twinkling. "What's this I hear about your picture being wanted for the press?"

"My picture?" she gasped.

"I just had a call. Your engagement to Ronnie Stafford is out, and seems to be news." His smile was puzzled. "Want to give out pictures?"

"I haven't any, really—" Then she remembered that a staff photographer had taken some one day when she first came to the agency. At the time she had thought there might be a model opening, but outside of an occasional call, she had stayed at the desk.

Now she recalled a picture with her eyes looking up, looking high, and her hair spilling under a halo hat. There was another with the curls caught in wings on her cheeks and her wide eyes demure and questioning. She had given Ronnie one of those when he first came back. There was a third with her legs crossed. That, of course, she decided, would be the one that the press would want.

The papers favored women who sat with their knees revealed.

She wrinkled her brows in perplexity. "But Mr. Bagley, I thought a girl announced her own engagement!"

"Not in Manhattan. But this is good publicity for you. Young Stafford's all right and going far. Shall I release the pictures?"

"I don't know—"

When Ronald called his voice was warm and reassuring. He didn't apologize because the secret was out. He stated it matter-of-factly, and his voice sounded happy. For the first time in two days Linda felt better. Dusk was coming, and lights were shining in the buildings that marched along the skyline.

Watching the night come slowly to the city, from the wide windows of the office, she felt a deep peace and a sense of rhythm with the world. The week-end, the emerald ring, even Robert's going, were not important. Robert—she wondered if he and Billie Anne had done whatever Billie Anne wanted done.

She was still at the window when Mr. Bagley came from his inner office.

"Would you feel like resigning if I asked you to work overtime? The printer wants the cutlines for our new year book in the morning, and half of them aren't written. I have to dash now, but I'll be back around ten. If you would get busy and do some captions I won't forget."

He was a good employer. Linda's work was amusing and not strenuous, though sometimes it was nerve wracking. Tonight, though, she wanted to see Ronald.

But she said that she would stay.

"Miss Ackerman, who helps when we are busy, is coming in pretty soon and give her anything to do you wish," the head of the agency said as he explained the work.

Linda knew Clarabell Ackerman well. She was a girl with dark brown hair, about Linda's own height and size. She was quiet and steady, removed from the tension of life, and tonight Linda felt a little sorry for her because she looked white and tired.

Because she wasn't hungry Linda decided to work for a while before eating. At nine o'clock she decided to cross the street to a coffee shop for a sandwich. The ringing of the telephone, shrill and a little ominous in the quiet office, brought her back from the door.

Cincinnati Sweeps Series with Brooklyn

Increase Lead to Eight Full Games Over the Dodgers

Walters Wins His Fifteenth Game of Season and Sixth Straight

Reds Clinch Game with Four Runs in Second; Final Score 6 to 3

BROOKLYN, July 24 (AP)—Bucky Walters mastered the Brooklyn Dodgers with seven-hit pitching tonight for his fifteenth victory of the season as the Cincinnati Reds rapped out a 6 to 3 decision and increased their National League lead to eight games.

The Reds routed Tex Carleton with a four-run flurry in the second inning and never were in danger, although Dolph Camilli took some of the edge off their triumph by hitting his eighth home run of the season with Joe Medwick on base and two out in the ninth inning.

It was the seventeenth victory in nineteen games for the Reds, whose sweep of this three-game series gave them a record of seven wins in their last eight games with the Dodgers.

Walters worked effortlessly toward his goal giving no walks and keeping out of trouble except in the second and ninth stanzas. The first run off him came on successive doubles by Dixie Walker and Jim Wasdell.

The crowd of 30,102 lost most of its enthusiasm when the Reds scored a run in the first frame on Lonny Frey's double and Frank McCormick's single and was left completely limp by the four-run frame that followed.

The SPORT TRAIL

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP)—Billy Conn stood beneath the large oil painting of Tex Rickard in Mike Jacobs' office, or rather, the room where Mike slows down to three knots in his daily meanderings.

Billy, looking bigger and more mature, was in town to be examined for his bout with Bob Pastor. He was a little puzzled that the examination should be made now when the bout is three weeks away. It will be his third bout against a heavyweight, and he's looking forward to it.

"It's fun to fight them," he grinned. "I like to get around behind them and pop them. They get mad and can't do anything.

"I know Pastor is good, tough," he continued. "He showed that against Louis. But I can hit as hard as he can. I'm heavy enough. 183 now, so there won't be much difference. Look."

Here Billy peeled off his coat, stuck out his chest, and doubled up his arm.

"Pastor will fight, and that's what I like. That Fred Apostoli was a swell fellow. He waded right in and fought. That second fight with him was something, the hardest fight I've had. He'd call me names and I'd come right back at him. He's a good guy."

Little Johnny Ray, Conn's pilot with the unruly red hair and impish grin, had been taking it all in.

"It should be a great fight," he offered. "There's only one lightheavy who could beat Pastor, and that's Billy Conn. Say," he blurted, "did you hear about my heavyweight?"

Here Johnny started to giggle like a schoolgirl on a picnic. It was some moments before he could control himself.

"Wait 'till you hear his name," he sputtered. "It's Harry Milford Bunting, the third. He's nineteen years old and the best prospect you ever saw. And the finest looking kid. Why, he won a beauty prize at Ocean City last year, where he was a life guard.

"He weighs 203 pounds and handles himself well. He never fought in his life, but I took him up to Billy's camp and he can knock a punching bag right through the wall. Billy met him down at Ocean City and liked him, and the boy wanted to be a fighter.

"And how he can eat. Why, he even eats bread and butter with his cereal," Johnny exclaimed.

"He's just like a school kid, laughs at everything you say. Why, I'm afraid somebody will steal him from me. I could get $10,000 for him right now, I wish," he opined thoughtfully, "I wish I knew if he can fight."

Cleveland Wins As Weatherly Hits Home Run

Indians Keep Pace with Detroit by Downing A's 7 to 6

CLEVELAND, July 24 (AP) — Roy Weatherly's two-run homer was the decisive factor today as the Cleveland Indians turned in their fifth straight triumph to stay a half-game behind the league-leading Detroit Tigers. Southpaw Al Smith received credit for the 7 to 6 victory over Philadelphia.

Neither Chubby Dean, the Athletics' starter, nor Smith, who posted his tenth triumph of the season, went the distance. The Tribe gained a 7-1 lead off Dean and Herman Besse before the Athletics rallied for five runs in the sixth, sending Smith to the showers.

Bob Feller, kingpin of the Cleveland mound staff, was hit in the face by a thrown ball during pregame practice but was not seriously hurt and warmed up in the bullpen in the eighth inning.

Feller walked the way of a practice throw by Keith Monroe, a rookie sandlotter working out with the Indians.

The Hardest Thing in Golf

"What is the hardest part of golf?" asks one of the scrambling divotees. "Is it wooden club play or iron play or putting? Is it getting good foot action or getting good body action? Does it come from getting the right use of hands and wrists? There are so many tough sections to a golf swing that I thought there might be some starting point."

The hardest thing in golf is the ability to keep on concentrating along right lines. This is where most of the stars crack up on certain days. Also, it is where the average golfer finds a big part of his trouble.

For example, we might start with putting. No great intelligence is required to know that putting carries three main angles—

1. To judge the speed of the green.

2. To pick out the right line to the cup.

3. To stroke the ball smoothly.

What happens? On entirely too many occasions the golfer is still guessing about the speed of the green and the right line in the middle of his stroke. So here comes a jab or a stab or a lifted head. His concentration is completely scrambled. All he has to do, in set order, is to decide on green speed, line and then smooth stroking. I mean to make a definite decision in each case. Few do.

You can also take the start from the first tee. The average golfer must understand there are just a few details to be considered in advance—

1. To get a comfortable stance where the feet are not planted and the body isn't locked in advance.

2. To be sure he starts his backswing smoothly with a natural body turn.

3. That he must finish his backswing and not hurry his downswing.

4. That he keeps his head in place.

Watch the planted feet, the stiffened legs, the hurried backswing, and the uplifted dome of thought, sometimes known as the head.

The best mental attitude in golf is to feel you are in no hurry to finish your backswing nor to start your downswing. The best mental attitude is to keep your mind on the swing and on the ball — without thinking ahead.

It is better to try to keep your mind on the ball than your eye on the ball. The action of the eye follows the direction of the mind. You can't keep your eye on the ball while thinking on beyond of traps, bunkers, rough, ponds and out-of-bounds.

The hardest physical action in golf involves correct foot action.

"Good foot action means your starting balance. It means transferring body weight from left to right and then from right to left. If you have good foot action it means you are balanced at the top of the swing to complete your downswing. If your weight distribution is out of order, the result will be nothing to cheer about.

"What will help better foot action?" Picard continued. "To stand up to the ball much straighter than most golfers do. To stand a little closer to the ball. To keep your feet closer together than most golfers do. What chance has the golfer to get his feet working when he is stooping over, when he is reaching for the ball with his planted feet wide apart?

"Not a chance in the world. He wouldn't try to throw a baseball from any such position. He is uncomfortable, to start with. He doesn't give himself a chance. Make a point of standing up straighter and not spreading your feet. This makes it much easier to turn—to get your weight transference working the right way.

"This applies especially to chip shots and short pitches. On these stand closer to the ball and keep your feet much closer together. This will prevent stooping over and tightening up. This also will give your hands and wrists a chance to work.

"If your feet and body are locked, the hands and wrists will never have a chance to swing the clubhead. For example, locking the left ankle also locks the left wrist. You just can't finish your backswing.

"Another tough factor in golf," the Hershey Hurricane continued, "is keeping the body working with the hands. The body is the more powerful. It wants to get in there and help get more distance. But what it usually does is throttle hands and wrists.

"How can you keep too much body out? By getting more comfort, by standing straighter and closer, by keeping in mind a mental picture of what your hands are doing with the clubhead. This all calls for more concentration.

"You can't take any of these things for granted. They won't take care of themselves. Not even on behalf of the best professionals.

"The average golfer has wrecked any chance of good swinging even before he starts his backswing. In fact, he hasn't given himself a chance. He wonders why at the top of his backswing he is in no position to hit the ball, that his balance is all wrong.

"I'll ask him to try a few of the suggestions I have offered. I'll also ask him to make a determined and continued effort to concentrate along these lines: straighter, closer feet — closer than he has been playing."

The racing program, run off on a track made heavy by yesterday's rain, was witnessed by approximately 8,000 fans.

Jockey A. Vessell sent Cherry Trifle out ahead at the last turn to pay his backers $5.30, $4.20 and $3.50.

Sammy Angott Outpoints Young Nick Castiglione

CHICAGO, July 24. (AP)—Sammy Angott of Louisville, outpointed Young Nick Castiglione of Chicago in ten rounds at Mills Stadium tonight.

Angott, who weighed 135¼ against 135½ for Castiglione, received the unanimous verdict of the referee and two judges. It was an overweight bout and Angott's title was not at stake.

Angott clearly outpointed the Chicago youth, who has only a couple of years of professional boxing experience, but the hardest blows were scored by Castiglione. He shook up Angott in the first round with a right to the chin and repeated in the third. However, Angott's superior speed and ring generalship gave him his margin of victory.

Yanks Drop 14-12 Debacle to the St. Louis Browns

Fifth Straight Defeat for Champs Send Them Near Second Division

ST. LOUIS, July 24 (AP) — The World Champion New York Yankees came apart at the seams today, losing a 14 to 12 debacle to the St. Louis Browns when Walt Judnich hit his eighteenth home run of the year with one on in the ninth.

It was the fifth straight defeat for the Yanks, who skidded within a game of the second division in the American League.

What made the outcome all the more shocking was that New York had gained a six-run lead in the first inning when Bill Dickey hit a home run with the bases loaded and Joe Gordon hit one with them empty. Joe DiMaggio and Tom Hendrich also hit homers for the Yanks, but their pitching collapsed.

The Yanks used six hurlers and the Browns five to give up twenty-eight hits and thirteen walks. Steve Sundra, who won eleven games and lost only one last year, was charged with his second defeat in twenty-four hours. He hasn't won a game and has lost five this year.

He went to the mound in the ninth, after the Yanks had scored two runs to tie the score, and pitched to two batters.

Jurges Lost To Giants for Week

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP)— Bill Jurges, the sure-handed shortstop of the Giants who was hit by a pitched ball a month ago today, will be lost to the team a week longer and perhaps indefinitely, it was disclosed today.

The physician added that there was no way of fortelling how long Jurges would need to recover.

Hutchison Wins First Game This Year for Tigers

$70,000 Rookie Knocked Out of Box but Receives Credit for Victory

DETROIT, July 24. (AP) — The Detroit Tigers' $70,000 rookie, pitcher Freddie Hutchinson, chalked up his first American League win today at the expense of Washington's Senators, but the league leaders owned no small part of their 7 to 5 victory to the relief pitching of big Alton Benton.

Hutchinson shut the Nats out with three hits for the first five innings, but he yielded four hits and two runs in the sixth and three consecutive singles—each good for a counter—before he was removed from the mound in the seventh.

Tom Seats, who relieved him, permitted the three runs to score and Benton took over for Detroit. The towering right-hander yielded only one single and a walk in two and a third innings, while he struck out four.

Detroit's victory maintained the half-game margin the league-leaders hold over the Cleveland Indians, who beat Philadelphia today, 7 to 6.

Startling Upsets Feature Public Links Matches

Two of Last Year's Semi-finalists and Other Leaders Are Beaten

By DALE STAFFORD

DETROIT, July 24. (AP)—The championship dreams of forty-eight golfers for supremacy in the National Public Links Championship turned into nightmares today in two rounds of match competition that produced a series of startling upsets.

Gone from the field of sixteen survivors who will struggle through two more rounds over the Rackham Municipal Course tomorrow were three former champions, two of last year's semi-finalists and a number of other well-regarded club swingers.

Still in the contention, though, were those par-wrecking youngsters—Worth Stimits, Jr., of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Edward J. Furgol, of Utica, N. Y.—who set a qualifying record of 138 yesterday. The fate of the draw has paired them in a third-round contest.

Andrew Szwedko, of Pittsburgh, the defending champion, furnished one of the few genuine blowups of the tournament as he faded before William Bublis, a comparatively unknown Chicagoan, 3 and 2.

David A. Mitchell, of Atlanta, the 1934 victor, also faded in the first round, losing to William Doll, of Louisville, when the latter put down a fine putt for a birdie three on the final green.

Carl E. Kauffman, of Pittsburgh, the 1927, 1938 and 1929 champion, got by the first round handily with a 4 and 2 victory over Edward Garfield, of Cleveland, but couldn't withstand the assault of youth in the second where he bowed to Jack LaRose of Detroit, 2 and 1. LaRose, who is 19, was only six years old when Kauffman won his first championship.

Cincinnati Sweeps Series with Brooklyn

Increase Lead to Eight Full Games Over the Dodgers

Reds Clinch Game with Four Runs in Second; Final Score 6 to 3

BROOKLYN, July 24 (AP)—Bucky Walters mastered the Brooklyn Dodgers with seven-hit pitching tonight for his fifteenth victory of the season as the Cincinnati Reds rapped out a 6 to 3 decision and increased their National League lead to eight games.

The Reds routed Tex Carleton with a four-run flurry in the second inning and never were in danger, although Dolph Camilli took some of the edge off their triumph by hitting his eighth home run of the season with Joe Medwick on base and two out in the ninth inning.

It was the seventeenth victory in nineteen games for the Reds, whose sweep of this three-game series gave them a record of seven wins in their last eight games with the Dodgers.

Walters worked effortlessly toward his goal giving no walks and keeping out of trouble except in the second and ninth stanzas. The first run off him came on successive doubles by Dixie Walker and Jim Wasdell.

The crowd of 30,102 lost most of its enthusiasm when the Reds scored a run in the first frame on Lonny Frey's double and Frank McCormick's single and was left completely limp by the four-run frame that followed.

The SPORT TRAIL

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP)—Billy Conn stood beneath the large oil painting of Tex Rickard in Mike Jacobs' office, or rather, the room where Mike slows down to three knots in his daily meanderings.

Billy, looking bigger and more mature, was in town to be examined for his bout with Bob Pastor. He was a little puzzled that the examination should be made now when the bout is three weeks away. It will be his third bout against a heavyweight, and he's looking forward to it.

"It's fun to fight them," he grinned. "I like to get around behind them and pop them. They get mad and can't do anything.

"I know Pastor is good, tough," he continued. "He showed that against Louis. But I can hit as hard as he can. I'm heavy enough, 183 now, so there won't be much difference. Look."

Here Billy peeled off his coat, stuck out his chest, and doubled up his arm.

"Pastor will fight, and that's what I like. That Fred Apostoli was a swell fellow. He waded right in and fought. That second fight with him was something, the hardest fight I've had. He'd call me names and I'd come right back at him. He's a good guy."

Little Johnny Ray, Conn's pilot with the unruly red hair and impish grin, had been taking it all in.

"It should be a great fight," he offered. "There's only one lightheavy who could beat Pastor, and that's Billy Conn. Say," he blurted, "did you hear about my heavyweight?"

Here Johnny started to giggle like a schoolgirl on a picnic. It was some moments before he could control himself.

"Wait 'till you hear his name," he sputtered. "It's Harry Milford Bunting, the third. He's nineteen years old and the best prospect you ever saw. And the finest looking kid. Why, he won a beauty prize at Ocean City last year, where he was a life guard.

"He weighs 203 pounds and handles himself well. He never fought in his life, but I took him up to Billy's camp and he can knock a punching bag right through the wall. Billy met him down at Ocean City and liked him, and the boy wanted to be a fighter.

"And how he can eat. Why, he even eats bread and butter with his cereal," Johnny exclaimed.

"He's just like a school kid, laughs at everything you say. Why, I'm afraid somebody will steal him from me. I could get $10,000 for him right now, I wish," he opined thoughtfully, "I wish I knew if he can fight."

Cleveland Wins As Weatherly Hits Home Run

Indians Keep Pace with Detroit by Downing A's 7 to 6

CLEVELAND, July 24 (AP) — Roy Weatherly's two-run homer was the decisive factor today as the Cleveland Indians turned in their fifth straight triumph to stay a half-game behind the league-leading Detroit Tigers. Southpaw Al Smith received credit for the 7 to 6 victory over Philadelphia.

Neither Chubby Dean, the Athletics' starter, nor Smith, who posted his tenth triumph of the season, went the distance. The Tribe gained a 7-1 lead off Dean and Herman Besse before the Athletics rallied for five runs in the sixth, sending Smith to the showers.

Bob Feller, kingpin of the Cleveland mound staff, was hit in the face by a thrown ball during pregame practice but was not seriously hurt and warmed up in the bullpen in the eighth inning.

Feller walked the way of a practice throw by Keith Monroe, a rookie sandlotter working out with the Indians.

The Hardest Thing in Golf

"What is the hardest part of golf?" asks one of the scrambling divotees. "Is it wooden club play or iron play or putting? Is it getting good foot action or getting good body action? Does it come from getting the right use of hands and wrists? There are so many tough sections to a golf swing that I thought there might be some starting point."

The hardest thing in golf is the ability to keep on concentrating along right lines. This is where most of the stars crack up on certain days. Also, it is where the average golfer finds a big part of his trouble.

For example, we might start with putting. No great intelligence is required to know that putting carries three main angles—

1. To judge the speed of the green.

2. To pick out the right line to the cup.

3. To stroke the ball smoothly.

What happens? On entirely too many occasions the golfer is still guessing about the speed of the green and the right line in the middle of his stroke. So here comes a jab or a stab or a lifted head. His concentration is completely scrambled. All he has to do, in set order, is to decide on green speed, line and then smooth stroking. I mean to make a definite decision in each case. Few do.

You can also take the start from the first tee. The average golfer must understand there are just a few details to be considered in advance—

1. To get a comfortable stance where the feet are not planted and the body isn't locked in advance.

2. To be sure he starts his backswing smoothly with a natural body turn.

3. That he must finish his backswing and not hurry his downswing.

4. That he keeps his head in place.

Watch the planted feet, the stiffened legs, the hurried backswing, and the uplifted dome of thought, sometimes known as the head.

The best mental attitude in golf is to feel you are a bit lazy—that you are in no hurry to finish your backswing nor to start your downswing. The best mental attitude is to keep your mind on the swing and on the ball — without thinking ahead.

It is better to try to keep your mind on the ball than your eye on the ball. The action of the eye follows the direction of the mind. You can't keep your eye on the ball while thinking on beyond of traps, bunkers, rough, ponds and out-of-bounds.

The hardest physical action in golf involves correct foot action.

"I should say more golfers have trouble here than anywhere else," Henry Picard, P. G. A. champion tells me. "Even few of the better known golfers are any too able in this detail.

"Good foot action means your starting balance. It means transferring body weight from left to right and then from right to left. If you have good foot action it means you are balanced at the top of the swing to complete your downswing. If your weight distribution is out of order, the result will be nothing to cheer about.

"What will help better foot action?" Picard continued. "To stand up to the ball much straighter than most golfers do. To stand a little closer to the ball. To keep your feet closer together than most golfers do. What chance has the golfer to get his feet working when he is stooping over, when he is reaching for the ball with his planted feet wide apart?

"Not a chance in the world. He wouldn't try to throw a baseball from any such position. He is uncomfortable, to start with. He doesn't give himself a chance. Make a point of standing up straighter and not spreading your feet. This makes it much easier to turn—to get your weight transference working the right way.

"This applies especially to chip shots and short pitches. On these stand closer to the ball and keep your feet much closer together. This will prevent stooping over and tightening up. This also will give your hands and wrists a chance to work.

"If your feet and body are locked, the hands and wrists will never have a chance to swing the clubhead. For example, locking the left ankle also locks the left wrist. You just can't finish your backswing.

"Another tough factor in golf," the Hershey Hurricane continued, "is keeping the body working with the hands. The body is the more powerful. It wants to get in there and help get more distance. But what it usually does is throttle hands and wrists.

"How can you keep too much body out? By getting more comfort, by standing straighter and closer, by keeping in mind a mental picture of what your hands are doing with the clubhead. This all calls for more concentration.

"You can't take any of these things for granted. They won't take care of themselves. Not even on behalf of the best professionals.

"The average golfer has wrecked any chance of good swinging even before he starts his backswing. In fact, he hasn't given himself a chance. He wonders why at the top of his backswing he is in no position to hit the ball, that his balance is all wrong.

"I'll ask him to try a few of the suggestions I have offered. I'll also ask him to make a determined and continued effort to concentrate along these lines: straighter, closer feet — closer than he has been playing."

Bees Snap Long Losing Streak by Defeating Chicago

Boston Comes from Behind Twice To Gain 4 to 3 Victory

BOSTON, July 24. (AP)—The Boston Bees snapped a six-game losing streak today by coming from behind twice to nip the Chicago Cubs, 4-3. The triumph, insured when Carvel Rowell tripled in Buddy Hassett with the deciding run in the seventh inning, was the third Dick Errickson has gained over the Cubs this season.

Errickson held the opposition to ten scattered hits while his aroused teammates pounded Claude Passeau for thirteen, including three extra basers.

Cherry Trifle Takes Bel Air Feature Race; Stadium Pays $27.20

BEL AIR, Md., July 24 (AP) — Knollwood Stable's Cherry Trifle romped to a length and a half victory over W. R. Robert's Irish Moon in the Bel Air Inaugural today, feature race of the 10-day meet opening on the half-mile track of the Harford County Fair Association.

The racing program, run off on a track made heavy by yesterday's rain, was witnessed by approximately 8,000 fans.

Jockey A. Vessell sent Cherry Trifle out ahead at the last turn to pay his backers $5.30, $4.20 and $3.50.

Third, a length and a half behind Irish Moon, was Miss M. Knieriem's Red Wrack.

Stadium, owned by Robert H. Heighe of Bel Air, pleased the home fans by coming from behind in the opening race for a half-length win over E. A. Nicodemus' Mayfern, with L. C. Leith's Shotagin three lengths back in third. Stadium paid $27.20.

Sammy Angott Outpoints Young Nick Castiglione

CHICAGO, July 24. (AP)—Sammy Angott of Louisville, outpointed Young Nick Castiglione of Chicago in ten rounds at Mills Stadium tonight.

Angott, who weighed 135¼ against 135½ for Castiglione, received the unanimous verdict of the referee and two judges. It was an overweight bout and Angott's title was not at stake.

Angott clearly outpointed the Chicago youth, who has only a couple of years of professional boxing experience, but the hardest blows were scored by Castiglione. He shook up Angott in the first round with a right to the chin and repeated in the third. However, Angott's superior speed and ring generalship gave him his margin of victory.

Yanks Drop 14-12 Debacle to the St. Louis Browns

Fifth Straight Defeat for Champs Send Them Near Second Division

ST. LOUIS, July 24 (AP) — The World Champion New York Yankees came apart at the seams today, losing a 14 to 12 debacle to the St. Louis Browns when Walt Judnich hit his eighteenth home run of the year with one on in the ninth.

It was the fifth straight defeat for the Yanks, who skidded within a game of the second division in the American League.

What made the outcome all the more shocking was that New York had gained a six-run lead in the first inning when Bill Dickey hit a home run with the bases loaded and Joe Gordon hit one with them empty. Joe DiMaggio and Tom Hendrich also hit homers for the Yanks, but their pitching collapsed.

The Yanks used six hurlers and the Browns five to give up twenty-eight hits and thirteen walks. Steve Sundra, who won eleven games and lost only one last year, was charged with his second defeat in twenty-four hours. He hasn't won a game and has lost five this year.

He went to the mound in the ninth, after the Yanks had scored two runs to tie the score, and pitched to two batters.

Jurges Lost To Giants for Week

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP)— Bill Jurges, the sure-handed shortstop of the Giants who was hit by a pitched ball a month ago today, will be lost to the team a week longer and perhaps indefinitely, it was disclosed today.

Jurges suffered dizzy spells when he tried to return to the lineup in the west.

The physician added that there was no way of fortelling how long Jurges would need to recover.

Hutchison Wins First Game This Year for Tigers

$70,000 Rookie Knocked Out of Box but Receives Credit for Victory

DETROIT, July 24. (AP) — The Detroit Tigers' $70,000 rookie, pitcher Freddie Hutchinson, chalked up his first American League win today at the expense of Washington's Senators, but the league leaders owned no small part of their 7 to 5 victory to the relief pitching of big Alton Benton.

Hutchinson shut the Nats out with three hits for the first five innings, but he yielded four hits and two runs in the sixth and three consecutive singles—each good for a counter—before he was removed from the mound in the seventh.

Tom Seats, who relieved him, permitted the three runs to score and Benton took over for Detroit. The towering right-hander yielded only one single and a walk in two and a third innings, while he struck out four.

Detroit's victory maintained the half-game margin the league-leaders hold over the Cleveland Indians, who beat Philadelphia today, 7 to 6.

Fans in Forty-seven States Cast Total of 6,575,957 Ballots

Seventy-two Player Squad Will Meet Green Bay Packers in August

By TOM SILER

CHICAGO, July 24. (AP)—The nation's football fans paid eloquent tribute today to Southern California's great 1939 eleven by placing three Trojans in the starting lineup for the College All-Stars' game with the Green Bay Packers in Soldier Field, Aug. 29.

A total of 6,575,957 votes were cast in forty-seven states, determining the personnel of the seventy-two player squad for the annual charity spectacle between the college seniors of last fall and the pro champions.

The players who received the largest total of votes at their respective positions compose the starting lineup.

Kinnick Leads Halfbacks

Nile Kinnick of Iowa, who sparkplugged the Hawkeye machine to dazzling heights, was the only player to poll more than a million votes, leading the halfbacks with 1,189,076 votes.

The three Trojans accorded spots in the kickoff group were Bill Fisk, end; Harry Smith, guard and Quarterback Ambrose Schindler.

Tackles—Nick Cutlich, Northwestern, 792,827; Joe Boyd, Texas A. and M., 773,256.

Guards—Smith, 846,318; Jim Logan, Indiana, 781,947.

Centers—Clyde Turner, Hardin-Simmons, 784,993.

Quarterback—Schindler, 759,312.

Halfbacks—Kinnick, 1,189,076, and Lou Brock, Purdue, 963,482.

Fullback—Joe Thesing, Notre Dame, 981,276.

Southern California is the only school to rate more than one starter. From a sectional standpoint the Midwest leads with six starters, compared to three for the Pacific coast, and two from the Southwest.

Start Practice Soon

Southern California placed three others on the squad, giving them six in all, one less than Notre Dame, which led in this respect. Northwestern placed five on the squad and Iowa and Purdue four each.

The collegians will gather at Evanston, Ill., Aug. 11 to begin eighteen days of practice, the same period allotted to the Packers to prepare for the game. In six past games, the pros have won two, the college boys two and two ended in tie games.

Proceeds of the game, which usuallydraws about 80,000, will go to three charities designated by the Chicago Tribune, originator and sponsor of the contest.

Celanese Rifle Club Wins Match

The third in a series of Allegany Rifle League summer shoots was won by the Celanese Rifle Club, with a total of 1,935 points. Cold Spring of Luke with 1,926 was second and Frostburg took third place with 1,914 while fourth place fent to Company G with 1,722.

N. Hinkle of the Celanese club turned in a score of 399. Mrs. Harry Morgan, of Frostburg, the only woman to make the grade with any of the clubs shot 388.

An all-day shoot will be held on the Frostburg range Sunday starting at 10 o'clock. The program will consist of 40 shots at 50 yards and 40 at 100 yards. Other matches will be held if time permits.

Dates for three loop matches in August have been changed and they will be held on August 1 and 3. August 15 and 17 and August 29 and 31.

Maxie Rosenbloom Was Really Funny Until—

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

NEW YORK, July 24 — It's a sad thing for himself and his country when an unconscious clown becomes a conscious comedian. Take the case of Maxie Rosenbloom, formerly an amateur screwball of good quality, now one of radio's most gruesome features.

Lightning should have struck the tempter dead the day when somebody showed Maxie a blank check and said "boy, you're a scream. You should be getting paid for this."

Mr. Rosenbloom believed what he heard, and straightway became a total loss to the entertainment world. There may be worse comedians at large than Slapsie Maxie, but who's got the time to look under all those flat stones for proof?

What saddens the boys around the barber shop of the Hotel Peter Stuyvesant, in New York, where Maxie used to train for his fights in the morning, after a hard night on the road, is the fact that Mr. Rosenbloom was a pretty entertaining character before he found out that he was.

Wasn't Acting Then

Anybody can act the part of a night club fighter, but Maxie wasn't acting in those days. He was the champion of the world, and all the preparation he needed for a title bout was a shave, a trim, a manicure, and "plenty of powder on the kisser."

Mr. Rosenbloom would lurch into the barber shop shortly before noon on the day of the fight, corner his favorite chair, and hold open forum of pugilism and affiliated topics.

"Where was ya last night, Maxie?" one of the boys would ask.

"We found a new jernt," Mr. Rosenbloom would reply enthusiastically. "Keep that brush outta my mouth! Over on the East Side. They gotta real band. Kep' me dancin' till six. Easy over that ear, Sam. Some gal clipped me with a highball glass."

"How ya gonna do tonight, Maxie?"

"Oh, Ill lick him, Mr. Rosenbloom used to say, studying his hand-mirror. "Gimme a little more powder there. But it ain't worth bettin' on. The odds is lousy."

"Will ya knock him out, Maxie?"

"Knock him out?" Mr. Rosenbloom, feeling better by now, would burst into hearty laughter. "Who ever hoid of me knockin' anybody out? Quitcha kiddin', Dave."

Pretty soon Maxie got a little too slow on his feet to duck all the punches that were thrown at him. He began to think of greener pastures. But he was still an unspoiled child of nature the last time he discussed his future with your correspondent. He was going to Hollywood, but not as a comedian. That was before he knew he was a comedian. Mr. Rosenbloom thought of himself as an artist. He bought a beret.

Gonna Paint, Too

"I wanna get hooked up with some form of art out there," he explained. "I do' know if I can act good enough, but anyways I can sing. I'll get me a job as a sing-ger out there, some night spot. That'll pay my freight while I'm studyin' to paint."

"Paint?"

"Yeah, I'm gonna do some paintin'. I seen a guy, frenna mine, got some water-color paints. It's a cinch if ya got the giff. Ya mix the paint with the water. Then ya give it this and this. If ya ain't got it, it's lousy. If ya got it, it's art, and I got it."

Mr. Rosenbloom reflected a moment.

"I do' know," he said. "Even if ya got it, it's lousy. I do' get no wallop outa that. But I'll sing, anyways. I sing a lot in the night spots around here — free, for nothin'—and a guy, owns a jernt, says to me Maxie, ya got it. When ya quit fightin', all's ya gotta do for a new racket is let out with them pipes. Yer a sing-ger.' He says I gotta have some verce trainin'. Then I'm ready."

With his head full of dreams of art, and the tout ensemble covered with a beret, Mr. Rosenbloom proceeded to Hollywood, and it was there, in a black moment, that somebody told him that he was funny. It never occurred to Maxie in the old days that he was funny. He hasn't been funny since.

I grant you that the boys around the barber shop tune in on Maxie faithfully each time he commits his crimes on the radio. They claim he is better than Lew Lehr, and I guess they are right, at that. But what kind of a epitaph is that for a guy who used to amount to something?—better than Lew Lehr.

Kinnick Polls 1,189,076 for All-Star Game

Six Southern California Men Are Selected

Fans in Forty-seven States Cast Total of 6,575,957 Ballots

Seventy-two Player Squad Will Meet Green Bay Packers in August

By TOM SILER

CHICAGO, July 24. (AP)—The nation's football fans paid eloquent tribute today to Southern California's great 1939 eleven by placing three Trojans in the starting lineup for the College All-Stars' game with the Green Bay Packers in Soldier Field, Aug. 29.

A total of 6,575,957 votes were cast in forty-seven states, determining the personnel of the seventy-two player squad for the annual charity spectacle between the college seniors of last fall and the pro champions.

The players who received the largest total of votes at their respective positions compose the starting lineup.

Kinnick Leads Halfbacks

Nile Kinnick of Iowa, who sparkplugged the Hawkeye machine to dazzling heights, was the only player to poll more than a million votes, leading the halfbacks with 1,189,076 votes.

The three Trojans accorded spots in the kickoff group were Bill Fisk, end; Harry Smith, guard and Quarterback Ambrose Schindler.

Ends—Esco Sarkkinen, Ohio State, 784,842; Fisk, 802,563.

Tackles—Nick Cutlich, Northwestern, 792,827; Joe Boyd, Texas A. and M., 773,256.

Guards—Smith, 846,318; Jim Logan, Indiana, 781,947.

Centers—Clyde Turner, Hardin-Simmons, 784,993.

Quarterback—Schindler, 759,312.

Halfbacks—Kinnick, 1,189,076, and Lou Brock, Purdue, 963,482.

Fullback—Joe Thesing, Notre Dame, 981,276.

Southern California is the only school to rate more than one starter. From a sectional standpoint the Midwest leads with six starters, compared to three for the Pacific coast, and two from the Southwest.

Start Practice Soon

Southern California placed three others on the squad, giving them six in all, one less than Notre Dame, which led in this respect. Northwestern placed five on the squad and Iowa and Purdue four each.

The collegians will gather at Evanston, Ill., Aug. 11 to begin eighteen days of practice, the same period allotted to the Packers to prepare for the game. In six past games, the pros have won two, the college boys two and two ended in tie games.

Proceeds of the game, which usuallydraws about 80,000, will go to three charities designated by the Chicago Tribune, originator and sponsor of the contest.

Celanese Rifle Club Wins Match

The third in a series of Allegany Rifle League summer shoots was won by the Celanese Rifle Club, with a total of 1,935 points. Cold Spring of Luke with 1,926 was second and Frostburg took third place with 1,914 while fourth place fent to Company G with 1,722.

N. Hinkle of the Celanese club turned in a score of 399. Mrs. Harry Morgan, of Frostburg, the only woman to make the grade with any of the clubs shot 388.

An all-day shoot will be held on the Frostburg range Sunday starting at 10 o'clock. The program will consist of 40 shots at 50 yards and 40 at 100 yards. Other matches will be held if time permits.

Dates for three loop matches in August have been changed and they will be held on August 1 and 3. August 15 and 17 and August 29 and 31.

Maxie Rosenbloom Was Really Funny Until—

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

NEW YORK, July 24 — It's a sad thing for himself and his country when an unconscious clown becomes a conscious comedian. Take the case of Maxie Rosenbloom, formerly an amateur screwball of good quality, now one of radio's most gruesome features.

Lightning should have struck the tempter dead the day when somebody showed Maxie a blank check and said "boy, you're a scream. You should be getting paid for this."

Mr. Rosenbloom believed what he heard, and straightway became a total loss to the entertainment world. There may be worse comedians at large than Slapsie Maxie, but who's got the time to look under all those flat stones for proof?

What saddens the boys around the barber shop of the Hotel Peter Stuyvesant, in New York, where Maxie used to train for his fights in the morning, after a hard night on the road, is the fact that Mr. Rosenbloom was a pretty entertaining character before he found out that he was.

Wasn't Acting Then

Anybody can act the part of a night club fighter, but Maxie wasn't acting in those days. He was the champion of the world, and all the preparation he needed for a title bout was a shave, a trim, a manicure, and "plenty of powder on the kisser."

Mr. Rosenbloom would lurch into the barber shop shortly before noon on the day of the fight, corner his favorite chair, and hold open forum of pugilism and affiliated topics.

"Where was ya last night, Maxie?" one of the boys would ask.

"We found a new jernt," Mr. Rosenbloom would reply enthusiastically. "Keep that brush outta my mouth! Over on the East Side. They gotta real band. Kep' me dancin' till six. Easy over that ear, Sam. Some gal clipped me with a highball glass."

"How ya gonna do tonight, Maxie?"

"Oh, Ill lick him. Mr. Rosenbloom used to say, studying his hand-mirror. "Gimme a little more powder there. But it ain't worth bettin' on. The odds is lousy."

"Will ya knock him out, Maxie?"

"Knock him out?" Mr. Rosenbloom, feeling better by now, would burst into hearty laughter. "Who ever hoid of me knockin' anybody out? Quitcha kiddin', Dave."

Pretty soon Maxie got a little too slow on his feet to duck all the punches that were thrown at him. He began to think of greener pastures. But he was still an unspoiled child of nature the last time he discussed his future with your correspondent. He was going to Hollywood, but not as a comedian. That was before he knew he was a comedian. Mr. Rosenbloom thought of himself as an artist. He bought a beret.

Gonna Paint, Too

"I wanna get hooked up with some form of art out there," he explained. "I do' know if I can act good enough, but anyways I can sing. I'll get me a job as a sing-ger out there, some night spot. That'll pay my freight while I'm studyin' to paint."

"Paint?"

"Yeah, I'm gonna do some paintin'. I seen a guy, frenna mine, got some water-color paints. It's a cinch if ya got the giff. Ya mix the paint with the water. Then ya give it this and this. If ya ain't got it, it's lousy. If ya got it, it's art, and I got it."

Mr. Rosenbloom reflected a moment.

"I do' know," he said. "Even if ya got it, it's lousy. I do' get no wallop outa that. But I'll sing, anyways. I sing a lot in the night spots around here — free, for nothin'—and a guy, owns a jernt, says to me Maxie, ya got it. When ya quit fightin', all's ya gotta do for a new racket is let out with them pipes. Yer a sing-ger.' He says I gotta have some verce trainin'. Then I'm ready."

With his head full of dreams of art, and the tout ensemble covered with a beret, Mr. Rosenbloom proceeded to Hollywood, and it was there, in a black moment, that somebody told him that he was funny. It never occurred to Maxie in the old days that he was funny. He hasn't been funny since.

I grant you that the boys around the barber shop tune in on Maxie faithfully each time he commits his crimes on the radio. They claim he is better than Lew Lehr, and I guess they are right, at that. But what kind of a epitaph is that for a guy who used to amount to something?—better than Lew Lehr.

In Memoriam

In memory of our beloved husband and father, Waller W. Green, Barton, Md., who departed this life July 25th, 1933.

God saw the road was getting rough,
The hills were hard to climb.
He gently closed his loving eyes,
And whispered, "Peace be Thine."
His weary eyes, his days of pain,
His weary nights are passed.
His ever patient worn-out frame,
Has found sweet rest at last.

Sadly missed by his WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In Memoriam

In memory of our beloved husband and father, Walter W. Green, Barton, Md., who departed this life July 28th, 1933.

God saw the road was getting rough,
The hills were hard to climb.
He gently closed his loving eyes,
And whispered, 'Peace be Thine.'
His weary eyes, his days of pain,
His weary nights are passed.
His ever patient worn-out frame,
Has found sweet rest at last.

Sadly missed by his

John Lear Files Suit for $25,000 Damages from Richard Jenkins Estate

Action Is Taken as a Result of Automobile Wreck Near Allegany Grove June 20 in Which Mrs. Lear and Two Other Persons Were Killed

John L. Lear, of 325 Beall street, filed suit in circuit court yesterday, for $25,000 damages from the estate of Richard T. Jenkins for the death of his wife, Margaret P. Lear, in an automobile collision, June 20, on the Braddock road, near Allegany Grove. The suit is directed against James H. Jenkins, administrator of the estate.

The suit contends that Richard T. Jenkins, who was driving the car which crashed against the Lear machine, was operating his car in a negligent and careless manner and caused the death of Margaret Lear, thus depriving her husband of the services and pecuniary benefits, support, care, society, and attention of his wife in the sum of $25,000.

The action is an outgrowth of one of the worst automobile accidents in the county's history. Three persons were killed and two injured severely as a result of the crash.

Jenkins and a passenger, John H. Cain, of Cumberland, were fatally injured, Jenkins instantly, and Cain two hours later in Memorial hospital. John McKinne, local bartender, also a passenger in Jenkins car was severely injured and is still in the Memorial hospital. Lear himself suffered a fractured left arm and cuts and bruises about the body.

State police, at the time of the crash, estimated Jenkins car was traveling close to 100 miles an hour and was far over on the wrong side of the highway.

An Evening Times newsboy, Fred Beeman, of near Allegany Grove, was the only eye-witness to the collision. John Hodge Smith and George L. Williamson are attorneys for Lear.

Gateway Chatter

by News Staff Members

The Indians called it "Firewater" and John Williamson, 22, of Bonnieville, Ky., says it's so, according to an Associated Press dispatch, received by the NEWS.

It seems that Williamson bought an empty whiskey barrel in Louisville, Ky., and took it home to be used to catch rain water.

He pulled out the stopper and struck a match on a hoop. Result—the barrel exploded throwing Williamson ten feet—and now he is in the hospital with a fractured leg.

Allegany county folk do not make as much use of old whiskey barrels and kegs as they did back in prohibition days in common with people generally throughout the land. But, in case somebody does dig up an empty barrel or keg for catching rain water or what not, this item should suggest to them the advisability of not sticking a lighted match near the bung hole.

—o—

July 18 was a red letter day for Mr. and Mrs. Albert Guglicellor—a child has been born to them on that date for the last three years.

The first, Rogers Hornsby Guglicello, named for the former star major league baseball player whom the father admires, was born July 18, 1938. Last year Donna Jean arrived on her brother's birthday and Thursday a second boy, as yet unnamed, was born.

Well, at least, they won't have to have birthday parties except one day a year, even though they will have to buy three presents instead of one.

—o—

Making his first appearance at the Cumberland Fair Grounds, Ernie Chapman, who handles a string of horses owned by "Red" Hughes, is loud in his praise of the local half-mile oval and especially of the drinking water which is being supplied this year for the first time by the City of Cumberland.

"I have been traveling from coast to coast with the horses for more than forty years," remarked Chapman, "but I never have tasted such fine water that the fountains supply at this place."

"It seems that the more I drink the more I want and I believe that I drink about a quart every time I go to the fountain," Chapman said.

Chapman, who recently celebrated his sixty-sixth birthday said he has been interested in race horses since he was twenty-one. He came to the local track from the Hagerstown meet with Green Waters and Smart Lad, which he expects to crash the winners' circle in the ten-day meeting which opens here August 6.

—o—

Among the other early arrivals here for the Cumberland Fair Association's meeting are Katys Rival and Canterbelle, owned by R. P. Gillette, of Proctorsville, Ohio; Pin Hooker, Miss Hall Bar and Hildur Queen, the property of Col. Hatfield and W. J. Mott, of Huntington, W. Va., and Star Mixer, Incendiary and Starproof, of the N. S. Scava stable.

Testimony Heard in Case Contesting Decree

Judge William A. Huster heard opening testimony, yesterday, in circuit court, in a case designed to contest a decree rendered on June 28 under the proceeds of a life insurance policy of the late Raymond Shives was awarded to Mrs. Carrie Barker, Berkeley Springs, W. Va. The policy had been assigned to Mrs. Barker as collateral for a loan amounting to $346 and accrued interest.

Edward J. Ryan, attorney for Mrs. Nora Shives, administratrix of the estate, named beneficiary in the policy, argued that a residue of $247.53 was due the estate after payment in full of the collateral obligation to Mrs. Barker. No final disposition was handed down by the court yesterday.

William M. Somerville represented Mrs. Baker, and William L. Wilson was co-council with Mr. Ryan.

Electrical Storm Brings Respite From Heat Wave

Thermometer Drops from 98 1-2 to 80 Degrees after Light Rain

Yesterday was the hottest day of the year in Cumberland but an electrical storm which put in its appearance at 6:30 p. m., brought relief, at least temporarily, to those who have sweltered during a heat spell which lasted a week.

The thermometer atop city hall registered 98½ degrees at 4 p. m., thereby establishing a new high for the season, one-half point above the previous high of Monday afternoon. However, a lightning storm and heavy rain later in the evening brought cooling breezes and at 8 o'clock last evening the mercury had dropped eighteen and one-half points to an even eighty degrees.

Six hundred persons flocked to Constitution park's swimming pool during the day, William H. Buchholtz, pool supervisor, reported, to enjoy themselves in the water of 68 degrees temperature, due to the fact that an overnight change had been made in the water supply. While the water was much cooler than usual it failed to cut down attendance as the temperature outside the pool was an even 100 degrees. Yesterday's 600 paid admissions sent the total up to 2,737 for the first four days of the week. Sunday's figure of 1,185 was tops followed by 502 Monday and 450 Tuesday.

Alderton Loses Another Habeas Corpus Action

Ruhl Alderton, who was sentenced to one year in the House of Correction by Associate Judge William A. Huster at the April 1940 court term, for embezzlement, and who had secured a writ of habeas corpus, was given a hearing Tuesday before Judge Johnson in Baltimore county circuit court.

After hearing testimony Judge Johnson dismissed the writ and remanded Alderton back to the House of Correction.

It was the fourth time that Alterton had received a habeas corpus hearing within a period of two months. Previous writs had been denied Alderton in Baltimore city, Salisbury and Crisfield. His writ was denied here July 9.

"Fair Queen" To Be Chosen Here

A colorful pageant in which the "Queen of the Cumberland Fair" and her "ladies-in-waiting" will be selected, will be a special feature of the Cumberland Fair, Friday night, August 16.

The contest is open to young ladies of Cumberland and nearby towns who will be given a personal interview within the next week or two by way of receiving their instructions.

The Fair Queen will receive a diamond ring, selected and displayed at Harvey's Jewelry store while the next four highest in voting will receive a diamond ring, from the John A. Nierman Jewelry store; a cedar chest from the E. V. Coyle Furniture company, an evening gown from Rosenbaum's and and ladies' ready-to-wear from Martin's.

Gifts for all other contestants will be selected and announced at a later date, and will be presented during the coronation ceremony in front of the grandstand at Fairgo.

County Branches Collect $1,600 in Red Cross Drive

Cresaptown and Barton To Report Later; Contributions Total $9,000

Response from county branches of the local Red Cross chapter in the war relief drive has been most encouraging, Mrs. George Henderson, chapter chairman, announced yesterday. More than $1,600 has been received at the local headquarters from the branches and is included in the $9,000 raised to date by the county chapter in the national drive to aid victims of the war.

Mt. Savage is the only branch which has reached its doubled quota. Miss Hinkle, branch chairman, reported $351 received from the Mt. Savage area.

Mrs. J. C. Cobey has reported $595 to the chapter headquarters as part of the contributions from Frostburg.

Westernport and Luke branch, with Samuel Widmer as chairman of the war relief committee, has raised $574.39.

Seventy-six dollars has been received from the Midland branch, of which Mrs. Edward Smith is chairman. This includes group contributions from St. Joseph's Catholic church, $30; Allegany County Social and Sports club, $10; Midland Fire company, $5; Midland theater, $13.68; Midland Lutheran church, $51; Tioga Tribe, No. 126, Order of Red Men, $5; Local No. 6012, $5, and the Methodist church, $3.

Contributions from the branch at National totaled $10.

Other county branches at Cresaptown and Barton have not reported.

All money received in the war relief drive of the American Red Cross is being used to buy supplies for war refugees and war wounded in Europe.

Each Tent Will Accomodate Twelve Racers; 600 Applications Received

A problem which has confronted Race Secretary Edward J. Brennan, of the Cumberland Fair Association, was partly solved yesterday with the arrival at Fairgo of eleven large tents which will take care of part of the overflow of race horses to be quartered at the local half mile oval during the ten-day meeting, August 6 to 10 and August 13 to 17.

President Harry A. Manley said that each tent will accommodate twelve horses.

Reservations have been made for 450 to 500 horses and since there is only stall room for slightly more than 400 in the barns at Fairgo it was necessary to purchase tents to take care of the overflow. Applications have been received for stalls for more than 600 horses but many horsemen were turned down because of lack of space at the local plant.

Manley also announced that plans are being formulated by Race Secretary Brennan to stage a two and one-sixteenth mile flat race as a feature of the second week's program at Fairgo. Heretofore a mile and three quarters has been the limit for flat races while steeplechase events, inaugurated last year, are run over a distance of two to two and one-half miles.

Three Groups of Diseases Cause Most Sickness

Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the State Department of Health, announces that three groups of diseases were responsible for ninety-seven per cent of all the sickness from communicable diseases during the first half of this year.

The three groups were the "so-called children's diseases, venereal diseases and respiratory diseases," Dr. Riley stated. The remainder of notifiable diseases was scattered among more than fifty other ailments.

Measles showed the most spectacular drop, only 146 cases having been reported for the first half of the year compared with more than 14,000 in the first half of 1939.

Venereal diseases topped the list with 6,500 cases. Also listed were seventeen cases of tularemia or rabbit fever and fifteen cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

New Air-conditioning System Is Installed in G. C. Murphy Store

The Murphy system, installed under the supervision of C. F. Shade, refrigerating engineer of the York Ice Machine Company, York, Pa., builders of air-conditioning refrigerators for federal government buildings in Washington, D. C., at a cost of approximately $80,000, brings 55,000 cubic feet of outside air into the store every minute, distributed by four giant fans. Engineers estimate that sixteen tons of sheet metal were used for the duct work which carries the cool air to all parts of the building. The capacity of the system is 150 tons.

Employed Eighty Men

Eighty men were employed over a period of twelve weeks to speed the work of installing the system, it was announced by Ralph James, manager of the local store.

J. Scholler, of the G. C. Murphy company, was general supervisor; James C. Powell, of Cumberland, general contractor; C. F. Shade, of York, Pa., engineer; F. J. Kress, of the Morgan Brothers Company, Pittsburgh, sheet metal engineer, and William Blake, of the Queen City Electric company, Cumberland, electrical engineer.

To Install New Lights

The management announces that a complete new lighting system is to be installed on the main floor while on the second floor the capacity of the lighting system will be doubled with the introduction of new type globes. The second floor will be covered entirely by battleship linoleum while full length Venetian blinds will be hung at all front windows.

Mr. James said that the Murphy store contains more than one acre of selling space and employs a sales force of 121 persons. He also stated that the store contains 33,000 selected items.

Wiley Ford Man Held at Ridgeley in Connection With Death of Mrs. Bock

Ray Kesner, 30, Arrested by Ridgeley Chief of Police, Will Be Questioned for Second Time Today; Floyd Athey Is Released after Questioning

Ray Kesner, 30, of Wiley Ford, W. Va., a WPA worker is being held in the Ridgeley, W. Va., jail in connection with an automobile mishap in which Mrs. Bernice Weese Bock, 26, 509 Maryland avenue, was fatally injured Sunday night on Route 28, near Short Gap, Mineral county.

Kesner was arrested yesterday by Ridgeley Chief of Police C. V. Barncord and questioned last night by West Virginia State Trooper R. R. Karickhoff and Barncord. He will be questioned again today.

Chief Barncord said Kesner admitted being with the Bock woman Saturday and up until Sunday noon. He denied being with her when she was fatally injured after she reportedly ran in front of a car driven by Maynard Keister, of Romney, W. Va.

Floyd Athey, 13 Laing avenue, arrested yesterday afternoon by Officers L. E. Meister and L. L. Youngblood at the request of West Virginia authorities, was also questioned, but was released.

Keister was not present at the questioning. He has been exonerated by authorities in connection with Mrs. Bock's death.

Authorities reported Keister told them that two men drove away in a car bearing Maryland markers while he was putting the woman in his car. She apparently fled from the machine while it was parked, he said.

The action is an outgrowth of one of the worst automobile accidents in the county's history. Three persons were killed and two injured severely as a result of the crash.

Jenkins and a passenger, John H. Cain, of Cumberland, were fatally injured, Jenkins instantly, and Cain two hours later in Memorial hospital. John McKinne, local bartender, also a passenger in Jenkins car was severely injured and is still in the Memorial hospital. An Evening Times newsboy, Fred Beeman, of near Allegany Grove, was the only eye-witness to the collision. John Hodge Smith and George L. Williamson are attorneys for Lear.

Gateway Chatter

by News Staff Members

The Indians called it "Firewater" and John Williamson, 22, of Bonnieville, Ky., says it's so, according to an Associated Press dispatch, received by the NEWS.

It seems that Williamson bought an empty whiskey barrel in Louisville, Ky., and took it home to be used to catch rain water.

He pulled out the stopper and struck a match on a hoop. Result—the barrel exploded throwing Williamson ten feet—and now he is in the hospital with a fractured leg.

Allegany county folk do not make as much use of old whiskey barrels and kegs as they did back in prohibition days in common with people generally throughout the land. But in case somebody does dig up an empty barrel or keg for catching rain water or what not, this item should suggest to them the advisability of not sticking a lighted match near the bung hole.

Gateway Chatter wonders if any Cumberland folks can tie this record:

July 18 was a red letter day for Mr. and Mrs. Albert Guglicellor—a child has been born to them on that date for the last three years.

The first, Rogers Hornsby Guglicello, named for the former star major league baseball player whom the father admires, was born July 18, 1938. Last year Donna Jean arrived on her brother's birthday and Thursday a second boy, as yet unnamed, was born.

Well, at least, they won't have to have birthday parties except one day a year, even though they will have to buy three presents instead of one.

Making his first appearance at the Cumberland Fair Grounds, Ernie Chapman, who handles a string of horses owned by "Red" Hughes, is loud in his praise of the local half-mile oval and especially of the drinking water which is being supplied this year for the first time by the City of Cumberland.

"I have been traveling from coast to coast with the horses for more than forty years," remarked Chapman, "but I never have tasted such fine water that the fountains supply at this place."

"It seems that the more I drink the more I want and I believe that I drink about a quart every time I go to the fountain," Chapman said.

Chapman, who recently celebrated his sixty-sixth birthday said he has been interested in race horses since he was twenty-one. He came to the local track from the Hagerstown meet with Green Waters and Smart Lad, which he expects to crash the winners' circle in the ten-day meeting which opens here August 6.

—o—

Among the other early arrivals here for the Cumberland Fair Association's meeting are Katys Rival and Canterbelle, owned by R. P. Gillette, of Proctorsville, Ohio; Pin Hooker, Miss Hall Bar and Hildur Queen, the property of Col. Hatfield and W. J. Mott, of Huntington, W. Va., and Star Mixer, Incendiary and Starproof, of the N. S. Scava stable.

Robert Doty, sporting a high silk hat and puffing on an El Ropo, portrayed the role of Prof. Quiz. The contest was held on the stage at the park amphitheater.

Electrical Storm Brings Respite From Heat Wave

Thermometer Drops from 98 1-2 to 80 Degrees after Light Rain

Yesterday was the hottest day of the year in Cumberland but an electrical storm which put in its appearance at 6:30 p. m., brought relief, at least temporarily, to those who have sweltered during a heat spell which lasted a week.

The thermometer atop city hall registered 98½ degrees at 4 p. m., thereby establishing a new high for the season, one-half point above the previous high of Monday afternoon. However, a lightning storm and heavy rain later in the evening brought cooling breezes and at 8 o'clock last evening the mercury had dropped eighteen and one-half points to an even eighty degrees.

Six hundred persons flocked to Constitution park's swimming pool during the day, William H. Buchholtz, pool supervisor, reported, to enjoy themselves in the water of 68 degrees temperature, due to the fact that an overnight change had been made in the water supply. While the water was much cooler than usual it failed to cut down attendance as the temperature outside the pool was an even 100 degrees. Yesterday's 600 paid admissions sent the total up to 2,737 for the first four days of the week. Sunday's figure of 1,185 was tops followed by 502 Monday and 450 Tuesday.

Alderton Loses Another Habeas Corpus Action

Ruhl Alderton, who was sentenced to one year in the House of Correction by Associate Judge William A. Huster at the April 1940 court term, for embezzlement, and who had secured a writ of habeas corpus, was given a hearing Tuesday before Judge Johnson in Baltimore county circuit court.

After hearing testimony Judge Johnson dismissed the writ and remanded Alderton back to the House of Correction.

It was the fourth time that Alterton had received a habeas corpus hearing within a period of two months. Previous writs had been denied Alderton in Baltimore city, Salisbury and Crisfield. His writ was denied here July 9.

Eleven Tents Will Be Used To House Race Horses Here

Each Tent Will Accomodate Twelve Racers; 600 Applications Received

A problem which has confronted Race Secretary Edward J. Brennan, of the Cumberland Fair Association, was partly solved yesterday with the arrival at Fairgo of eleven large tents which will take care of part of the overflow of race horses to be quartered at the local half mile oval during the ten-day meeting, August 6 to 10 and August 13 to 17.

President Harry A. Manley said that each tent will accommodate twelve horses.

Reservations have been made for 450 to 500 horses and since there is only stall room for slightly more than 400 in the barns at Fairgo it was necessary to purchase tents to take care of the overflow. Applications have been received for stalls for more than 600 horses but many horsemen were turned down because of lack of space at the local plant.

Manley also announced that plans are being formulated by Race Secretary Brennan to stage a two and one-sixteenth mile flat race as a feature of the second week's program at Fairgo. Heretofore a mile and three quarters has been the limit for flat races while steeplechase events, inaugurated last year, are run over a distance of two to two and one-half miles.

Companies who send representatives also will receive a handsome plaque in commemoration of their exceptional gas refrigeration sales achievement.

The three groups were the "so-called children's diseases, venereal diseases and respiratory diseases, Dr. Riley stated. The remainder of notifiable diseases was scattered among more than fifty other ailments.

Measles showed the most spectacular drop, only 146 cases having been reported for the first half of the year compared with more than 14,000 in the first half of 1939.

Venereal diseases topped the list with 6,500 cases. Also listed were seventeen cases of tularemia or rabbit fever and fifteen cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

New Air-conditioning System Is Installed in G. C. Murphy Store

What engineers describe as the largest air-conditioning system between Pittsburgh and Washington, D. C., is now in operation at the G. C. Murphy Company's 5-and-10 cent store, 136 Baltimore street, making one of Cumberland's leading variety stores from twelve to twenty degrees cooler than the outside temperature.

The Murphy system, installed under the supervision of C. F. Shade, refrigerating engineer of the York Ice Machine Company, York, Pa., builders of air-conditioning refrigerators for federal government buildings in Washington, D. C., at a cost of approximately $80,000, brings 55,000 cubic feet of outside air into the store every minute, distributed by four giant fans. Engineers estimate that sixteen tons of sheet metal were used for the duct work which carries the cool air to all parts of the building. The capacity of the system is 150 tons.

Employed Eighty Men

Eighty men were employed over a period of twelve weeks to speed the work of installing the system, it was announced by Ralph James, manager of the local store.

J. Scholler, of the G. C. Murphy company, was general supervisor; James C. Powell, of Cumberland, general contractor; C. F. Shade, of York, Pa., engineer; F. J. Kress, of the Morgan Brothers Company, Pittsburgh, sheet metal engineer, and William Blake, of the Queen City Electric company, Cumberland, electrical engineer.

To Install New Lights

The management announces that a complete new lighting system is to be installed on the main floor while on the second floor the capacity of the lighting system will be doubled with the introduction of new type globes. The second floor will be covered entirely by battleship linoleum while full length Venetian blinds will be hung at all front windows.
